The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5384-Influential figures from the Dark World's Four Ancient Races gathered inside the Yefteros' main hall for an emergency meeting.

The Yefteros' Great Elder, Halianor, sat in the highest seat. To his side was the Yefteros' Saint, Yui.

Despite the packed crowd inside the main hall, the atmosphere was tense, and nobody spoke.

Halianor scanned everyone's face and broke the silence, saying, "What's wrong? Have you all lost your voices?"

At that moment, Jerry from the Suuntelis stepped forward and said, "Sir Halianor, this isn't our fault. While at the Glaciem Holy Land, we were under Yui's command. He made the decision, and we simply followed. If he had not wasted time on the disciple from Theognostos, the Glacies' princess wouldn't have escaped. She bought enough time to gain the strength to withstand Yui's attack and escaped unharmed. She'll become a problem soon." Halianor replied calmly, "Now's not the time to be pinning the blame on someone. You should be thinking about what to do next." Saul from the Zoltrumms said, "I doubt Theognostos or a puppet created by a powerhouse at the Transcendental Bliss Rank even exists. The powerful man who showed up was most likely the powerhouse of the Glacies that failed to enter the Transcendental Bliss Rank.

He was in that strange state because of failing to make his breakthrough."

His words brought about a new possibility, and everyone was slightly convinced.

However, Yuvin stepped forward and said, "If he wasn't from Theognostos, then why does he have such a terrifying physical body? His cultivation is only at the Petit Celestial Rank's late stage, but he withstood Yui's attacks. That's unusual.

After the Glacies were destroyed, we've been constantly searching for their princess. Where else could she have gone if she didn't gain shelter with Theognostos? We would've found her if she was hiding anywhere else."

Yuin wanted to prevent James' identity from being exposed. To the Mevryees, James was now a crucial chess piece in their plan. They needed James and the Glacies' princess to stir up trouble for the Yefferos.

Halianor turned to Yui and asked, "What do you think?"

Yui fell into thought and said, "The Glacies' hidden powerhouses are a mere rumor. Nobody from the Ancient Four Races has personally witnessed him fail to enter the Transcendental Bliss Rank. It's just a rumor spread from within the Glacies. As for the man claiming to be a disciple of Theognostos..."

"He did indeed have an exceptional physical body. His body's defenses were passive, as his cultivation rank was too low, and he couldn't manually summon the power in his body.

"I can't comment on Theognostos, though. The Transcendental Bliss Rank, and even the Quasi Bliss Rank, has always been a myth. There hasn't been anyone in the Primevals who has successfully reached these ranks. My father has been in seclusion for a very long time, but even he hasn't reached the threshold to enter the Quasi Bliss Rank."

Halianor listened carefully. Then, he asked, "Then do you think Theognostos really exists?"

Yui shook his head lightly and answered, "I can't give a certain answer. There are too many unexplored regions in the Dark World and so many secrets yet to be discovered. There may be mysteries that we haven't unraveled yet."

Halianor frowned and said, "If Theognostos does exist, and the Glacies' princess is connected to them, then she will become a significant threat to the Four Ancient Races.

She's going to secretly cause a lot of trouble for us.

Yui suggested, "Our top priority should be verifying whether Theognostos exists.

If it is real, we must find out why there hasn't been any news about them for so long. Why are they showing up now? At the same time, we must locate the Glacies' princess as soon as possible."

The powerhouses continued with their meeting, discussing countermeasures for their survival.

Yuin occasionally chipped in to not raise suspicion. After the meeting, he temporarily settled down in the Yefteros' territory. On his trip this time, he was accompanied by Thea.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5385-As soon as Yuvin returned from the meeting, Thea approached and asked anxiously, "How did it go, Mr. Yuvin?" Yuvin recounted the meeting's discussion with Thea.

After hearing what had happened, Thea sighed in relief.

Yuin had passed an inscription to James so they could get in touch no matter how far apart they were. He sat down and contacted James with it, wanting to explain the situation as well as ask him to avoid using the identity of a disciple from Theognostos.

