The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5491-“Sure! I can do that.” Quattro put away the inscription securely.

After he had given all the instructions, James started moving away. He held the oil lamp up and traveled quickly through the area within the formation.

Upon reaching the edge of the formation, James came to a halt. He carefully observed and made sure no one was waiting outside the formation. Then, James swiftly exited the formation and continued traveling as fast as he could to get out of this area.

As soon as he had put some distance between himself and the Prison World, James contacted Quattro by using the inscription.

“Have you gotten out, Quattro?”

A short while later, he could hear a voice in his head. “I think so...?”

“Where are you now?”

“I don’t know. It’s pitch black around me, and I don’t see anybody here.”

James knitted his brows.

The Dark World spanned across an incredibly large area. Even Holy Celestial Rank cultivators could not confirm how big or vast the Dark World was.

James had no information about Quattro’s current location. It would be tough to find him even though they could communicate through the inscription.

After a moment’s consideration, James said, “Just pick a route and start traveling in that direction. Hopefully, you will come across one of the Primevals’ territories. Find out the name of the territory you’ve arrived in and let me know the name. I’ll head over to meet you.”

“Okay!”

After their final voice transmission, James scoured the area and found a quiet, desolate spot. He set up a time formation. Then, James began deciphering and learning the primitive inscriptions of the Metallum, Silva, and Tellus Races within the time formation.

Meanwhile, James was waiting for an update from Quattro.

Once he had met up with Quattro, James planned to head to the Heavenly Secrets Pavilion's headquarters at the Central Plane to meet Qiyana and Jada.

Ever since he had acquired the Primal Mantra, James had benefited a lot from the knowledge of the book. With that knowledge, James could simplify almost any type of obscure or mysterious inscriptions. Once simplified, it would be easier to learn any inscription.

The knowledge could also be applied to the primitive inscriptions from the Dark World. The only difference was that it would take a more complicated and longer process to break down and simplify these complex inscriptions.

James focused on his training inside the time formation. As he learned and understood the inscriptions originating from the three races better, James could slowly generate those three primitive elemental powers in his body.

Previously, James had learned and mastered the Elemental Inversion. That experience was somewhat helpful in James' efforts at mastering all the elemental powers.

In the blink of an eye, an epoch had passed in the outside world.

Within the time formation, James had spent several epochs on his training. He had managed to advance to the middle stage of the Great Celestial Rank during that time.

Moreover, he had fully mastered the primitive inscriptions of the Metallum, Silva, and Tellus Races.

In a seated position, James generated and unleashed the primitive elemental powers fully. The powers produced potent, mysterious inscriptions in the form of curses.

When the Elemental Curses were fully formed, tremors could be felt thousands of meters away. As the powers of the curses radiated to James' surroundings, they instantly destroyed the space around him.

James heaved a deep breath. 'The powers generated from the interaction of the five elemental powers are extremely potent...'

He stopped generating the elemental powers and concealed his aura. Then, he undid the time formation and checked how much time had passed in the outside world.

After a while, he frowned slightly and muttered in a low voice, "It's been an epoch. Hasn't Quattro come across any Primevals?"

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5492-With Quattro's abilities, he should have been able to find at least one of the Primevals' territories after so much time had passed.

Once Quattro checked which race was staying at the area he had stumbled upon, James would be able to determine his location and find him.

However, James had not received any news from Quattro during the last epoch.

"Where has that black piggy disappeared to?!"

James produced the inscription and tried to contact Quattro. A few seconds later, he heard Quattro's voice.

"Hey, Dragon General! I forgot to get in touch with you. By the way, where are you right now?"

"I just finished my training, you forgetful piggy. Where are you? I'll come to you now," James said bitingly.

He did not buy Quattro's excuse. James was convinced Quattro had purposely not contacted him all this time.

"I'm at the Central Plane. I am currently staying at the Dieux Academy," Quattro replied.

"Stay where you are. I'll be there in a while."

James took a Boundarybreaker Rune from his pocket and used it to travel to the Central Plane.

Meanwhile, a peculiar-looking black pig sat comfortably on a chair inside a mansion found at Mount Caden. While a ravishing lady was giving it a massage, another beautiful lady was feeding the pig some spiritual berries.

“Sir Quattro, when are you going to teach me those techniques?”

The lady in front put down the berries and placed her arms around Quattro’s neck. She smiled shyly at him.

A huge grin hung on Quattro’s face.

He had arrived at the Central Plane for a long time now.

While exploring this region, Quattro had learned of James’ full background and some of his extraordinary feats. He also found out that James was an elder of the Dieux Academy.

Since he had nowhere else to go, Quattro eventually wandered to the Dieux Academy. After he demonstrated some of his skills and powers, Quattro was swiftly appointed to be an elder at the Dieux Academy and was allowed to stay at Mount Caden.

As an elder, Quattro had accepted hundreds of disciples, who were all women.

He enjoyed his life at the Dieux Academy so much that he wished to stay there forever.

Quattro had completely forgotten about James. If James had not gotten in touch with him, Quattro would have continued living quietly at the academy.

On the other hand, James had used a few more Boundarybreaker Runes and reached the Central Plane fairly soon.

With his true appearance, James headed toward the Dieux Academy.

As soon as he had arrived outside the academy, some disciples who were on patrol duty stopped him.

“Sir, outsiders are not allowed to enter the grounds of the Dieux Academy.”

None of the Dieux Academy’s disciples recognized James since he had adopted another appearance during his time as an elder at the academy.

‘Tm James Caden,” James replied flatly.

Upon hearing the handsome stranger’s words, the Dieux Academy’s members had looks of bewilderment on their faces. They reflexively took a few steps backward.

James paid no mind to their reactions and went straight into the Dieux Academy.

He made his way to Mount Caden.

As soon as he reached Mount Caden, Xhemal and Jorah materialized at the foot of the mountain and greeted him.

“James, you’re back.” Xhemal beamed warmly at him.

Jorah began, “Almost all of the planes have learned about your existence after what happened here last time. Multiple clans and forces are looking for you right now.” James responded calmly, “I’ll take care of those people, one by one, soon.”

‘You’re back, Dragon General!’

Quattro came running to James with a sunny smile on his face. “I have been waiting here for so long. You took such a longtime.” “Enough with the small talk. We need to go now.”
