Chapter 7666

Quattro wasn't happy about it, but under James's firm gaze, he had no choice but to agree.

"This guy just loves to play," Thea sighed. "He's going to need a smart assistant. Otherwise, if he gets charmed by some female spirit..."

"Good point." James smirked at Quattro. "I'll set you up with someone smart and beautiful."

Quattro's eyes widened. "Who?"

"Zella." James and Thea said in unison.

Quattro's excitement vanished. He nearly fell from the void.

Then, he let out a dramatic scream and bolted.

James chuckled. "Zella's never actually done anything to him, but that reaction..."

Thea laughed. "Even if Xezal partnered with Zella, Quattro would still be terrified."

James shook his head in amusement.

Just then, two streaks of purple-gold light shot through the void, transforming into Yaretzi and Youcef. Without any pleasantries, they got straight to the point.

"The new world is established," Yaretzi said. "Is it time for Juniper to face the present?"

"You're unfair, Emperor Caden," Youcef added. "Juniper went into the past without taking me along."

James smiled. During this period, Yaretzi and Youcef had been crucial in maintaining order in the new world, ensuring its inhabitants flourished and that its energy remained strong.

"Youcef, I think you should stay in the new world for a while," Thea said. "We need strong guardians here in case the enemy tries a diversionary attack."

Youcef immediately objected. “No way—I have to be on the front lines!”

“Youcef.” Yaretzi cut in. “I agree with Thea. You need to refine your strength further. You should also immerse yourself in this world and gain a deeper understanding of James’s Taoism.”

Although Youcef was reluctant, he had no choice but to nod in agreement.

Then, he turned to James. “Fine... but at least send Jacopo to keep me company.”

“Don’t worry,” Thea reassured him. “He’ll be here soon.”

Hearing that, Youcef’s mood instantly lifted. He bowed in farewell and shot toward the new world below.

“The next battle will be life or death,” Yaretzi said. “My suggestion? Move all confirmed beings from the myriad realms to the new world.”

Thea sighed. “The real issue is how to confirm them.”

“The myriad realms were originally derived from innate Tai Chi and followed the Tai Chi law,” she continued. “But after the Demon God destroyed it, Juniper’s Taoism took over. Under his influence, any creature in the myriad realms could potentially be his reincarnation.”

Yaretzi fell silent.

James, however, turned to Thea, his expression unreadable.

Logically, with Wynton returning the Void Realm, Thea should be able to use her current status to control it and track Juniper’s present and future selves.

But that would also expose her. The moment she moved the Void Realm, Juniper’s incarnations would be alerted.

To them, Thea was like the mythical Tang Monk’s flesh—whoever consumed her essence would gain immeasurable power over nothingness. As her husband, James couldn’t take that risk.

After a long pause, James finally spoke.

“You should stay in the new world too.”

Thea looked at him like he'd lost his mind.

“Are you crazy?”

Hearing this, Yaretzi, Xezal, and the others turned their eyes to James in shock.
