

Read The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5396-Meanwhile, James and Qiyana were led to a hall on the Flammae's main spiritual mountain.

'Til have to see the Flammae's primitive inscriptions before performing the treatment," James said straightforwardly.

Haleth immediately refused, saying, "I can't agree to that. Even though you've mastered the Glacies' primitive inscriptions and have the Ulus, your cultivation rank is too low. I'm worried you won't be able to suppress the Flammae poison in Yered's body. You must treat him first. I will keep my promise if you succeed.

Even though we're not one of the Ancient Races, we're still a major race, and we never go back on our word."

James had no choice but to compromise since he desperately needed the Flammae's primitive inscription. He agreed unwillingly, "Fine. Let me see him."

"Follow me," said Haleth.

James stood up, and Qiyana followed suit.

Haleth turned to Qiyana and said, "She should stay behind. Don't worry, we won't mistreat you."

"No, she must come with me," James refused.

Qiyana intervened, saying, "It's alright. Go ahead."

Since Qiyana agreed to stay behind, James no longer insisted.

"Lead the way," said James.

Haleth continued walking, leading James to the Flammae's Holy Land.

After Haleth deactivated the countless formations surrounding the place, a heat wave swept toward them.

Even though James had a powerful physical body, the heat was hard to bear.

James looked at the sea of flames ahead. The fluttering flames were multi-colored and contained very magical powers.

Haleth approached the flames and said, "I'll brief you about Yered's condition first."

"Okay."

Haleth heaved a deep sigh and said, "Yered is a once-in-a-millennium genius of our race. He is exceptionally talented and has an outstanding comprehension ability.

He mastered our primitive inscriptions at a young age and kept improving steadily until he reached the Holy Celestial Rank's Consummation. However, he failed to enter the Quasi Bliss Rank and suffered a backlash. We've tried every method available but couldn't suppress the Flammae poison."

"He reached the Holy Celestial Rank's Consummation and attempted to enter the Quasi Bliss Rank?" James was surprised.

He thought the Flamma Race maintained a low profile because they lacked powerhouses. Thus, he never expected them to have such a strong member among them. Even the Four Ancient Race's Leaders would not stand a chance against someone at the Holy Celestial Rank's Consummation.

Haleth nodded and said, "Yeah. The Flammae poison in his body is potent. I'm worried you won't be able to detoxify it and might even become infected with the poison since your cultivation rank is really low. You should think about this again. You're risking your life to obtain our primitive inscriptions."

Haleth advised James to rethink his decision, worried a genius cultivator would be sacrificed in a failed attempt to save Yered.

James replied calmly, "I'll give it a try since I'm already here."

With his exceptional physical body, he could even withstand Yui's attacks. Thus, James was confident about surviving regardless of how potent the Flammae poison was. At most, he would only suffer some injuries.

"Since you've already decided, let's go." Haleth gestured at the flames. Then, he waved his hands, splitting the sea of flames in half.

A safe staircase appeared before them, leading into a deep pit. A mysterious formation was set up at the bottom, and a young man could be seen sitting in the center.

The man had striking red hair and was dressed in a red robe. The aura emanating from his body was potent.

James had never sensed such a potent aura before and was in awe. Although Qairo was also at the Quasi Bliss Rank, his aura was not as strong because of his condition.

He was in shock after he realized the sea of flames in the area was formed from the energy emitting from Yered's body. He took a deep breath and murmured, "The Dark World sure is full of hidden powerhouses. So many races are secretly hiding powerful members from the public eye. If Yered recovers, he'll gain a foothold in the Dark World."

Haleth said, "Go ahead. Yered's aura is unstable, and any changes will cause a huge shift in him. Be careful not to irritate him. You won't survive if he attacks."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5397-James gently massaged his forehead. "How troublesome."

Despite how complicated it would be, James wanted to give it a go to acquire the Flammae's primitive inscriptions.

He slowly descended the staircase and soon reached the bottom of the pit.

Before James could get close, Yered's aura became chaotic. The flames around them suddenly rolled up like a tsunami, inching closer to James.

James sensed the terrifying aura approaching him but could not dodge it in time.

He was knocked away and crashed into the ground. Just Yered's aura alone was enough to injure him.

"He's here to help you, Yered." Haleth's voice resounded in the pit, reassuring Yered.

The flames slowly calmed down and subsided. The young man inside the formation opened his eyes, and a red- colored light flashed in his pupils.

James climbed up from the ground with difficulty. Although he had sustained some injuries, they were not fatal, so he disregarded them.

Haleth only allowed James to get close because he noticed his exceptional physical strength. He looked at James and asked, "Are you okay?"

"It's nothing serious."

After answering, James walked over to Yered. Yered looked at James and said lightly, "Leave. You can't heal my injuries."

"I'm already here, so give me a chance." James looked at Yered firmly.

Yered stared at James for a while.

"Don't turn me down again. Let me examine your injuries," said James.

Yered thought for a while then nodded hesitantly.

James raised his palm and placed it on Yered's forehead.