At that moment, James had just settled down in the Flame City. The inscription in his body buzzed, and Yuvin's voice resounded in his mind.

James listened carefully. Afterward, he turned to Qiyana and said, "I'm afraid we'll have to change our identities again."

"What's wrong?" Qiyana looked at James puzzledly.

James explained, "I just received news that the Four Ancient Races have gathered for a meeting and are planning to verify Theognostos' existence. They will also send spies throughout the Dark World to find you."

Qiyana replied, "It doesn't matter what identity I use, but what will you do?"

James thought for a while and asked, "Which powerhouses from the Central Plane have you heard of?"

Qiyana thought for a while, then replied, "I've heard of a few names, but the most well-known should be Thaddeus Holiness."

"Is he that famous here?" James was slightly startled. He knew about Thaddeus Holiness, who was a legendary figure. However, nobody had ever seen him in person before. In the past, he had even pretended to be a disciple of Thaddeus Holiness.

Qiyana nodded and said, "Yeah. Before my race was destroyed, I heard stories about him. Rumors say he had shown up at the gates of one of the Primevals' powerful races and troubled them for a long time. The members of that race didn't dare to even step out of their territory.

"Which race was it?" James' curiosity was piqued.

"The Suuntelis."

"The Suuntelis? It was one of the Four Ancient Races?" James was startled.

Qiyana replied, "Yeah. The Suuntelis were powerful back then but hadn't become one of the Four Ancient Races yet. Many other powerful races existed before the Dark World fell into chaos.

"Even so, the Suuntelis are quite a powerful force. I've decided to move around in the Dark World as Forty-nine. After all, I had pretended to be a disciple of Thaddeus Holiness before in the Central Plane. The Dark World's forces should be able to find out about it soon."

After assessing the information he gained, James decided to continue using the identity of Forty-nine and pretending to be a disciple of Thaddeus Holiness.

Afterward, he replied to Yuvin, reassuring him there was no need to worry.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5386-After Yuvin sent a warning, James decided not to use the identity of the Theognostos' disciple anymore. After all, the illusion he created of the Theognostos was related to Qiyana. Moreover, the Four Ancient Races have already united to investigate Theognostos and search for Qiyana's whereabouts.

Thus, he decided it was best to use the identity and appearance of Forty-nine.

As long as he does not encounter people from the Ancient Four Races and avoids using his exceptional physical defenses in front of them, they would not suspect he was the Theognostos' disciple.

As for Qiyana's identity, it did not matter who she disguised as. At that moment, she had already changed her appearance and aura.

James looked at Qiyana and said smilingly, "From now onward, you'll be my junior and a disciple of Thaddeus Holiness. Let's call you Qiya."

Qiyana smiled and teased him, "Why am I the junior when I'm stronger than you? Won't people be suspicious? I should be the senior."

James shrugged and said, "Fine by me. It's just a title anyway."

Qiyana chuckled at his words. Her usual demeanor was cold, but at that moment, her smile was mesmerizing.

"Let's think about how to obtain the Flamma Race's primitive inscriptions," said Qiyana.

James replied, "The Flamma Race's primitive inscriptions will be easy to get. I'm more worried about the Tellures, Silvae, and Metalla. The three races vanished from the Dark World long ago, so where will we find their inscriptions?"

Qiyana had no solution since these races disappeared long before the Glacies' destruction.

"Speaking of which, what happened in the Dark World for them to have been wiped out? Is there a connection with the reason the Glacies were annihilated?"

Qiyana gently shook her head, unsure of the details. Then, she suggested, "Let's find a place to stay first."

Flame City had many spiritual mountains. James purchased a spiritual mountain with a peaceful ambiance and sufficient energy of heaven and earth. He was wealthy and could easily afford a spiritual mountain in Flame City.

James and Qiyana sat together atop the spiritual mountain, at a loss for what to do next.

Suddenly, James suggested, "How about I go down the mountain to ask about the situation? We're not going to have any progress just by sitting here. Latrusse should've arrived in the Flammae's territory by now. He'll surely launch an attack. As soon as he takes action, we'll be able to move around much easier."

“I’ll come with you,” said Qiyana.

