

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1072 - Chapter 1071: Back To S City (part three)

Chapter 1072: Chapter 1071: Back To S City (part three)

"No need to pretend to care about me. You are so fake! Besides, Mom prepared this bottle of water especially for Kevin. If she gets to know that I drink all of it, she would be so angry with me." There was a trace of jealousy in Claire's words. Anyone could tell that she was bothered by Leena, because she was the only one being asked and cared about by Kevin.

"Claire, don't forget what you promised me when I let you go to S City with us." Kevin's tone was cold. If it had not been for Leena, who had pleaded on Claire's behalf, he would not have let Claire come to S City with them and interrupt their perfect married life. Now that he had promised to let Claire stay, she should also keep her word and be nice to Leena.

"Fine! I'll just have to keep my mouth shut. Are you satisfied now?" Claire glared at Leena with annoyance, as if it was her fault. Well, her brother couldn't be beside her all day long to take Leena's side! Claire could wait. She could think of lots of ways to make Leena's life miserable while she was in S City. Leena didn't understand what she had done to make Claire so furious with her. She thought that Claire was thirsty, so she gave her some water to drink, that was all. Why would she think Leena was being fake in pretending to care about her? It seemed to Leena that she should be the one keeping her mouth shut on this journey back to S City. She would just have to talk less, otherwise she would cause more trouble.

Sitting on the other end of the backseat, Louisa was happy to see this exchange. The corner of Louisa's lips lifted as she glanced at Leena, her eyes dripping with mockery and disdain. She pretended to comfort Claire.

"Claire, come on. No need to get upset over such a small thing, right?" Louisa patted Claire's shoulder and said in a sickly sweet voice, pretending to be considerate and understanding in front of Kevin.

It didn't go as she hoped for. Kevin's eyebrows furrowed. He was unhappy about what Louisa said, but he kept his mouth shut and didn't say another word. He stared at Leena intensely through the rearview mirror. He was worried about her. Although they had left capital city early this morning, it was already afternoon by the time they arrived in S City. There was a traffic jam on the way. Fortunately it was not rush hour, so it wasn't so bad, or they could have been trapped there for hours.

Kevin, is this the apartment you live in? I thought you still lived at the army base." Claire raised her head to look at the tall building in front of her. She could tell from the nice decorations outside the apartment that it was very pricey. She wondered if her brother had spent all the money he had saved buying this apartment.

"Yeah, I lived at the army base before. But I moved here after marriage. Living in the army base is inconvenient for a married man after all. All right, come on. Pick your luggage and let's go inside," Kevin replied to his sister's question simply. He didn't ask Lee for help, who had to drive Louisa back to her own house.

"Hey! Kevin, won't you help me carry my luggage?" Claire looked helplessly at the two big, heavy suitcases in front of her. She turned to Kevin, her eyes pleading.

Why did you bring two big suitcases? Do you really have that many things to bring with you? Leena and I only have one big suitcase, and it's enough for us." Kevin shook his head at his sister, picking up the leather suitcase in front of Claire. He wondered if she was planning to stay for a long time. Otherwise, why would she bring so many things with her? He really hoped that he was wrong.

"There are not many things in them. They are just the clothes and shoes that I will be wearing. If I hadn't brought them here, would you buy new ones for me?" Claire frowned, then picked up the other suitcase and followed them to the elevator. She was unhappy that Leena just had the small travel bag with her. Truthfully, it was Claire's own fault that she had packed up so many things. She just couldn't help but blame Leena for it unreasonably.

"Well, I understand that you need to take some clothes with you, but you don't need to bring your entire closet here!" Once they were in the elevator, Kevin immediately took the travel bag from Leena's hand. It looked as if he was afraid that carrying such a small bag would exhaust Leena. Upon seeing his action, Claire's mood soured even more.

"Well, you know, I'm a girl after all. That is what makes us girls, right? I need to change my clothes everyday. Besides, I'm going to look for a job here. That way, Louisa will not be so lonely here, because I can keep her company." As she talked, Claire's mood shifted. She was quite excited about her future life in S City. She was confident that she would be happy and successful here.

"What did you say? You want to look for a job here? Are you kidding? Are you sure that you can find a suitable job without Mom and Dad's help?" Kevin didn't expect to hear this. Claire wanted to find a job so she could stay here for a long time! He was a bit shocked at her words. Would she stay at his place for much longer? He didn't want that to happen, because Claire didn't get along with Leena at all, and he wanted to spend some time alone with his wife. If Claire lived in his apartment with them for too long, she would surely become a nuisance. There went his plan of spending some good time alone with Leena.

"Well, I have you, my dear brother. Won't you help out your loving sister?" Claire tilted her head and looked at Kevin with her eyebrows raised. She was sure that he would help her.

