

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6656-“Watch your mouth, Galen,” Yuldra’s voice boomed, commanding him to back down.

Galen reluctantly complied. However, the woman standing next to James frowned and mocked, “Since you’re so good at drinking, you must be skilled in combat as well. Would you like to spar with us?”

Though her tone was gentle, everyone present heard the challenge she had extended toward James.

Seeing that Yuldra showed no signs of stopping it, James smiled and inquired, “How do you propose we fight?”

The woman scoffed, “Your mental battle with Faela was just child’s play. We’ll engage in actual combat, allowing fate to decide our life and death.

Yuldra immediately warned, “Sasha...”

James held up his hand, interrupting Yuldra’s words. He turned to Sasha and said, “You’re also at the Ninth Xaeclon Rank? Very well, let’s have some fun.”

Sasha replied coldly, “I’m not alone. My husband will join as well.”

Galen, positioned behind Yuldra, stepped forward.

“Two of you are at the Xaeclon Rank, yet you’re trying to gang up on him?” Do you not have any regard for me and my husband?” Herodias’ depression darkened as she voiced her dissatisfaction.

“If it’s a fight you want, we will entertain you.” Yegor stood up with a sigh.

Sasha looked at Yegor and Herodias. She squinted and asked, “Disciples from the Tirta Sect?”

Galen sneered with an arrogant expression, “Sanctimonious beings of Zymurgy? Sure, let’s fight!”

James stood up and interjected, “The challenge was directed at me, not you two.”

Herodias interrupted him, saying smilingly, "You've already endured enough, James. Leave this one to us."

"Indeed. It's our turn to flex our muscles. Just sit back and watch while enjoying your drink," Yegor added, his fighting spirit ablaze.

James chuckled softly after hearing their words. He understood the couple was worried he might be unable to stand against two opponents at the Ninth Xaeclon Rank. After all, he was only at the Fifth Xaeclon Rank. Hence, they stepped in and wanted to shield him from potential harm.

Yuldra set aside his cup and said smilingly, "Friendly sparing is fine, but let's not disrupt our harmony. Have your fun, but don't go too far."

Galen and Sasha exchanged glances, then leaped into the void and assumed fighting stances.

Yegor and Herodias exchanged smiles before following suit, ascending into the void.

The two couples emanated formidable strength, staring at each other as the battle was about to break out.

Suddenly, Galen roared and initiated an attack. His Historial Power morphed into a massive palm, darting directly at Yegor and Herodias.

Yegor unleashed a burst of righteous aura to defend against the Historial Poer, resulting in a thunderous collision.

Subsequently, the two couples engaged in relentless combat, their skirmish echoing through the void.

The ferocious clash between Tirta Power and Historial Power, the intense showdown between powerhouses at the Ninth Xaeclon Rank, sent shockwaves rippling through nearby star clusters and planets.

Amid this chaos, Yuldra smiled and raised his wine glass to James. "While they battle, let's enjoy our drinks. Cheers."

James accepted the gesture and joined Yuldra, clinking glasses before indulging in a hearty gulp.

Suddenly, Yuldra asked, "Have you had the pleasure of meeting Yianni?"

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6657-James paused for a moment, then nodded. "I met him, but it was only his remnant soul."

Yuldra frowned and further inquired, "A remnant soul? Then, it must reside within you, right? Otherwise, how else would you have obtained his Marciais Soul and Marciais Power."

James acknowledged with a slight nod. "You're right. However, I haven't fully integrated the Marciais Soul with myself yet, hence..."

Yuldra chuckled, "Even if you do, you'll only reach the Ninth Xaeclon Rank."

Marciais Power and Historial Power are created by living beings. Natural powers are much different. Without the recognition of the Great Historial Land, their levels can't be determined, and you won't be able to enter the Daeclon Rank."

James frowned and asked, "Aren't you at the Daeclon Rank?"

Yuldra confirmed, "Yeah. However, I didn't enter the Daeclon Rank with pure Historial Power. I fused Taishi Powers with it."

"I see." James was slightly surprised by the revelation.

"What else do you think we've been fighting for? It has always been about the level of our powers." Yuldra smiled with a tinge of sorrow.

"Wasn't it because Zymurgy deceived you guys?"

Yuldra took a deep breath and replied, "Of course, it was part of their scheme."

Because Zymurgy obstructed our path of ascension, we had to take the risk to venture into the Great Historial Land.

"And we're also creatures with dignity, integrity, and pride. Since Zymurgy didn't provide us with ample cultivation resources to enter the Daeclon Rank, we created our own, hoping to be independent. That way, we could maintain our dignity and become stronger without any constraints."

James wore a surprised expression as he gained an understanding of the past.

In essence, Zymurgy instigated conflict between the two major forces by exploiting their eagerness to infiltrate the Great Historial Land and identify the powers they had cultivated. As long as Historial Power or Marciais Power could be acknowledged as one of the three vital energies, the living beings cultivating them would be able to break into the Daeclon Rank.