Qiyana was proactive since she was concerned about Qairo’s recovery.

“Alright, let’s head down together and look around the city.”

The two headed down the spiritual mountain and roamed Flame City.

The city was crowded with many living beings from the Flamma Race and other races. Like the Yefteros, the Flammae’s territory also had a black market and arena. However, James had no time to participate in the arena.

The two continued to wander around the city aimlessly.

“Mount Belargh?” James saw a spiritual mountain crowded with cultivators ahead of them.

Qiyana explained, “Mount Belargh is Flame City’s largest trading market. Even the Four Ancient Races have opened stores there.”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5387-“I see. Let’s check it out.” James walked toward Mount Belargh.

Mount Belargh was massive and undulating. It was full of independent commercial buildings opened up by Primevals. The buildings had many sections, selling all kinds of cultivation resources. In the trading market, customers could use items to exchange for the resources they wanted.

In the past, James would have been intrigued by the items on sale. However, his storage treasure was already full of countless cultivation resources. Thus, they had no appeal to him.

“There must be someone selling information on Mount Belargh. Let’s try to find the person,” said Qiyana.

As the Glacies’ princess, Qiyana had a rough understanding of the other major races. In the past, the Glacies also had similar places like Mount Belargh.

“Alright.” James nodded.

The two continued walking around Mount Belargh. Soon, they found a palace in the depths of the mountain. Above the palace's gate was a massive tablet with a few words carved onto it.

"The Heavenly Secrets Pavilion?" Qiyana was slightly surprised after reading the words.

Curious, James asked, "What's the matter?"

Qiyana took a deep breath and said, "Do you know which people have self-claimed to be the Lords of the Dark World in the past?"

James shook his head and said, "How would I know?"

Qiyana explained, "From what I know, only three people had the guts to call themselves the Dark World's Lords."

"Oh, is that so? Which three?"

Qiyana answered, "During the Dark World's prosperous era, a powerful race called the Lielets existed. Even though all the other races were compelling, the Lielets overpowered them. The Lielets' Leader proclaimed himself the Dark World's Lord.

"The second person to do so is the Heavenly Secrets Pavilion's Master.

'The Heavenly Secret Pavilion is a mysterious force. In the Dark World, nobody knows much about their origin. The only known fact about them is they sell information. Rumors have it they know everything about the Dark World and even the planes. As long as you pay them enough, they'll provide whatever information you need.

"The last person is the Shadowers' leader. He also called himself the Dark World's Lord. However, he used to act arrogantly and caused much trouble.

Ultimately, he was besieged by powerhouses of the Four Ancient Races. His current whereabouts are unknown, and whether he is still alive is also a mystery."

Qiyana briefly explained the three powerhouses that have claimed to be the Dark World's Lord in the past.

"What about the present?" James asked.

Qiyana shook her head and said, “In today’s Dark World, nobody would dare to call themselves the Dark World’s Lord. The title itself attracts too much attention.

Whoever claims it will be challenged by other powerhouses.”

James asked, “Who’s the strongest in the Dark World right now?”

Qiyana shook her head again, saying, “I was sealed away for a long time, so I don’t know much about the current situation. I only have a rough idea from Qairo’s memories. However, there are too many powerhouses in the Dark World. It’s hard to decide the strongest.”

“What about Thaddeus Holiness? How high does he rank in the Dark World?”

James asked out of curiosity.

Thaddeus Holiness was from a plane outside of the Dark World. James wanted to know where he could stand in the Dark World.

Qiyana shook her head again. She did not know much about this stuff. All she knew was that Thaddeus Holiness was an incredible powerhouse. Judging from the fact that he blocked the gates of the Suunteli Race, he must be at least at the peak of the Holy Celestial Rank.

James smiled and said, “I think Qairo will be the strongest if he recovers. He’s more than qualified to call himself the Dark World’s Lord. After all, he is at the Quasi Bliss Rank. Even to Latrusse, the Transcendental Bliss Rank was only a myth. He had only heard of someone trying to break into the Quasi Bliss Rank. The Transcendental Bliss Rank was completely new to him.”
