

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 918

The house was neat and spotless.

James rushed up the stairs to Quincy's room. The door was closed, so James knocked on the door. However, no movement could be heard from inside.

He twisted the doorknob and found it unlocked, so he gently pushed it open.

The blankets inside the room were neatly stacked. James walked over and reached under them. The bed was cold, and it was evident that no one had slept on it throughout the night.

Maxine scanned the room and said, "I don't think she came back last night."

"That's strange. Where else would she go?" James panicked. He would not be as worried if only Quincy was missing, but even Thea had disappeared without a trace.

"Let's check the company," Maxine suggested.

"Alright." James nodded.
