The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5671-He was looking at the Human Race's primitive inscriptions, which were also the simplest form of inscriptions.

Just then, those inscriptions began morphing. As they fused and recombined, those inscriptions demonstrated the knowledge of several signature skills.

James had heard about how the methods of using and incorporating the inscriptions from the first part were recorded in the second part.

By observing the changes in the inscriptions, James could tell a superior cultivator had created these signature skills after mastering the primitive inscriptions of the Human Race.

The signature skills described in the second part could produce lethal, potent effects. However, one must first master the Human Race's primitive inscriptions to be able to learn and practice these skills.

Yet, with the knowledge of the Human Race's primitive inscriptions, one could achieve a better understanding of the primitive inscriptions of other races and the knowledge of the paths.

With all that knowledge combined, that person could go on to create their own signature skill. The signature skills recorded in this scroll would be deemed less valuable.

James took a quick glance at the scroll. Then, he tossed it back toward the elderly man and said flatly, "There's nothing special written here. You can have it back."

The old man opened his mouth to say something, but James teleported and vanished from the spot.

In a flash, James appeared on another spiritual mountain. He could see another human cultivator from the Hagios Sect there.

The elderly man was also seated on the ground with a scroll placed before him.

James could tell that the forbidden inscriptions created by the founder of the Hagios Sect were most likely recorded in that scroll.

James went ahead and picked up the scroll.

As he unrolled the scroll, mysterious letters floated above the scroll before James' eyes.

These letters were similar to those James saw on the palace gate back at the deepest part of Halcyon Road. The only difference was in the arrangement of the letters.

After he was done looking at the letters, James put the scroll down at its original spot.

If it were before, James would have been interested in studying and deciphering these forbidden inscriptions.

However, he had learned the primitive inscriptions of all the different races from the Dark World after entering this library.

With his renewed enlightenment in this field of knowledge, it would be a relatively easy task for James to design and create inscriptions similar to the forbidden inscriptions.

Therefore, James did not see the need to study any new inscriptions at the moment.

Instead, James should focus on creating his distinctive inscriptions and path by using all the knowledge he had amassed. He needed to master these powers.

After that, he would need to improve his cultivation rank and powers to unleash the full powers of his inscriptions.

Although the items found on the ninth level of the Hagios Sect's library were very intriguing, James had no actual need for them.

Soon, he left the ninth level and returned to the eighth level of the library.

James saw Hershya as soon as he arrived on that level. The lady smiled faintly and said, "Master, I am done with my training. We can leave at any time."

"Alright."

James decided to bring Hershya along since he could use her help for his next mission.

After leaving the library, James planned to track down Xayvion and eliminate him. Only then could he travel back to present time and return home.

However, James had no information about Xayvion's current whereabouts.

He planned to visit the very end of Halcyon Road to look for clues to Xayvion's location. Also, James hoped to meet the superior cultivator they had come across at the Halcyon Road previously.

That man had deterred the mysterious star and shadow. He might be aware of Xayvion's whereabouts as Xayvion was most likely taken away by the unidentified shadow.

James was not too concerned about the powerful, mysterious shadow since the competent cultivators from this era would be able to handle it.

His main and only target was Xayvion, whose existence was still a major threat.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5672—James and Hershya exited the library.

James had spent a lot of time on his training within that realm, especially on mastering the primitive inscriptions of all the races existing in the Dark World.

As he came out of the library and undid the time formation, James detected that several entrapochs had passed in the outside world.

Just then, the leader of Hagios Sect, Landry, materialized a few steps away from James.

"James..." Landry smiled and greeted.

He paused briefly upon seeing Hershya, who was following behind James.

Then, he said smilingly, "Elder Hershya, have you ended your meditation too?"

"Mhm." Hershya gave a slight nod.

“Mr. Landry.” James asked, “Did anything happen while I was away in the library? Did Xayvion make any appearances during that time?”

Landry furrowed his brows. “Several incidents have happened in the Dark World during the last few entrapochs. However, I have not received any news about Xayvion’s current whereabouts or activities.”

“What happened during this period?” James asked.

Landry replied, “Someone started a secret organization and began assassinating skilled or genius cultivators belonging to the different races. They are bringing war and chaos to the Dark World.”

He continued, “The Hagios Sect has made several attempts to eradicate this evil organization. However, we have only ever been able to exterminate some of their regular members. We haven’t been able to remove any of their important members.”

A deep frown drew Landry’s brows together. “Even now, we still have no information about the appearance or background of the leader of this secret organization, the Morro Sect. Everything about this organization is still shrouded in mystery.”

“I won’t get involved in this issue since I shouldn’t be meddling in incidents happening in your era. My top priority is to exterminate Xayvion, who comes from the same era as me.

James took a pause and asked, “Do you happen to know who the man in the white robe that appeared on Halcyon Road is?”

Landry shook his head. “I don’t, but I can tell the man has most likely reached the Yuraeceon Rank.”

James knitted his brows.

