The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5256-“Ulus... Where on earth do I find the Ulus?” James mumbled under his breath.

He was attacked and killed because of the Ulus in his previous life. However, James had no clue as to its whereabouts.

The Ulus was a precious, legendary item of immense value. Its stories and myths were passed down through word of mouth a long time ago. Sadly, there were no actual records that proved the Ulus’ existence.

James had reached up to the fourth stage of the Feimsurge Art and retrieved the Supremusse Sword. However, all of that was still far from enough to keep him safe from the threats of his enemies.

If he wanted to exact revenge on those enemies from his past life, James would have to survive and last until he had reached the cultivation rank he was in before he died in his last life. According to his estimation, James would require at least an entrapoch to achieve that.

Therefore, it was important for James to secure a method to help with his survival, and the Ulus might be the key to solving this problem. James had decided to obtain the Ulus by using any means necessary.

Although the Ulus had only ever appeared in myths and rumors so far, James believed that it must exist in real life for people to start circulating stories about it.

“Why did those cultivators suddenly attack me back then? Could it be that I do have the clue to the Ulus’ whereabouts? It was just that I wasn’t aware I had it?” James thought about it for a while, and the only place that could hold the clue to the Ulus’ location was the Supremusse Zone.

The Supremusse Zone was a sanctuary located within the grounds of Supremusseum. James had stored all the items he collected in his past life inside the Supremusse Zone. Among his collection, there were thousands of books that James had not even once flipped through.

During his previous life, James was only interested in studying the Genesis Power of various planes. He would only read books related to that topic.

James had placed a seal over the entire Supremusse Zone back then. The seal contained the highest form of Genesis Power, and James was the only person who knew how to undo it. Even the current owner of Supremusseum, Quirijn, would not be able to access the Supremusse Zone because of James' seal.

Furthermore, countless treasures were stored inside the Supremusse Zone.

James did not have much use for them in the past, but those items could come in handy for him now.

James was even considering whether he should travel to the Supremusseum and sneak into the Supremusse Zone to bring those treasures out discreetly.

However, he quickly decided not to do it. At his current cultivation rank, James would get caught the instant he arrived at the Supremusseum.

After putting those matters aside, James crossed his legs and began meditating.

At the same time, Xhemal and several other members of Dieux Academy had gathered inside their main hall. They were all looking at a man who was wearing a white robe with intricate cloud patterns embroidered on it.

"Sir Xhemal, the Supremusse Lotus is about to come into full blossom soon.

Therefore, the Lord of Supremusseum is inviting countless superior cultivators to a gathering at the Supremusseum to witness the magnificence of the Supremusse Lotus in its full bloom."

The messenger from Supremusseum handed an invitation card to Xhemal.

Xhemal replied in a deep voice, "Alright. The Dieux Academy will send our representative to attend the event."

After the messenger had walked out of the main hall, Xhemal turned his gaze toward the elders standing beside him. He asked, "Is there anyone interested in attending the Supremusseum's event?" Upon hearing the question, Jorah took a step back. Then, the other elders hurriedly took a few steps back too.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5257-Xhemal pinched the bridge of his nose. "None of you are willing to go?"

Jorah replied, "The Supremusseum would frequently host these meaningless gatherings. The Supremusse Lotus is indeed a precious object, and the Supremusseum has always invited other cultivators to watch its blooming.

However, what is the point of us being there if the members of the Supremusseum won't share parts of the lotus with outsiders? I'm not wasting my time making a trip there for nothing."

"Why don't we ask our new elder, Forty-nine, to attend the event?" one of the elders suggested.

Xhemal shook his head. "That's not very appropriate. The Supremusseum probably won't welcome Forty-nine. He just took Quirijn Yushar's Supremusse Sword, so Quirijn couldn't possibly have any friendly feelings for Forty-nine.

Forty-nine might be in danger if he attended the event..."

