

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6701-As soon as James entered the dense purple gas surrounding Thea, he was immediately stunned by the sight before him.

Thea's belly appeared significantly more prominent, almost twice its previous size. He could also see movement, causing her belly to bulge.

At that moment, Thea looked to be in pain, and beads of sweat rolled down her forehead.

"What...what's happening?" James rushed to Thea's side, offering his support.

"Our son...he...he won't come out," Thea replied, with tears and laughter.

After coming to a realization, James' eyes widened. "Fraternal twins?"

Thea said helplessly, "I'm not sure what he's up to. He keeps moving around, and it hurts."

James frowned, then reached out to touch the bulge. In response, the baby swiftly moved away, causing Thea to groan in discomfort. Looking at Thea's belly, he muttered, "You little troublemaker. Already up to no good before even before being born. Stop causing your mom pain, and come out soon. Or else, I'll have to teach you a lesson."

A prominent bulge resembling a little fist appeared on Thea's belly. It seemed the baby had understood James' words and was taunting him.

James snorted, "Ha! You have quite a temper, little one. Come out and face me like a man. I promise I won't spank you too hard!"

"Spank, James." A grumbling baby voice emanated from Thea's belly.

James and Thea froze, and their eyes widened in complete disbelief that their baby was speaking while still within the womb. At that moment, they began questioning whether it was a baby or a monster.

Before their thoughts could go wild, a purple cloud condensed above James' head. With a loud rumble, a purple light beam descended and struck James.

Thea watched the scene unfold in shock. After being struck, a plume of white smoke rose from James' charred body, and his hair was standing on end.

She could not contain her laughter after seeing James' state. It was evident their son was the culprit that attacked him.

James exhaled a puff of white smoke and growled, "Damn it. You little rascal, are you a blessing or a curse!"

Thea could not help chuckling, but her face instantly winced in pain as the baby in her belly kicked around. She pleaded, "Calm down, baby. Mommy can't stand it anymore."

"Spank, James!" the baby grumbled.

Another bolt of purple lightning fell from the sky, heading straight for James.

This time, James swiftly reached out and seized the descending purple lightning, tearing it into pieces. He pointed at Thea's belly and growled, "Are you trying to be a nuisance? Don't forget your place! You're the younger sibling! Your elder sister is already waiting outside. I much prefer her over you."

Thea's belly did not react. Concerned, Thea asked, "What...what happened?"

Why did he stop moving?"

James thought for a bit and instantly had an idea. He swiftly cast the Dawnblaze form and approached his daughter, who was surrounded by purple gas. He observed her engrossed in playing with Morgott's spirit for a bit and then asked, "Can you help Daddy out?"

The baby raised her head, looking at James with googly eyes.

James said smilingly, "Go take care of your brother and make him come out soon. Daddy will give you a lovely name and some fun things to play with."

The baby's eyes sparkled with excitement. She tossed away Morgott's spirit and quickly entered the purple gas where Thea was located.