The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5493-James wanted to depart for the headquarters of the Heavenly Secrets Pavilion as soon as possible.

“Where are we going?” Quattro grumbled, “I don’t want to leave. I want to stay at Dieux Academy.”

Quattro had hundreds of female disciples at the Dieux Academy. Although his disciples were not particularly gifted or smart, they nonetheless shared the similarity of having a beautiful face.

Quattro enjoyed his life there being constantly surrounded by gorgeous women.

“Just come with me. You won’t regret it.” James knew he needed to provide Quattro with some type of motivation to persuade the latter to come along.

“What’s in it for me?” Quattro’s eyes glistened with excitement.

“You’ll get to meet beautiful ladies,” James replied.

“Okay!”

Quattro nodded vigorously.

James turned his gaze toward Xhemal. “I have some urgent business to attend to, so I can’t stay here for long. I’ll get going now.”

After he had excused himself, James took Quattro and left Mount Caden.

However, just as the two of them exited the Dieux Academy’s entrance, a beautiful lady in a white dress materialized in the distance. The lady had an elegant, ethereal air about her.

“You finally showed yourself, James.”

Lady Wikolia beamed a sweet smile at James.

Quattro was momentarily stunned as he looked at Lady Wikolia. When he had finally snapped to his senses, Quattro said chirpily, “What an exquisite beauty!

You weren't lying about the beautiful ladies, General! I'm going to make her mine."

Lady Wikolia was very displeased with what Quattro had just said. She looked at him with contempt. "What is this weird pig doing here? Get lost!"

"Haha! She is a feisty one. I like that!"

Quattro was not offended in the slightest. Instead, he gave a hearty laugh. Then, he teleported and reappeared before Lady Wikolia.

Before she could respond, Quattro had placed a seal over her body. Lady Wikolia noticed that she could not move or use any of her powers.

"What?!"

Lady Wikolia's expression darkened as she finally realized she was in trouble.

Quattro carried Lady Wikolia on his back and looked at James. "Dragon General, where are we going now?"

James narrowed his eyes as he stared at the sight before him. "What are you planning to do with her?"

Quattro replied cheerfully, "I plan to settle down on a beautiful mountain within the Central Plane and start my own group there. This lady just caught my eye. I am going to make her my wife!"

James said unhurriedly, "That person, Lady Wikolia, is a cunning and vicious woman. I died in my previous life because of her devious plans. Who knows?

She might just try to slit your stomach open and steal your kidneys when you're deep asleep at night..."

His words appeared to give Quattro quite a scare. Quattro immediately flung Lady Wikolia onto the ground and gave her a hefty kick.

"Pfft!"

James burst out laughing.

Lady Wikolia fell heavily on the ground and even rolled a few times due to the force of Quattro's kick. Then, she slowly climbed to her feet. Her clothes were dirty and disheveled.

James walked over to her.

He looked down at Lady Wikolia with an unfeeling gaze and said, 'What tricks are you trying to play this time?'

Lady Wikolia had a woeful expression on her face. "Some groups and forces have formed alliances, and they are plotting to kill you. I came to warn you about it as soon as I detected your aura. Yet, you..."

Then, she started weeping softly.

James let out a snort. 'Well, it's all thanks to you that I've ended up in this situation.'

"James, my feelings for you are sincere, be it in our previous life or this life!

Can't you see it still?"

"Get lost!" James bellowed.

"I can help you!" Lady Wikolia explained, "I've looked into it. These groups based in the Central Plane may appear to have come from different planes of existence. However, these people are actually backed by those from the Dark World! For instance, even the Elysium Hall is actually backed by the Yefteros!

'You weren't backed by any of the forces from the Dark World when you established the Supremuseum. Even if I hadn't spread the news about the Ulu, you would have been exterminated at some point. That is because those from the Dark World won't allow a force they can't control to exist or grow.'

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5494-uring their last life. Despite her fame and high status, Lady Wikolia was willing to follow James around and listen to his commands.

However, all James ever cared about was his training and cultivation. He had not once shown any romantic interest in Lady Wikolia.

Lady Wikolia had spread the word that James possessed clues to the Ulus' location with the hopes of making him look her way.

She wanted to make James give up on being the lord of the Supremusseum.

Then, she could suggest that they go into hiding and live in seclusion.

Lady Wikolia had contacted all those cultivators back then.

In the worst-case scenario, James might have been severely injured. However, Lady Wikolia would come to James' rescue just in time and bring him to safety.

That was her initial plan.

Unfortunately, things did not happen as Lady Wikolia had envisioned. She had no control over those cultivators who attacked James.

"Just leave."

James looked at Lady Wikolia. "For old times' sake, I won't kill you today. However, my patience has run out as of today. I won't show you any mercy the next time we cross each other's path."

"James, you're so cruel and heartless!"

Tears streamed from Lady Wikolia's eyes.

James turned his eyes to Quattro. "Undo the seal. We're letting her leave."

Quattro removed the seal from Lady Wikolia's body, albeit reluctantly.

After she had regained her powers, Lady Wikolia teleported and vanished from the spot.

"Where are we going, Dragon General?" Quattro asked.

"The Heavenly Secrets Pavilion's headquarters."

The two of them departed for the universe where the Heavenly Secrets Pavilion was located right away. A few moments later, they reached their destination.

