

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7351-'That...

That's impossible! Master has achieved the Three Treasures Integration, the Five Spirits Integration, the Limitless Body, and the Ultimate Serenity.

He can even fuse the Wuia Palace's Four Treasures of Nothingness and wield all eighty halls' powers.

Moreover, Master possesses the Caeloros Supreme's Cultivation Heart.

With all that combined, his power would be equivalent to that of a Caeloros God.

He would be completely unbeatable in the Haleth Realm,' Lesia pondered.

"you should hurry and go now.

There's not much time left," James urged.

"I've set up a teleportation formation outside the hall to transfer you out of here."

"Wait." Lesia fixed her gaze on James.

James' brows arched.

"Is there something else you're unsure about?" "What about the others?" Lesia asked.

“If Yukha and I leave, what about Taiyi, Yasmina, Harper, and the others?” “They are staying,” James replied.

“Why, though?” Lesia said in a raised voice.

“All of them are staying, so why do I have to...” “You are the one I trust the most,” James cut her off.

Lesia was momentarily stunned.

Those words rang in her ears.

In a way, James was implying that he did not fully trust those around him except for Lesia.

There might have been a few with questionable behavior among their comrades.

If his suspicions were to come true, James would eventually be forced to face his enemy while having to be on the lookout for traitors all by himself.

“Master, all of them helped when you were suffering from demonization...” Lesia began.

“Morgott has been with US through various hardships and hurdles,” James interrupted.

“Yet, I didn’t let him come.

I’m sure you can tell why I’ve made that decision.” Lesia’s eyes widened.

“Are you saying that Morgott is one of those two guests?” “To be precise, he’s Nihilos,” James said.

Lesia closed her eyes.

She knew that Morgott was Nihilos.

She knew it from the moment she first set eyes on him.

Yet, she never told James about Morgott's true identity.

Lesia could not help but wonder how James learned of this.

"Alright." James sighed.

"Lesia, it's time for you to go." Lesia opened her eyes and set her gaze on James.

"Give me a hug!" James' face broke into a smile.

He extended his arms.

Lesia darted toward James and hugged him tightly.

Just as she was about to say something, Lesia felt something like a stick placed in her hand.

"Don't say anything," James whispered next to her ear.

"Take this.

You can't tell anyone about it since the Destiny Sect is at stake.

When worse comes to worst, it will be the leverage we can use to secure the safety of all living beings and the Great Historial Land." Lesia's hand trembled slightly. She put away the item in a secure space. Tears rolled down her cheeks as she blinked.

James had entrusted Lesia with tasks that could decide his fate from here on out.

It was the first time Lesia realized how much trust James had in her and the amount of responsibility she had on her shoulders. “Alright Yau should let go now! My Wife will get upset if you hug me for that long,”

James said jokingly and pulled himself away. Then, he let Yukha out.

“Master, why did you lock me away?”

Yukha complained. “What did you two talk about behind my back?”

James beamed at her. “From now on, you need to listen to Lesia.

When the time comes, I’ll return you to your master again Before yukha could respond Lesia cast a layer of purplish-gold light over her.

After taking one last glance at James, Lesia took Yukha along as she flew out of the hall.