Jorah grinned. "What can they possibly do to him? Elder Forty-nine will be attending the event as a representative of the Dieux Academy. The Supremusseum couldn't possibly try to harm him in front of the other attendees."

After a brief moment's consideration, Xhemal instructed one of his disciples, "You over there, inform Elder Forty-nine to come to the main hall for a moment."

Meanwhile, James was conducting his meditation when Xhemal's disciple arrived at Mount Caden.

"Elder Forty-nine, Sir Xhemal wants to see you at the main hall."

"Sure." James nodded and got to his feet. Then, he followed Xhemal's disciple to the Dieux Academy's main hall.

Upon entering the hall, James could see the other elders were waiting inside for him as well. He smiled and briefly greeted the others as he walked over to Xhemal. Then, he bowed slightly to the headmaster. "Greetings, Sir Xhemal."

Xhemal responded, "Forty-nine, we received an invitation from the Supremusseum to view the blooming of the Supremusse Lotus. Are you willing to attend the event as the Dieux Academy's representative?"

James paused momentarily.

Earlier, he was feeling slightly troubled since James could not think of any way to visit the Supremusseum with a valid excuse. To his surprise, Xhemal was providing him with the opportunity just when he needed it.

A few seconds later, James smiled brightly. 'The Supremusseum is one of the ten great forces. I would be honored to attend the event as our academy's representative.'

"Splendid."

Xhemal conjured the invitation and passed it to James.

Then, he said, "Quirijn might feel a little dissatisfied with what happened recently. However, I'm sure the Supremusseum wouldn't be too rude to one of their guests."

James smiled wryly and asked, "Who should I bring with me to the event, Sir Xhemal?"

Xhemal replied, 'That's up to you.'

"Understood." James gave another bow. "In that case, I'll take my leave now."

After leaving the main hall, James dropped by the library to see Lemuel.

Unfortunately, he could not find the elderly cultivator anywhere in the library.

James had a gloomy expression as he returned to his spiritual mountain.

As James entered his room, Lemuel suddenly materialized before him.

Lemuel asked nonchalantly, "Were you looking for me?"

James' face brightened up as he greeted Lemuel respectfully, "Sir Lemuel, I am going to visit the Supremusseum."

"Oh?" Lemuel raised his brows. "Why are you visiting that place?"

"I think I may have accidentally obtained clues regarding the Ulus' whereabouts during my past life. So, I'm planning to sneak into the sanctuary located inside the Supremusseum and take all the treasures stored there with me. Then, I can check all the books I've collected back then to see if my suspicions were right."

James continued, "That is why I want to ask you to come with me since I'm afraid that this excursion to the Supremusmuseum may be dangerous."

"You're clearly trying to make me your bodyguard for this trip!" Lemuel grumbled angrily.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5258-James said in a calm voice, "Of course not, Sir Lemuel! How could I ever ask that of you? The main reason I am inviting you to go to the Supremusmuseum is for us to enjoy the picturesque view there."

Despite James' explanation, Lemuel knew very well what the young man was planning.

"Sigh..." Lemuel shut his eyes for a while and opened them again. "I have free time anyway. Fine. I'll go with you."

Then, Lemuel used his powers to change his appearance and attire. In the blink of an eye, Lemuel had become a middle-aged man who was wearing an exquisite, fitting robe.

"You look much better in that appearance." James chuckled softly.

Lemuel crossed his arms. "I'm going to set things straight right now. I'm merely accompanying you to the Supremusmuseum. I won't help you, no matter what it is that you are planning."

"Of course " James beamed broadly. "It's not like I'm trying to do anything bad. I am simply paying a visit to my old home and retrieving some stuff that I've stored there for ages. I won't be doing anything dangerous, so I won't need to ask for your help."

"When are we leaving?" Lemuel asked.

"I'll update you on that when I've decided on the time," James replied.

After hearing James' words, Lemuel teleported and vanished from the spot.

Meanwhile, James' grin broadened. He could not help but feel more reassured since Lemuel had agreed to follow him to the Supremusmuseum.