Yered's body temperature was unbelievably high. When James pressed his palm against Yered's forehead, his skin was scorched, and he found it hard to bear the pain.

However, he forcibly endured it.

James released a trace of power into Yered's body and examined his physical condition. After a while, he withdrew his hand and sat down with a frown.

Yered waited silently for the results.

Haleth, however, could not help but ask impatiently, "How is he? Can you help him with the Ulus and Ice Curse?"

"No," James replied without sugarcoating anything.

"Impossible! The Heavenly Secrets Pavilion told me it would work." Haleth was in disbelief. The Heavenly Secrets Pavilion had vast knowledge and knew everything. He found it hard to believe their solution was wrong.

“The Heavenly Secrets Pavilion wasn’t wrong. However, it’ll only work if someone at the same rank as Yered takes action. Unfortunately, my cultivation rank is too far from his.” James shook his head.

Haleth’s face filled with disappointment.

James suddenly said, “I do have an idea, though.”

Yered looked at James hopefully.

Haleth’s face lit up again. He asked, ‘What is it?’

James answered, “I can help, but I have a request.”

Haleth hurriedly agreed, “Go on. As long as it’s something the Flamma Race can do, we’ll do it.”

James replied, “If I can help Yered recover, I’d like a favor from him. In the future, he’ll have to help me once when I need him.”

“Sure.” Yered nodded, agreeing to the condition.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5398-A powerhouse at the Holy Celestial Rank’s Consummation was on par with the Four Ancient Race’s Leaders. Yered was really powerful, and gaining a favor from him would be useful.

“How are you going to help him recover?” Haleth asked impatiently.

James explained, “It’s really simple. He must cultivate the Glacies’ primitive inscriptions and master the Ice Curse.

Then, he can use the Cold Energy to suppress the Flammae poison in his body.

able to step into the Quasi Bliss Rank.”

Haleth barked, “What a joke! The five elements are incompatible. Nobody has ever cultivated more than one element at the same time. Moreover, ice and fire are naturally repellent to each other.”

James looked at Yered and asked, “Are you willing to be tormented by the Flammae poison for the rest of your life? Will you stay here forever? Or will you give it a chance? As long as you succeed, you'll be able to reach great heights in your cultivation."

Yered's brows furrowed.

James persuaded, "Although my cultivation rank is low, I'm quite experienced in Elemental Powers. I can provide you with proper guidance to help you out. However, it'll be up to you to cultivate the Glacies' primitive inscriptions and the Ice Curse."

"You have to think about this carefully, Yered. This isn't child's play. At least you're still alive right now. If you fail, you'll die," Haleth advised him.

"I'd like to give it a try," said Yered.

James smiled at his resolution and said, "I've already cultivated the Glacies' primitive inscriptions and Ice Curse. I need you to teach me the Flammae's primitive inscriptions so I can merge them. While I'm cultivating, you can learn from me."

"Alright," Yered replied.

While James cultivated, Yered could watch from the aside and gain more insight.

Seeing that the two had already reached an agreement, Haleth stopped intervening and left the place.

James and Yered sat in lotus position, less than a hundred meters apart from each other.

Yered looked at James and said, "Your physical body is impressive. You resisted the fluctuation of my aura. I'm guessing your physical body is at the Holy Celestial Rank. Yet, your cultivation rank is only at the Petit Celestial Rank.

What a weirdo."

"You're flattering me," James chuckled and said, "Let's get started. First, teach me the Flammae's primitive inscriptions."

Yered refused, saying, "There's no rush. Although you haven't done anything yet, I can't just accept your help. Your physical body is injured right now. I can help enhance your body. After this, the passive energy in your body will be released, and your flesh will become stronger. However, the process is quite painful. I'm not sure whether you can bear it." James' face lit up with joy. Excited, he said, "Let's do it. I'll be fine as long as I don't die."

"Even though your body can endure the process, your soul won't be able to.

This will be slightly troublesome," Yered said with a frown.

"Don't worry. Unless my body perishes, my soul will be fine," said James.

Yered was relieved by his words. He raised his hand, and a few magical inscriptions appeared from his palm. The inscriptions fluttered around and transformed into flames.

The flames floated over to James and surrounded him.

James immediately felt the heat around him. It felt like he was being trapped inside an inferno. His flesh was scorched, and the pain was excruciating. Even the deepest parts of his soul ached.

Yered adjusted the flames to the most suitable temperature and used the Flammae Curse to burn James' body. Although he was not trying to do any harm, James' skin still became red from the scorching flames.

Magical energy was released from James' body and began to repair his injuries.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5399-A portion of the energy integrated into his blood, enhancing his bloodline power.

Throughout the process, James was in constant pain and fainted a few times.

However, Yered could sense James' vitality was still strong, so he did not stop.

Time passed day by day.

Yered successfully used the Flammae Curse to temper and enhance James' body, Latrusse and Lemuel had limited powers and, thus, were unable to completely refine the materials. They only managed to mold them into a body.