The Heavenly Secrets Pavilion was found at the very core of that inconspicuous universe, which was protected by multiple layers of powerful formations.

Since James had obtained the token from the Heavenly Secrets Pavilion, he and Quattro had no difficulty in passing through those formations.

As soon as James stepped foot at the Heavenly Secrets Pavilion's territory, Shorru and the others came out to meet him.

"You're back so soon." Shorru, the Deputy Pavilion Master, asked, "Did you manage to find the oil lamp?"

"Mhm." James nodded. "I managed to find the oil lamp, and I used it to enter the Prison World. Also, I have acquired the primitive inscriptions for the remaining three races."

"Is that right?" Shorru widened his eyes in surprise. "Our group hasn't had any luck in finding the clues to the oil lamp's whereabouts. Yet, you found the oil lamp and even went to the Prison World already?"

Qiyana's face brightened up as well. "You have the primitive inscriptions of the three remaining Elemental Primevals?"

"Mhm."

Suddenly, Qiyana furrowed her brows. She muttered to herself, "Even though he has those primitive inscriptions, it is still an extremely difficult process to learn and perform the Elemental Curse."

"By the way, this is..." Shorru asked curiously as he spotted Quattro who was standing beside James.

Meanwhile, Quattro was staring at Qiyana and Jada with a lustful gaze.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5495-Both Qiyana and Jada were frowning as they felt Quattro's gaze roaming over their bodies.

Quattro eventually noticed how the beautiful ladies were looking at his form with distaste. He cleared his throat and said haughtily, "I don't appreciate you looking at me with those disrespectful gazes." James explained, "He's Quattro

Zeus, an ancient beast born in the Prison World. He's the first and only one of his kind, and he calls his kind the Aveswines."

Quattro said nonchalantly, "Soon, I will give birth to many more Aveswines, and we will populate all these planes and even the Dark World!"

Then, he fixed Qiyana and Jada with a piercing gaze. "Would the two of you be interested in becoming the wives of the primogenitor of the Aveswines?"

Upon hearing his question, Qiyana and Jada instinctively took a few steps backward.

Quattro exploded with indignation, "Hey! Why are you guys moving away, and what's with the expressions on your faces?! I am an extremely competent cultivator, and I am also the founder of my race!"

James paid no mind to Quattro's complaints since he had more urgent issues to deal with. He asked, "Did anything happen after I left?" Shorru replied, "I'll tell you more about it at the main hall."

Shorru led James and Quattro to the main hall soon afterward. He sat down on his usual seat and asked, "After obtaining the oil lamp, did you receive any news regarding my master?"

James replied, "Theron Terrell, the Pavilion Master of the Heavenly Secrets Pavilion, was reincarnated into the plane where I was born too. He was given the name of Xeraiah Fiadh in this life. Also, Zeno Lente, the Rune Arts Grandmaster of the Heavenly Secrets Pavilion, has been staying by his side."

Shorru breathed a sigh of relief. "That's great news. As long as Master is still alive, I'm sure he will return to us once he has regained his full powers."

"Tell me everything that's happened at the Central Plane and the Dark World recently."

A dark light flashed across James' eyes.

It was time for him to take revenge on his past enemies.

Shorru conjured a scroll and passed it to James.

"These are the information we've gathered so far after you left. Have a look."

James unrolled the scroll and started reading the contents carefully.

The situation at the Central Plane had changed ever since the time Halianor Yeftero showed up at the Dieux Academy and almost got into a battle with Lemuel.

Quite a number of the major forces began forming alliances. Most of these groups had bad blood with James since his previous life.

Even the Elysium Hall, which did not join the others in exterminating James back then, had formed an alliance with some groups this time.

James was reading about how almost all the major groups in the Central Plane were backed by different Primevals from the Dark World. However, only the leaders of these groups or clans had access to this highly classified information.

The Dieux Academy was the only group that remained neutral and was unaffiliated with any of the Primevals. They had maintained their stance and continued to take students of various backgrounds all this time.

Still, the academy acknowledged James as one of the academy's elders even until now. That was a clear indication that the Dieux Academy had chosen to be on James' side.

Shorru explained, "The Yefteros had somewhat bought into the stories about Theognostos. They have been trying to investigate and confirm its existence.

According to our information, the Yefteros postulated that the creator of Theognostos was most likely a cultivator who had been to the Halcyon Road.

The Primevals will probably not make their move for the time being since they're wary of Theognostos. So, things will be rather peaceful for you for now."

He continued, "Also, the Four Ancient Races and the major groups of Primevals have had some of their cultivators enter the Halcyon Road previously. Since you claim that Theognostos has cultivators who have advanced into the Transcendental Bliss Rank, then those who have been to the Halcyon Road may have achieved that rank too."

Shorru paused for a while and said, “With the Four Ancient Races as their leader, the Primevals have come up with a plan. They will instruct the groups in the Central Plane to attack you and drive you into a corner. Their goal is to lure the leader of Theognostos or other Transcendental Bliss Rank cultivators out through this plan.”

Shorru directed his gaze at James. “Only a few of us know that Theognostos is not real. It’ll be the end for you when they execute the plan.”

‘That depends...’

A faint smile flickered across James’ face.