Without any information about the man in the white robe, it would be difficult for James to look for him. Consequently, he would not be able to locate Xayvion.

“I’m going to try looking at the end of Halcyon Road,” James declared.

“Alright,” Landry responded.

“Master, I’ll go with you,” Hershya began.

“M-Master?!” Landry stuttered upon hearing her words.

Hershya was among the first batch of humans that came to exist in the Ancestral Site, just like the founder of Hagios Sect. Landry was aware of that.

He was surprised to hear Hershya addressing James as her master.

Despite Landry’s shocked reaction, James and Hershya teleported and reemerged outside the universe where Hagios Sect was located.

They exited the Anceralos and arrived in the vast darkness.

“Hershya, have you been to the end of the Halcyon Road? Do you know anything about the place?”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5673-“I have, but I haven’t explored the place thoroughly. Also, I can’t say for sure if there are any new areas or spaces beyond the edge of the Dark World or Halcyon Road. I haven’t had the opportunity to go and explore beyond the boundaries of the Dark World,” Hershya said.

Even a member of the Human Race’s primogenitors like Hershya had never traveled to lands beyond the Dark World.

James did not try to press her for more answers.

The two of them traveled swiftly through the space of the Dark World.

It felt as though a long time had passed when both of them arrived outside the entrance to Halcyon Road.

James entered the passage without the slightest bit of hesitation.

In the past, James could hardly keep himself straightened while being inside that space. However, he could now hold up well against the immense pressure on Halcyon Road.

Soon enough, they reached the place where James and the other cultivators had clashed with the strange star.

James stopped in that area.

“What’s wrong? Why are you stopping?” Hershya asked.

James pointed in a certain direction. “We came across those unknown beings at that spot last time. All of the top cultivators from the Dark World tried to stop those beings but to no avail. Even Landry, a cultivator on the sixth stage of Transcendental Bliss Rank, was instantly overpowered.” “If it weren’t because a mysterious, powerful cultivator had shown up at that time, a terrible fate might have come upon the Dark World.” James turned his eyes to Hershya.

“You’ve been around for a very long time. Have you not heard anything about the unknown beings living at the end of Halcyon Road?” Hershya replied, “I have lived for a long time now. I was born with weak, unremarkable cultivation, so I remained mostly within the Ancestral Site to train and enhance my powers.” “Even after the Hagios Sect was established, I had spent most of my time conducting closed-door meditations. Therefore, I am not very informed about the happenings of the outside world.” “I see.” James slowly nodded and scanned his surroundings.

Since there weren’t any paths existing in that space, James could not recreate the scenes of that day through the manipulation of paths.

Instead, James could only rely on his memories and conjure those scenes by producing and manipulating the paths himself.

As James conjured an image showing the scenes of the day, Hershya observed the events.

As soon as the man appeared and said a few words, everything turned white in the image. As the blinding white light faded, they could see that the mysterious star, shadow, and Xayvion were all gone.

The scenes stopped playing at that moment.

James looked at Hershya and asked, “Have you met that man before?”

Hershya nodded. “Mhm. I’ve seen him at the Ancestral Site before. Back then, I had only entered the Celestial Rank, but this man was already a Transcendental Bliss Rank cultivator. However, I couldn’t tell which stage of the Transcendental Bliss Rank he had achieved. Nevertheless, his powers at that time were far superior to mine at present.” “That’s very useful information,” James replied, “We’ll turn around and head back to the Ancestral Site instead. I’ll check the place by recreating the past scenes to find out who this man is and where he is right now. I have a few questions to ask him.”

Paths existed at the Ancestral Site, and everything was recorded in them. No matter how much time had passed, James could manipulate the paths existing in the surroundings to recreate any events that had happened in the past.

“Sure.” Hershya gave a slight nod.

“Who says you can leave so soon?”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5674-A voice with a chilling tone reverberated through the space.

James and Hershya turned their heads and glanced around them.

In a flash, over a hundred cultivators had materialized and surrounded the pair.

Those men were wearing black masks and black, long robes.

Their masks were made of special materials that made them completely impenetrable with Zen.

“These men are quite strong. You need to be careful.” Hershya detected the aura of those men surrounding them and quickly reminded James.

James had also released his Zen and sensed that those cultivators had reached the Transcendental Bliss Rank.

“Has there always been this many Transcendental Bliss Rank cultivators in this era?” James furrowed his brows.

He had learned quite a few things about this world after living in this era for quite some time.

One of them was that those at the Transcendental Bliss Rank were considered elite cultivators at this time. Only one or two of these cultivators could be found in powerful, established groups and organizations.

However, James was seeing at least a hundred Transcendental Bliss Rank cultivators before his eyes at the moment.

“Who are these people?” Hershya cast a glance in James’ direction.

James shrugged. “How would I know?” “Aren’t they after you?” “I thought they were after you!”

The two of them discussed in hushed voices as they were surrounded by those men.

“Are they from the Morro Sect?” James pondered aloud.