"Are you sure the jobs I find will be suitable for you?" Kevin looked her up and down, and helplessly shook his head. He didn't think he could help his sister find an appropriate job here.

"As long as it's a respectable job with a high salary, and there is enough freedom to work anytime, I would be satisfied." Claire wasn't even joking. She was serious about her conditions. She thought it would be easy to find such a job.

"You really must be dreaming. There is no such job like you just described. No company will ever hire you if you demand all that." Kevin let out a deep sigh. If he were an employer, he would never hire an employee with demands like those, unless she was extremely talented. But unfortunately, his sister was everything but talented.

"Kevin, don't lower my confidence like that! I haven't even started looking, for God's sake, and here you are, already pouring cold water on me." Claire was unhappy about her brother's words. She didn't think that her conditions for a job were so impossible to meet. According to her, a job with a high salary and the liberty to work any time was just standard.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1073 - Chapter 1072: Be Confident (part one)

Chapter 1073: Chapter 1072: Be Confident (part one)

"I am advising you to desist from this insane idea before you start looking. In case you become the butt of someone's joke." Kevin didn't mean to look down upon his own sister. He thought Claire aimed too high, and it would get hard for her to find her footing in such a highly competitive society.

"I'm not that bad. It doesn't matter. I have talent in management and I studied that abroad," Claire said, pouting. She displayed strong objection to her brother's remarks.

Come on. You? Talent? I bet you got your diploma after wasting away years at college," Kevin made this conclusion based on his sister's playful personality.

"How would that be possible? I entered college because of my efforts. Sure, it was not a well-known college, but, generally speaking, I spent my years there just like any other regular student," Claire replied, frowning. That entrance exam was one eternal scar for her! Especially since the major she had chosen was a high-end one.

"Like you said, you just spent your years there. I doubt if you learnt anything useful," Kevin said. He never considered his sister to be great in studies, since her scores at school never went beyond 80. It was obvious that she was lazy at studying. Leena didn't make any comment on their bickering and just smiled breezily. She was aware of Claire's dissatisfaction with her. Leena wasn't so stupid that she'd intervene in this argument. It was wise to protect herself from something that unfavorable.

Wow! Brother, this is a fabulous house! What a great design! It's really classy. You must have spent a lot of money and energy on it!" Claire praised. She was stunned by the interiors of Kevin's house as she walked in. When they had left for S City, Claire had assumed that she would live at the army base upon arriving here. But to her surprise, she was to live in this glorious apartment. She didn't want to leave here ever from this moment onward.

"Is it so fabulous? I don't think so!" Kevin said, looking around. He then realized that Claire was speaking the truth. He admitted that Leena had made some changes in this house. She had bought some fancy furniture for him.

"You bet. All the furniture here is costly, you can tell it's luxurious." Claire jumped onto the soft couch with glee, her hands gliding across the cloth. She made a satisfied murmur of admiration. Although their house in Capital City was beautiful, it was still different from here. Maybe it was because of the new furniture. This house was splendid but not flashy.

"Claire, you can sleep in the guest room on this floor. I'll go and clean it. Then you can move in there, okay?" Leena asked for Claire's opinion, fearing that she would be dissatisfied with the arrangement.

What about upstairs? No guest room there?" Claire glanced at the stairs, wondering about the rooms on that floor.

"No. There's only a guest room here," Leena replied decisively. She didn't want Claire to live upstairs with them, even if they had a guest room there. Leena would feel uncomfortable living with her.

"Well, okay! I have no choice then," Claire said in frustration. In her opinion, living upstairs was far more preferable to living down here.

Leena pursed her lips and turned around, walking toward the guest room. She needed to see if anything needed to be arranged. Although Claire was never happy with her, for Kevin's sake, Leena would still look after her. An old saying said, "Love me, love my dog." When it came to Kevin, no matter what difficulties Leena had to face, she would confront them all while smiling.

"Claire, put your luggage in your room. We'll go out for dinner then," Kevin announced before taking his and Leena's luggage upstairs. He didn't wait for Claire's response.

"Okay, I'll do that right away." Claire was excited to hear that they were going to have dinner outside. When they were in Capital City, they got almost no opportunities to go out for dinner, because they ate at home every day.

Leena didn't need to do much cleaning or make arrangements. She only needed to spread the sheets for Claire. Every room in this house was kept neat and tidy, so there should be no problem living here.

"This room?" Claire asked, frowning. She looked around, finding it to be neat and comfortable, although it wasn't as big as her room at the house in Capital City. She could manage to live here.

