

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7083-The flames blazed fiercely, and the temperature soared. Amid this vast, hazy, and scorching scene, James stood proudly with one hand behind his back, allowing countless fireballs and flames to pass by. His handsome face remained calm and did not even flicker.

Beside him, Harper held an ice shield and wielded her massive light trident, which looked both amusing and endearing.

After a while, James casually reached out and captured a passing fire snake. It writhed violently in his grasp, hissing in resistance.

“Is this the so-called hidden emperor’s flame?” James narrowed his eyes slightly.

“Yeap!” Harper sighed and observed the surroundings. “Look at this formation.

Quentyn and Quintus used the hidden emperor’s flame to create such a massive barrier around the Gate of Mystery to prevent our escape.”

James smiled indifferently at the struggling fire snake in his hand. “They think this will stop us?”

Harper warned, “Don’t underestimate the hidden emperor’s flame. It’s more potent than the Historical Purple Flames in the Wuinfinite Formation. It can burn through weapons, magic artifacts, golden bodies, physical forms, and even Waltraud Power.

“Even someone as strong as me needs the Historical Ice Shield to barely withstand it. As for Morgott, Hankin, Lesia, and Yianni, none of them can resist it.”

She looked at James with curiosity and said, “You also have an Ultimate Golden Body, but you seem to be able to withstand the hidden emperor’s flame without any protection. You’re quite strange.”

James retorted, “And you have a shield and trident bigger than yourself. I’d say the same about you.”

Harper snorted, about to reply, when a whistling sound of breaking wind interrupted them.

Two fiery red figures approached rapidly with the force of thunder and lightning.

The sea of flames became violently chaotic, sending fire snakes, fireballs, and sparks flying as they passed.

The shield protecting Harper collapsed instantly under the intense impact. As Harper stood bewildered, James swiftly moved, lifting her and soaring into the sky with a burst of purple-gold light.

The next moment, the two fiery red figures collided with the flames where James and Harper had just been, causing two loud explosions. Flames and sparks spread like a doomsday catastrophe, destroying everything in their path.

After the explosion, two old men in bright red robes with flowing red hair appeared in the void where James and Harper had stood seconds ago. One of them was tall and thin, the other short and plump. They each had a hand behind their back, exuding an intimidating aura.

The tall, thin, red-haired man was surrounded by nine fire dragons, and the short, plump, red-haired man was encircled by nine ice dragons. The two radiated with red and blue light, which intertwined to cause a great spectacle.

Harper, enveloped in James's purple-gold light, said, "Quentyn and Quintus are indeed two old monsters."

James squinted. "They seem more powerful than Xanthacos."

Harper smiled charmingly. "Though the Five Path Emperors are ranked highest in the Greater Realms, it's due to their control over the Five Gates of the Supreme Path. In actuality, they aren't the strongest in personal combat."

"Real powerhouses don't care about rankings and even despise being ranked." James nodded in agreement.

Suddenly, a powerful voice echoed from below them. "Are you James? Could we talk to you?"

James said calmly, "They're more eager than I am." He turned to Harper and instructed, "Stay within this golden halo's protection and return to the Gate of Mystery. No matter what happens, don't intervene."

After speaking, he transformed into a streak of sword light and rushed toward the two old men.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7084-Harper chuckled, "You're quite responsible. I like cute guys like you."

James transformed into a Sword Light and appeared before Quintus and Quentyn. He stood with his hands behind his back, and his aura matched that of the two hidden emperors.

Quintus laughed as he looked at James, 'You have an exceptional aura and a sharp gaze. You are indescribably noble. Truly worthy of being the only Chosen One from the mortals.'

Quentyn also stroked his beard and smiled approvingly at James.

James responded calmly, 'You two are hidden emperors that don't need my flattery. Since you're here for Xanthachos, I'm assuming it's a fight you want? Do you two want to team up against me, or do this individually?'

Quentyn and Quintus exchanged glances and then burst into laughter.

James narrowed his eyes slightly, clearly displeased. He despised those who pretended to be mighty and generous. They were going to fight anyway, so there was no need for such formalities. Otherwise, it would be embarrassing after losing the battle.

Quintus sneered, 'As cultivators, being arrogant isn't wise, young man.'

James retorted, 'You're supposed to be arrogant while still young.'

Quentyn twisted his beard and said, 'Alright! Since you're eager to fight, we'll oblige. It's the perfect chance to move our muscles.'

Quintus added smilingly, 'It's been hundreds of thousands of entrapochs since we last got some action. We'll spar with you today. Since it's a two- against-one match, we'll only use half of our strength. You can go all out.'

James nodded and replied, 'I don't care. Do as you wish.'

'How arrogant,' Quentyn shouted, raised his hand, and unleashed a terrifying purple-red fire dragon at James.

Boom!

James summoned a Sword Light and instantly shattered the fire dragon.

'Interesting. That's the Qreiyll Sword God's Supernatural Power,' Quintus remarked, then pointed his finger into the void. The next moment, a massive long sword charged at James.

James no longer held back. He cast the Terrastride Step and Dawnblaze Form, stepping along the massive sword to approach Quintus.

Seeing his counter, the duo did not retreat. Instead, they bravely charged forward and engaged in close combat with James.

The two sides fought within the formation, their figures flickered as they swung their hands and feet.

The void was filled with terrifying Sword Energy and the deafening roars of dragons.

James' main focus had always been the Marcial Path, hence he excelled in close combat. Every move of his was aimed at dealing lethal damage. With the addition of his Three Treasures and the power of his Zenthur Rank, he seamlessly countered the two old men's attacks.

Despite fighting two opponents simultaneously, he was not at a disadvantage.

He was slightly faster than the two hidden emperors.

Meanwhile, Quintus and Quentyn grew increasingly frightened and shocked as they fought.

They were the first beings to have entered Zymurgy after the Haleth Realm had formed. Their foundation and cultivation were far superior to James'. Yet, despite using fifty percent of their strength, they were unable to defeat him even after an exchange of tens of millions of moves. Instead, they were being suppressed by his overwhelming speed.

"Ice Dragon Breath!" With a loud shout, Quintus took advantage of the moment when Quentyn repelled James and raised his hand to swing a punch.

The next second, accompanied by countless terrifying roars, an endless stream of ice dragons rushed toward James.

Simultaneously, Quentyn launched giant sword flames. They immediately combined with the roaring ice dragons and rushed straight at James.

The combined power of ice and fire was so overwhelming that even the Five Path Emperors would hesitate to confront it head-on.