Frankly speaking, James was certain that he could retrieve his treasures from the Supremusse Zone without any difficulty as long as he was allowed entry into the Supremusseum. Coincidentally, he was granted permission to visit the place now. Still, he invited Lemuel to come along as a precautionary measure.

Also, James was struck with another idea, and it was related to the Supremusse Lotus.

The Supremusse Lotus, which was one of the Supremusseum's prized possessions, was regarded as a type of Genesis Holy Herb.

When James had left the Endlos, he had managed to acquire Genesis Holy Herbs of the first and second ranks. Those herbs were produced when the first level or second-level planes failed to evolve into high-level planes.

On the other hand, the Supremusse Lotus was at the very least an eighth-rank Genesis Holy Herb. Some could even reach the ninth rank depending on its quality.

If James managed to gain possession of the Supremusse Lotus, he could use it to boost his powers significantly within a short amount of time.

However, he had yet to come up with a feasible plan to obtain the Supremusse Lotus. Therefore, James persuaded Lemuel to join him on the trip to the Supremusseum. If there was no other way, James would get Lemuel to take the lotus away by force.

No one at the Supremusseum would have the power or skills to stop Lemuel. In fact, not a single cultivator from the various plans would be able to do that.

All of the planes including the Central Plane were constantly surrounded by darkness. All of these planes had come into existence within the darkness.

Everyone referred to the darkness around them as the Dark World.

No one knew what could be found in the deepest parts of the Dark World or what it would look like at the other end of the darkness. Even superior Martial Celestial Rank cultivators had very limited knowledge of the Dark World.

Most of them were under the impression that there was no end to this darkness and no living beings resided in those areas. The Dark World only contained unknown powers that were frightening to living beings.

James had kept the Endlos Plane securely hidden. Even cultivators at the peak of Martial Celestial Rank would not be able to detect or find the Endlos Plane's location.

Wyt Dalibor's current residence, Mount Hetsema, was located in the area existing between the Endlos Plane and the Dark World.

Wyt had been living there with Yemima's reincarnation. The couple had fallen in love and given birth to a child of their own.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5259-One day, Wyt sensed an unusual source of energy coming from outside of Mount Hetsema. He leaped to his feet and turned his eyes in the direction of the Dark World.

With his powers, Wyt could see thousands of beings traveling from the Dark World toward his direction.

The troop was led by an elderly man in a black robe. On his robe, the pattern of a mountain could be seen embroidered on it.

Those beings were about to pass by Mount Hetsema soon.

"Who are you?"

Wyt teleported and reappeared several meters away from that huge troop as he tried to block their path.

"Get lost!" the elderly man bellowed in a deep voice.

Wyt was momentarily stunned as he was hit by the deafening voice. His mind went blank for the next several seconds.

By the time he had recovered his senses, the troop of unknown beings had vanished from his sight. Wyt could not detect their presence or aura no matter how far he stretched his senses.

Meanwhile, a group of beings had appeared outside the South Heaven Gate at the Human Universe.

Those men got down on their knees and chanted in unison, "Your Highness, we are here to escort you home."

Their voices reverberated across the entire Heavenly Court.

Upon hearing the noise, Jacopo, Winnie, and the others materialized near the South Heaven Gate. A short while later, Thea arrived there as well.

Thea furrowed her brows as she spotted the troop waiting outside the gate. She took a few steps forward and asked, "Who are you looking for?"

The elderly man standing in front of the troop walked over to Thea and got down on one knee. He greeted her respectfully, "Greetings to the princess."

"Princess? Me?" Thea had a look of bewilderment on her face.

If someone from the high-level planes were witnessing what was happening at the Heavenly Court, they would be shocked out of their wits. That was because all of the men in the troop were Great Celestial Rank cultivators.

Moreover, the elderly man kneeling before Thea had achieved the peak of Martial Celestial Rank. All of these men were on their knees, and no one across the various planes had received such treatment before.