"Yep! Your clothes can be put in this wardrobe. If you need anything else, please let me know. I'll set it up for you." Leena looked at the big bed with its new covers in satisfaction. They were all her favorite colors. She hoped Claire would like it, since they were of similar age and probably had the same aesthetic sense.

"Got it. You talk too much. You can go now! I'm gonna get changed," Claire said impatiently, waving Leena away.

"All right. Suit yourself," Leena said, before walking out and closing the door behind her. She didn't expect Claire to appreciate what she had done for her, but she still felt a bit hurt when she was treated by Claire so lousily.

As she walked into the living room, Leena instantly felt better, even though she didn't see Kevin around. She knew he was probably putting their luggage upstairs. Leena walked straight into the kitchen to see what ingredients in the refrigerator she could use to cook. Otherwise she might need to do some shopping.

As she stared at the empty refrigerator, Leena put a hand on her forehead. She couldn't help but laugh at herself. She had such a bad memory! She had emptied the refrigerator before they had left for Capital City, in case the items went stale when they came back. She had totally forgotten about that. She must have forgotten to bring back her brain with her from Capital City too.

Leena looked at her watch. 'It is still early for dinner, so I'd better use this time to drive out and buy some groceries.' With this thought, she trotted upstairs. Her bags had all been carried up there by Kevin. Besides, she needed to fetch her car keys too. Lee took her Audi Pikes Peak Quattro to drive Louisa home. Leena guessed her car wouldn't be back for a while.

"Nana, is everything arranged for Claire?" Kevin asked when he saw Leena come in. He was busy unpacking their luggage. Leena halted in her footsteps when she heard the nickname on Kevin's lips. Why was he suddenly calling her that? He used to call her by her name before, like everyone else.

"Um! Yes. There is no food in the refrigerator, so I'm going out to buy some groceries," Leena said. She had no intention of asking him to go with her. After all, she wasn't some fragile little princess in this house. She had gotten used to this kind of life. Kevin wasn't home often, so she had learnt to do a lot of things on her own.

"Don't bother. We'll go out for dinner later. All of us are very tired after the day-long trip, so don't exert yourself." Kevin stopped her with his hand on her arm. Although he was only responsible for eating, he didn't want his wife to exhaust herself by cooking for them.

We're going out for dinner? That's not a bad idea. Fine. It's on me tonight." Leena accepted Kevin's suggestion with pleasure. She was really tired, and she didn't really feel like cooking for dinner.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1074 - Chapter 1073: Be Confident (part two)

Chapter 1074: Chapter 1073: Be Confident (part two)

"Well! Okay, then I'll eat like a pig," Kevin teased as he gazed at Leena's pleasant smile. His eyes brimmed with affection for her. He could tell that she was more relaxed now, since she wasn't behaving as formally as she was back at Capital City.

"As long as you're not worried about becoming a real pig, I'll offer as much as I can," Leena said, her eyes lingering on the busy Kevin. She threw herself on the soft bed and took a deep breath. She could smell the light scent of mint on the bed sheets. Leena relaxed, feeling right at home.

"Kiddo, it's impossible to get me fat," Kevin said. He let her unwind and stared at her with a smile. He thought she knew about his job. He did training every day. 'How would I get fat? It's absurd,' he thought.

"Kevin, can I ask you a personal question?" Leena asked seriously, propping herself up all of a sudden.

"Ask away. What question? I'll tell you everything but the state secrets," Kevin said, turning around and putting his last shirt inside the wardrobe.

I'm not interested in the state secrets and I'm not a politician, so why would I ask about that? I'm not so bored. I'm just curious... why did you address me by that nickname?" Leena asked, rolling her eyes. She was a simple girl. Political talks were complicated, and she wasn't the right person to ask about it.

"You really want to know the reason?" Kevin asked. He licked his lips, wondering how he should answer her question. He called her by the nickname out of some natural instinct of him. The reason why he suddenly addressed her as that was because it sounded so intimate. He didn't want to go back to calling her by her first name. To him, Nana sounded great.

Yes. Can you tell me?" Leena asked, her big eyes blinking in expectation. She was flustered. She imagined that it was a way for Kevin to show how much he loved her.

"The reason! The reason is that there's no reason. I just don't want to call you the same way as everyone else does," He blurted out. It wasn't the real reason. For a moment, he didn't understand his feelings, so he gave her a random answer.

"Is that so?" Leena was a little disappointed about his answer. She thought he'd say it was because the nickname sounded more intimate. Why did he give her such a strange answer?

"What else did you expect? Get up! Freshen up and we'll go out for dinner," Kevin said, pulling her out of bed. He didn't feel good seeing the disappointment on Leena's face.

"Nothing. I didn't expect anything. I should have known about that." Leena laughed at herself. 'Am I too greedy? Happiness always seems to pass me by.'