With the strength of the Daeclon Rank, they would finally have to stand as equal Zymurgy and have the strength to rival them.

It was a grand plan and dream that was completely ruined due to the mysterious sealing power.

James looked at Yuldra and inquired again, "Since there was already a plan, why resort to fighting to death? Can't both powers be acknowledged together?"

Yulda explained bitterly, "It's complicated. First, the Great Historial Land's teleportation power was only enough for one person. Secondly, having our powers acknowledged would require a Genesis Soul. Our faction brought one, but the Marciais Power faction didn't. Otherwise, you wouldn't have had the chance to obtain the Marciais Soul."

"So it's the faction cultivating Marciais Power that caused all this trouble?"

James sighed.

Yuldra replied, "Not really. Just because they didn't bring a Genesis Soul doesn't mean they couldn't return anytime to get it. It would just take a little bit more time. Our side was eager and wanted to succeed as soon as possible. That's how the war of the Greater Realms broke out."

After hearing Yuldra's explanation, James slowly lifted his head toward the void.

The fight between the two couples had reached their highest point. Tirta Power, righteous aura, and Historial Power clashed violently, causing countless planets to be destroyed. Miraculously, their forces managed to avoid the mountain where James and Yuldra were located.

Yuldra remarked, "It's an intense battle. They're quite evenly matched, just like our past battles in the Greater Realms."

James inquired further, "How did you escape from the mysterious sealing power?"

"With this, of course," Yuldra replied with a smile, stretching out an arm to reveal an Energy Soul Pearl that shimmered with gray lights."

At that moment, one-half of James' golden body began to churn restlessly.

Suddenly, the Yuraeceon Genesis Bell emerged and emitted a radiant light with a soft hiss.

"That's...the Historial Soul Pearl?" James frowned.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6658-Yuldra confirmed with a smile, "That's right. This is known as the Historial Soul Pearl, left behind by the founder of Historial Power."

Lesia suddenly sent James a telepathic message, saying, "Seize the pearl and fuse it at once, Master. It's a rare opportunity."

This time, however, James did not heed Lesia's advice. Instead, he smiled calmly and gently pushed the Historial Soul Pearl away.

With furrowed brows, Yuldra asked, "You don't want it?"

James replied smilingly, "I do, but I can't just take it for nothing. I do not deserve it until you're freed from this seal."

Yuldra burst into laughter.

Confused, James inquired, "What's so funny, sir?"

"You don't want to take it for free? It seems my old friend was right about you.

Not only do you possess willpower and strength, but you also are a man of virtue," Yuldra chuckled while pointing at James.

James grinned and asked, "This old friend you speak of, is her name, Thea? Or perhaps, do you know her as the Yin governor?"

Yuldra stared at James in shock.

"I was right. To be honest, she's my wife," James said with a smile.

Yuldra's body trembled in shock at the revelation. Then, he asked, "You...you're her husband?"

James nodded and said smilingly, "She accompanied me to the Ying World but left before me. And I."

Suddenly, Yuldra asked, "Are you aware that she's pregnant?"

Startled, James asked, "She's pregnant?"

Yuldra smiled bitterly and said, "Uh...how did you not know something so important? Aren't you supposed to be her husband?"

James immediately rose and said worriedly, "If that's the case, it'll be risky for her to venture into the Great Historial Land."

Yuldra looked at James and said, "She's doing it for the sake of you and the child. She seemed confident you would come and head to the Great Historial Land to pave the path for you."

"After all, what lies within the Great Historial Land is still a mystery as no living being has ever set foot inside."

James frowned upon hearing this and said worriedly, "But she's pregnant, I can't let her."

Yuldra interrupted him, "My child, you can't enter the Great Historial Land with your current strength."

James looked at him surprisedly and asked, "How strong must I be?"

Yuldra explained emphatically, "The entrance to the Great Historial Land is guarded by eight powerhouses at the Ninth Xaeclon Rank. You're currently only at the Fifth Xaeclon Rank. Even though Yianni's Marciais Soul can boost you to the Ninth Xaeclon Rank, how will you fight eight of them?"

James' eyes widened in shock. He further inquired, "What about my wife? She isn't at the Daeclon Rank either. Or could it be..."

Yuldra replied calmly, "She's the Yin governor, born from energy. She naturally possesses nobility and wouldn't be stopped."

James drew a sharp breath as the disparity between him and Thea became glaringly apparent. Thea was born from energy and lived a noble existence.

Meanwhile, he was just a mere mortal, hailing from the lowliest of planets.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6659-Yuldra reassured, "You don't need to fret. In terms of strength, your wife is no less capable than you. She has a natural advantage since she was born from energy. You need to stay calm and focus on finding two things."

After a momentary shock, James asked, "What things?"

Yuldra explained calmly, "This Historial Lotus and Historial Order."

James frowned. "Can I find it here?"

Yuldra shook his head, saying, "No. They should be located on the outer battlefield's fifth floor and are in the possession of the Heavenly Virtue Master, Xian Monroe."

"The fifth floor? Will they help break the seal?" James hissed.

