The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5445-Zavis gently shook his head in response.

A woman in a blue dress suddenly stepped forward and interrupted them. "I've seen the oil lamp before."

James looked at Livie, who he considered a daughter.

Livie had been staying in the Endlos Plane and never left the Heavenly Court.

She explained, "In the first battle against the Emyr Army, Emperor Raiah summoned an oil lamp and used it to illuminate the battlefield. With the oil lamp, he gave precise directions to the Endlos Army and forced the Emyr Army to retreat."

"He summoned the oil lamp?" James frowned and asked, "Does that mean Emperor Raiah has possession of the oil lamp?"

Livie shook her head and said, "I'm not sure. You should ask Emyr Island's Young Master. He probably knows a thing or two about it."

The Emyr Island's Young Master, Wynton, had stayed behind in the Endlos Plane, doing good deeds to compensate for the harm they had caused in the past.

James looked at Thea and said, "You stay here for now. I'll go see Wynton."

Thea nodded lightly in response.

James scanned the Endlos Plane for Wynton's whereabouts. After locating Wynton, he disappeared from the Heavenly Court.

In a certain universe within the Endlos Plane, there was a very ordinary planet.

The civilization on the planet was not advanced. It was even more primitive than the Earth before the technological era. They were far from entering the cultivation era, and even the living beings were still ordinary mortals.

In a certain country on the planet, there was a clinic with a very long queue waiting to see a doctor. A man and woman were working restlessly in the clinic to treat their patients.

James quietly appeared inside the clinic. When he appeared, the man inside the clinic immediately noticed him.

The woman also sensed James. She rushed over to him and shouted happily, "James! You're back!"

The woman was none other than Zella, who had a prophetic ability and could see glimpses of the future.

"We're closed. Come back tomorrow." Wynton dispersed the queue outside the clinic and then closed the door. He walked over to James and said smilingly, "I haven't seen you in a long time."

James nodded lightly and said, "Yeah. It's been a while since we last met."

"So, what brings you here?" asked Wynton.

Wynton had been traveling around the Endlos and knew a lot about the plane. He was aware James had been away from the Endlos Plane for some time. Something had to have happened for him to visit so suddenly.

James said, "Let's find a place to sit."

"Alright." Wynton nodded.

The three went to an ordinary restaurant to chat. Countless drinks and appetizers were served on their table. James and Wynton sat across each other, whereas Zella stood aside.

James turned to the side and said, "Please have a seat as well, Zella," James turned to the side and urged Zella.

"Okay." Zella sat down.

James turned back to Wynton and inquired, "How have you been in the past few years?"

Wynton replied, "I've been traveling the Endlos Plane and doing good deeds to compensate for the damage the Emyr Island has done. After some time, I've already gotten accustomed to this life."

James looked at him and said, "I can see you haven't made much progress in your cultivation. You're not even at the Sovereign Rank yet."
