

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6531-Wayra and Princess Lumia were taken aback by Matais' words.

Meanwhile, Matias stared at James and asked, "Why go through such elaborate measures, Forty-nine? What are you trying to achieve?"

Wayra and Princess Lumia looked at James warily.

James complimented, "As expected from the Jercente Sect's Young Master, you've got impressive insight. Since we're old friends, I'll stop the pretense and cut to the chase."

With his hands behind his back, James slowly approached, saying, "I didn't mean to demean or flaunt my power before you. Rather, I was simply seeking for like-minded comrades to join forces and change our chaotic worlds."

Wayra, Princess Lumia, and Matias all widened their eyes in disbelief. They wondered whether James meant to defy the Law of Tai Chi to the bitter end.

James said smilingly, "And of course, you three had passed my test. I believe you three are the allies that I'm looking for.

"I could've easily manipulated you with Curse Magic, turning you into my puppets. However, I refrained from doing so because you three are the rising stars of the Genesis Worlds. With your wisdom, talent, and ambition, you shouldn't be subjugated, nor should you be mere pawns in someone else's scheme."

As James' words sunk in the expressions of the trio underwent drastic shifts and they gasped.

After a moment of silence, Princess Lumia asked solemnly, "Do you understand the consequences of your actions?"

“Consequences?” James smiled faintly, and replied, “Never considered them, nor do I need to. My current standing far surpassed yours.”

The trio exchanged silent gazes.

They understood that with James’s current power, he could easily dominate the Genesis Worlds and vanquish all the different powerhouses, including Xachary, Gladwin, Hetsema, the world’s top sect, and even the Yaquis Sect’s Grand Patriarch, Yzert.

Yet, his ambition extended far beyond mere dominance of the Genesis Worlds. He sought to overturn the Law of Tai Chi and challenge its authority. In essence, he had only one opponent-Tai Chi.

However, Tai Chi was the master of the Genesis Worlds, revered as a god by all living beings. In a realm where Tai Chi reigns supreme, the notion of subverting such authority seems unfathomable.

James looked at them, and said, “Considering we’re acquainted, I’ll give you threw a choice. Either you stay and join our cause and heed my guidance, hopefully, we’ll find common ground. Alternatively, I’ll release you right away. However, we’ll be strangers and enemies from this point onward. Should our paths cross again, it will be a battle to the death and no mercy shall be spared.”

The trio raised their heads and looked at him in shock.

“Must it come to this?” Wayra furrowed his brows.

Princess Lumia asked, “Is there no other option?”

James smiled and posed a question in response, “Do you think you’re qualified to stay neutral?”

The two were taken aback by his answer, their words stuck in their throats.