As Hershya observed those men a little longer, she seemed to notice something peculiar. “There’s something strange about their aura...” “Is that so? What have you noticed about their aura?” James asked.

Hershya said, “It seems these men haven’t truly achieved the level of the Transcendental Bliss Rank. They’ve probably used some sort of secret art to elevate their auras. Even though they are emanating auras of the Transcendental Bliss Rank, these men haven’t exactly acquired powers of that level.” “Let’s just kill these men and get this over with.”

James conjured the Supremusse Sword and looked at the men around them.

Just then, everyone could sense a wave of overwhelming aura coming from a distance.

Those masked men in black robes got down on one knee and chanted in unison, “All hail the Lord!”

Somewhere several hundred meters away, a man appeared and strode toward the crowd. As soon as he saw that man’s face, James furrowed his brows.

“James Caden... I’ve been waiting a long time for you to show up.”

Xayvion kept his hands on his back as he stopped a few steps away from the group of them. An enigmatic smile hung on his face.

“The fifth stage of Transcendental Bliss Rank.” Hershya swiftly detected Xayvion’s cultivation rank. “I can sense a dangerous aura from that man.”

“Xayvion Yeftero...”

The frown on James’ forehead grew deeper.

He did not expect to see Xayvion advance into the fifth stage of the Transcendental Bliss Rank, which was also the same stage Hershya was in, in merely a few entrapochs’ time.

Moreover, James knew Hershya was no match for Xayvion.

With the protection of the Obsidian Body, Xayvion was practically invincible against any attacks of signature skills or secret arts. Only attacks of pure force produced from the physical body could cause actual harm to Xayvion.

However, Hershya’s physical strength had yet to reach the fifth stage of the Transcendental Bliss Rank.

“How disappointing... I thought you would have made great progress in your training and cultivation since the last time we met. Yet, you are still in the Quasi Transcendental Bliss Rank now.”

Xayvion had a look of disapproval in his eyes.

“You’re the founder of Morro Sect?” James asked.

“I’m afraid you’ll never learn the answer to that.” Xayvion fixed him with an unfeeling gaze. It was clear he had no intention of answering that.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5675-Kill them!” Xayvion ordered.

The masked men unsheathed their swords almost simultaneously at Xayvion’s command.

“Do you really think you have what it takes to kill US?”

Hershya’s expression hardened. She leaped into the air and released an overpowering amount of aura. As she spun in mid-air, countless swords materialized from her auras.

Suddenly, those swords shot toward the masked men gathered around James and Hershya.

As each of those men was struck by a sword, an immense amount of sword energy exploded in their bodies. Those men were instantly annihilated.

It only took one hit from Hershya to exterminate those men.

Just then, a huge cloud of black aura rose from where those masked men were standing. That black aura drifted and gathered in a spot further away to form those masked men again.

“Huh?”

Hershya widened her eyes as she witnessed what had happened.

“Hahaha!” Xayvion threw his head back and laughed hysterically.

James knitted his brows.

“This is it for you, James Caden.” Xayvion walked toward him. He lifted his palm and conjured numerous inscriptions. Those inscriptions fused and formed a black sword.

“Stay behind me, Master. I’ll take care of him.” Hershya produced a sword as well.

‘Til handle him. He and I come from the same era. If you fight him, you will incur karma.”

James continued, “You should try and stop this army of monsters while I fight him.” Hershya had a look of concern in her eyes.

James had only reached the peak of the Quasi Transcendental Bliss Rank, whereas Xayvion was already on the fifth stage of the Transcendental Bliss Rank.

Hershya did not think that James would be able to hold up against Xayvion’s attacks.

At that moment, the masked men rushed toward James and Hershya. Hershya quickly lifted her sword and darted toward that group of cultivators.

Those masked men managed to surround Hershya once more and formed a formation around her. Even a competent cultivator like Hershya was temporarily held down by the formation.

Meanwhile, Xayvion had reached where James was standing. He placed the tip of his sword against James' chest.

"What's the matter? Are you not going to fight?"

Xayvion stared at James' face and smiled contemptuously.

"I should thank you for making me run all the way here back in this era.

Otherwise, I wouldn't have gotten all these great opportunities to improve my skills and powers. Since we are both from the same era, I'll allow you the chance to be reincarnated." "Do you think you can kill me now just because you've entered the fifth stage of Transcendental Bliss Rank?" James said calmly despite having a sword pointed over his heart.

"Then, can I ask you something before you kill me?"

James tried to lower Xayvion's guard. He wanted to find out more information about the strange star and shadow.

He knew instinctively that Xayvion's seemingly indestructible helpers and the improvement in his cultivation rank must be somewhat connected to the mysterious star and shadow.

"You can figure that out in your next life."

Xayvion tightened his grip over the sword handle and pushed the sword tip toward James' chest.

With how close they were facing each other, there was no way James could dodge Xayvion's attack.

Nonetheless, James vanished from the spot the moment Xayvion moved.