Yuldra was momentarily taken aback, then he chuckled, "You're really compassionate, young man. You're thinking of aiding US break the seal before anything else. The truth is, you need these two items to absorb the Historial Soul Pearl. Otherwise, you might implode and die."

James fell silent, the suspense thick in the air.

When Yuldra presented the Historial Soul Pearl, he remained reticent. If James were to listen to Lesia's suggestion, he would have self-destructed.

James swiftly waved his hand and retrieved the Yuraeceon Genesis Bell suspended in the air.

Lesia hurriedly murmured, "I was wrong, Master. I didn't expect him to be scheming against you. He is quite cunning indeed."

James retorted, "I believe you're the more cunning one. You must show some restraint sometimes and not always resort to stealing, Lesia."

“Bia, bla, bla!” Lesia refused to listen.

James turned to Yuldra and suggested, “In that case, I’ll bring all of you into my space and then take you out. The seal should be naturally lifted, right? But then, how do I quickly locate these two items?”

Yuldra responded with a bitter smile and a shake of his head.

Surprised, James asked, “What’s wrong? Don’t you want to leave?”

Yuldra explained helplessly, “It’s not that we don’t want to. Even if you bring us with you, it’s impossible to leave.”

James asked in disbelief, “How could that be?”

“Your wife attempted it before. She nearly got sealed herself here, so I can’t let you risk trying it again.”

James was frustrated by the situation and pondered whether this place was more mysterious than the Ying World.

After some contemplation, James turned to Yuldra with determination. “I hope you can forgive me this once, sir.”

Yuldra understood James’ intentions and offered him a reassuring nod.

Without further delay, James executed the Terrastride step, swiftly encircling Yuldra with eight consecutive strides, trapping everything in their surroundings within an impenetrable barrier.

Simultaneously, the Terrastride Step’s Marciais Power drew out the myriad of karma within Yuldra.

James gazed upon the scene in shock.

Unlike what he had anticipated, what appeared was not a mere energy ball containing karma. Instead, it resembled a dense thicket of thorns, and karma was represented by a sharp spike.

It was a terrifying sight, but even so, James continued without hesitation. With the help of his Chaos Yin-Yang Eyes and the agility of Dawnblaze Form, he navigated deftly through the labyrinth of spikes.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6660-Meanwhile, amidst the battlefield in the void, Herodias quickly took advantage of the situation.

Seizing the opportunity presented by Galen and Sasha's momentary distraction, she swiftly thrust her swords at them, pressing closely against their throats.

Yegor also snapped out of it and attacked, his palm halting mere millimeters from Galen's forehead.

"Victory isn't always achieved through brute force," Herodias remarked with a chuckle.

Galen and Sasha, returning to their senses, were astonished. They promptly clasped their hands and conceded to their defeat. "A win is a win. There's nothing more to be said. You may do as you wish with us."

Seeing them about to kneel, Herodias and Yegor exchanged smiles and helped them to their feet. Then, they returned to the mountaintop.

Upon seeing James swiftly moving through the thicket of thorns, they showed surprised expressions.

Herodias exclaimed, "This kid even dares to brave the karma and tribulations of a powerhouse at the Daeclon Rank?"

Yegor's brows also furrowed as he said, "The karma and tribulations of the Daeclon Rank and Xaeclon Rank are significantly different. Without his permission, James wouldn't have been able to gain entry."

As they conversed, Galen and Sasha also descended, their astonishment palpable at the unfolding scene.

James suddenly declared, "I found it! But it's a mass of energy! How do I eliminate it?"

Herodias hurriedly shouted, "Get out, James! You mustn't make contact with it!"

James instantly ascended into the air and asked, "It was a mass of purple energy. You're really knowledgeable, Ms. Herodias. Do you know what that is?"

Herodias explained hurriedly, "If it's purple energy, it's undoubtedly Hongrome Aura. With your current strength, you're simply incapable of withstanding it. You might die. Come over here."

Yegor added, "Listen to us, James. When you're stronger—"

Before he could finish, James plunged back into the thicket of thorns.

The next moment, a terrifying surge of purple energy permeated the cluster of thorns, engulfing James within it.

"James!" Herodias wanted to step in to help but was held back by Yegor.

Yegor advised, "Let's watch for now. Perhaps it might be a blessing for him."

Herodias shouted worriedly, "That's Hongrome Aura! How can he withstand it when only at the Fifth Xaeclon Rank?"

Herodias shoved Yegor aside and thrust her palms forward, unleashing her Tirta Power.

As Herodias intensified her efforts, the two streams of Tirta Power coalesced into purple-gold beams of light.

Yegor swiftly joined in, unleashing his righteous aura into the Hongrome Aura.

"We should help." Sasha looked at Galen.

"Alright," Galen agreed, then flipped his palm. Together with Sasha's Historial Power, they released their energies toward the Hongrome Aura.

Despite their combined efforts, the Hongrome Aura showed no signs of dissipating or weakening.

Instead, it grew denser, absorbing their energies like a bottomless abyss.