"Your Highness."

The elderly man raised his head and looked at Thea. "You are our princess. You come from one of the Four Ancient Races from the Dark World, the Mevryee Race. A civil war broke out in our territory when you were just born. Our lord had to send you away for the sake of your safety back then. Now that the war is over, our lord has sent us here to escort you back home."

The human cultivators were all shocked upon hearing the man's words.

None of them had heard of the name of the Mevryee Race before. However, they could all sense a terrifyingly immense amount of aura coming from the group of men kneeling before Thea.

"I..."

Thea was at a loss for words.

Xrival had told her about how he found Thea at the periphery of the Dark World in the past. However, there was no additional information regarding her origin or background.

"What is the meaning of all this?" Thea asked, "What are the Four Ancient Races? What exactly is the Mevryee Race?"

‘Your Highness, you should follow me back to our territory first. The Lord will explain all of it to you when you see him,’ the man replied.

Thea turned around to look at her children and her people.

After a brief moment, she answered, “Alright. I’ll go with you after I finish making the necessary arrangements for the Endlos Plane “

Thea had been thinking about leaving the Endlos Plane to search for James on the Central Plane for quite some time now. However, she did not expect that her real family would come looking for her now.

She wanted to find out more about her actual background as well.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5260-For Thea, time seemed to be passing by very slowly ever since James had left the Endlos.

In the meantime, she had mastered the Genesis Power of the Endlos and became the lord of the Endlos Plane.

Since Thea had decided to follow those men and travel to the Mevryee Race’s territory, it was time she appointed another person to be the new Endlos Plane’s lord.

The Endlos Plane had the potential to grow and evolve into an eighth-level plane soon. The common cultivator would not have what it takes to manage all life at an eighth-level plane.

Thea needed someone with the brains and skills to govern the Endlos Plane.

She turned her eyes to the group of human cultivators standing behind her. As her gaze drifted across those familiar faces, Thea could not find anyone suitable for the task in that crowd.

After a moment’s consideration, Thea decided that the best candidate for the position was Hetsema. The young man was a quick learner and a talented cultivator. Hetsema was also very resourceful and ambitious.

“I need to stop by the Orstellen Sect.”

Thea teleported and re-emerged at the Orstellen Sect’s main hall.

“Mom!”

Hetsema's face broke into a smile as soon as he spotted Thea. "You've been busy since becoming the lord of the Endlos Plane. What brings you here today?"

'Take a walk with me,' Thea suggested.

"Sure." Hetsema grinned broadly.

The two of them arrived at a quiet, desolate area.

"I'm going to leave the Endlos soon," Thea started.

"Huh?"

Hetsema paused briefly and asked, "Why are you leaving?"

Thea did not explain about the reason. Instead, she said, "Before leaving, I want to get someone to take over the position as the new lord of the Endlos Plane."

"So, you've come to see me because you want me to become the new lord?"

"Mhm." Thea nodded. "I gave it some thought and decided that you are the perfect candidate for the position. You are a competent and gifted cultivator. We already have many superior cultivators living in the Endlos Plane. With time, there will be more of these cultivators produced in the Endlos. The normal cultivator would not be able to keep all these people in check. However, I am confident that you can do that whilst managing the Endlos Plane." "I'll make sure to do a good job. I won't let you down,"

Hetsema continued, "I have just learned all the knowledge contained in the Genesis Path Scripture. My powers and cultivation rank are still rather insufficient at the moment. However, I will become the number-one cultivator in the Endlos by putting the knowledge of the Genesis Path Scripture and the resources we have here in the Endlos to good use."

"Follow me."

Thea took Hetsema to the core area of the new Endlos.

Then, she had him cultivate the Genesis Power of the Endlos Plane in that place so that he would become the new Endlos' Plane Lord.

After that, Thea returned to the Heavenly Court.

People had gathered inside the main hall of the Heavenly Court.

“Mom...”

Jacopo and the others had woeful looks on their faces.