On the other hand, Yered was strong enough to refine them, allowing the Genesis Paths within him to integrate with his body.

James' physical defense had grown even more potent. He would not sustain any substantial damage if he were to go against Yefteros' attacks again.

After a long time, Yered finally dispersed the flames.

James continued sitting in a lotus position as his body adjusted to the changes.

His scorched skin also slowly cooled down and healed.

After some time, he stood up and stretched his body. He had gained even greater control over his body.

"Thank you." James clasped his hands.

Yered waved his hand and said, "You're welcome. Although your body is strong now, your cultivation rank is too low. You can't mobilize the full strength of your physical body yet. You should work hard to improve your cultivation as much as possible. With a physical body like yours, you'll be almost invincible in the Dark World once you enter the Holy Celestial Rank." "How strong is my physical body now?" James asked curiously.

After giving it a thought, Yered replied, 'You're unrivaled against anyone under the Holy Celestial Rank. With your physical body right now, only powerhouses at the Holy Celestial Rank's Consummation or someone with a legendary weapon can hurt you.'

James was pleased with his strength. Now, he could easily walk around the Dark World without fearing for his life. Even though his cultivation rank was still low, his physical strength was unparalleled. Only a handful of people in the Dark World could hurt him.

Despite that, his cultivation rank was still lacking. He could only guarantee his survival, but other than that, he had no confidence in beating powerful opponents.

After speaking, Yered waved his hand, and some magical inscriptions appeared before James.

“These are our race’s primitive inscriptions. Every race’s primitive inscriptions are very mysterious and can’t be taught. You’ll have to comprehend them yourself.”

James looked at the primitive inscriptions happily.

“TH give it a go,” James said with excitement.

Yered silently sat down in a lotus position and stared at James. He knew nothing of the mysterious person before him. Although James was only at the Petit Celestial Rank’s late stage, he mastered the Glacies’ primitive inscriptions and Ice Curse. It was not hard to see his comprehension abilities were out of the ordinary.

Thus, Yered was looking forward to seeing James merge the two elements. It was his only way of being saved. After recovering, Yered wanted to make a name for the Flammae. By then, even the Four Ancient Races would be weaklings to him.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5400-Yered gave the Flammae’s primitive inscriptions to James.

James began to study the inscriptions wholeheartedly. He was already proficient in the Genesis Paths of the outside planes. The Genesis Paths had evolved from the primitive inscriptions of the various major races in the Dark World. If he were to understand the primitive inscriptions, he could improve significantly.

To save some time, James deployed a time formation.

Soon, he had a primary understanding of the Flammae’s primitive inscriptions.

Then, he used them to cultivate a Primitive True Fire.

Initially, the Primitive Cold Energy in James’ body did not repel the Primitive True Fire. However, as the Primitive True Fire grew more substantial, the two elements began to repulse each other.

James had to stop cultivating due to the repulsion between the two elements.

Yered could not contain his excitement. James had arrived at a critical point. He was at the threshold of gaining a complete understanding of the Flammae's primitive inscriptions.

After taking a short break, James continued to cultivate.

He had experience with elements since he cultivated the Elemental Inversion.

Although the Elemental Inversion was much weaker, the same principle could be applied.

James slowly began to balance the two forces in his body. At the same time, his understanding of the Flammae's primitive inscription grew more profound.

"How is this possible? How can he cultivate two elements at the same time?

How are the two incompatible elements tolerating each other?"

Yered was shocked and wanted to satisfy his curiosity. However, he held back since James had reached a crucial point in his cultivation.

James had already comprehended the Flammae's primitive inscriptions and was cultivating the Flammae Curse. If he were disturbed now, his efforts would be in vain.

Mysterious inscriptions surrounded James' body and rapidly transformed and reorganized themselves. Gradually, a magical Fire Energy materialized in his body.

The Fire Energy confronted the Cold Energy in his body, almost causing an explosion. However, instead of an explosion, a new power formed after the collision.

"That's the Flammae Curse. His comprehension ability is truly terrifying. He managed to gain a thorough understanding of our primitive inscriptions in such a short period." Yered was amazed.

After a while, the flames around James' body disappeared. He restrained his powers, and the two forces in his body disappeared.

To Yered, it looked like the power in James' body disappeared. However, James had submerged his powers into his magical formation. His Tressencia Completare Art grew stronger when he learned more inscriptions.

James stood up, stretched his body, and looked at surprised Yered. He asked, "What do you think? Did you learn anything?"

Yered thought for a while but had not learned anything significant. He shook his head and said, "I didn't understand anything. Could you explain it to me?" James replied, "The five elements will naturally repel each other, but a few mutually reinforce each other. There's a balance point between the elements. As long as you master the balance point, the five elements can coexist in your body simultaneously. Also, the more elements you master, the higher your control over them.

"With your potential and strength, it should be easy to master the Glacies' primitive inscriptions and Ice Curse.

Then, you'll be able to suppress the Flammae poison in your body.

"You don't even need to expel the Flammae poison. You'll be fine if you can find a balance between your Cold Energy and the poison.