

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 930

The Blithe King smiled and said, "Why're you telling me this? You can't even decide for yourself, so how would I know? You think too highly of me."

"Then tell me, should I stand on the country's side, the King or the Cadens?" asked James.

The Blithe King shook his head again.

These were questions that he could not answer.

"Why're you thinking about it so much? You' just have to take one step at a time. Let's have a couple of drinks! I'll ask Daniel to join us."

The Blithe King understood that James was in a dilemma.

Although he was unaware of the grievances and conflict between the Ancient Four in the Capital, he had heard about the Four Ancient Paintings before.

Thirty years ago, there was an internal conflict in the Cadens.

Additionally, the Cadens' villa was burned in flames ten years ago.

These were things he had recently learned about James.

However, he was unable to give James any advice as an outsider. He got up, looked at the dazed James, and shouted, "What're you doing zoning out? Let's go!"

James replied troubledly, "Alright, let's go."

The two walked out of the office together.

King changed into casual clothes and brought Daniel with

of the military region

a food stall in

of them ordered

to get the wine

of them enjoyed their food and bury his worries in the drinks, but countless wine bottles piled up on the

and Daniel were knocked out, lying on the table with

was still

his True Energy, he seemed

at the Blithe King

them anymore and simply

left the food

walked on the bustling street and watched the pedestrians quickly rush by

He felt slightly lost.

the years, he had never

this moment, he was unsure of what to do also needed to figure out where he started

missed the days when he was the Callahans'

could stroll down the streets to buy groceries, cook all that was already in the past, and there was no going

he thought of