"Leena, the real reason why I call you Nana is because I care about you very much. It's not because I don't want to call you the same as other people. Does this answer make you happy?" Kevin sighed and explained to Leena. He didn't want to see her unhappy.

"Is that really true? Are you sure you're not saying it because you feel sorry for me?" Leena raised her head to look up at him. She waited for his answer nervously.

"Do you think I'm that dull? Hey, be confident in yourself. I will always belong to you." Kevin said, pulling her into his arms and kissing her hair tenderly. He wondered what he had done to deserve such an admirable girl. She was capable of worrying about him as much as she was of being happy for him.

"This is not about my confidence. It's about the choice you make in your heart. To change your choice, I have to make double effort. Both of us know who the girl in your heart is, and how dazzling she is," Leena whispered sadly. She had brought it up the other day, but it didn't result in anything. Truthfully, she was still a little disappointed. She, of all people, deserved a more honest answer from him.

"Leena, now that you have mentioned this again, I'd like to clear the air. I admit that I had feelings for Daisy before, but it was just a passing affection. After Edward showed up, I kept telling myself that she was now a girl who had a family of her own. It wasn't proper for me to continue having feelings for her, so I decided to move on. I can't say that I have no affection for her anymore, but I can assure you that she belongs to my past now. That past will never come between us and our life together,"

Kevin promised, his hands holding onto Leena's tightly. He didn't know how much he loved Leena, but he knew she was very precious to him. She was like a jewel, and he didn't want to lose her.

"Kevin, am I too evil? I know she is like a scar to you, but I still mention her again and again. Is it too cruel?" Leena asked, her body clinging to his. She could hear his strong heartbeat. She felt so safe and secure in that moment. It was fine even if he didn't love her. If she was allowed to be in his arms, she wouldn't ask for anything else.

"Kiddo, it was a scar for me earlier. But now, I can't feel it at all. I won't call it cruel, because her name doesn't hurt me anymore." As he confessed this to Leena, Kevin felt a great sense of relief. It felt like that scar was made centuries ago.

"Are you sure? Will you be so calm when you face Daisy too?" Leena looked at Kevin in amazement. She knew he wasn't in love with her, but as long as Daisy didn't have his heart anymore, Leena was confident of winning it. She didn't just want his body, she wanted his love too.

"What do you think? Don't forget, Daisy and I are both in the army. If I still had feelings for her, I would be exhausted." Kevin felt awkward at the beginning when Daisy had found out he liked her. However, he saw that she didn't act distant from him because of it. She was so calm and mature about it, and Kevin realized he had to be the same.

"What about Daisy? Does she know you like her?" Leena asked cautiously, a little nervous. She didn't know if her question would irk him.

"Um. Not only her, even Edward knows about it. She told me that my feelings for her were just out of sympathy, not real love. What she said has made me think about it a lot, but it seems possible," Kevin said, with a bitter smile on his face. Daisy might be right. How could he get over her so easily otherwise? If it had been love, he should have kept pursuing her until the end of time.

"What? Edward knows it, too? Now I know why he always has a problem with you." Leena hadn't expected this. She thought that Daisy and Edward didn't know about Kevin's unrequited love. No wonder Edward always gave him the cold shoulder. He knew Kevin loved his wife previously but married his beloved sister. Edward probably didn't think Kevin was a responsible man. Leena pictured him being nice to Kevin. That would certainly be strange.

"Yeah, that's why I always endure their standoffish behavior towards me. After all, I'm the guy who made the mistake, right?" Kevin uttered, feeling helpless. If he were Edward, he would have behaved the same way! Judging from what he had done, he himself wouldn't think he was a reliable man.

"What about my brother and the others? Do they know about this?" Leena asked curiously. As far as she knew, Duke wouldn't be this calm about it if he knew Kevin had feelings for Daisy.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1075 - Chapter 1074: Strike Back (part one)

Chapter 1075: Chapter 1074: Strike Back (part one)

"I don't think so. It looks like Edward hasn't mentioned that to Duke." Kevin knew very well how important Leena was to those powerful men. If they ever got to know that Leena was in pain or suffering, Kevin could be in serious trouble.

"Never let him know that. Otherwise things will get complicated." Leena had a clear understanding of her brother's personality and what he was capable of. He wouldn't tolerate any wrongdoings towards his sister.

"The inevitable happens one way or another and there's no escaping from it. We better let nature take its course. Fire can't be wrapped up in paper. Why bother yourself in a fruitless attempt to hide it from them?" Kevin was quite open-minded about this. He had no secrets to hide from others. As long as he was honest and big-hearted, he would be fine.

"But I'm worried about you. You know that Duke gets ill-tempered sometimes, especially when I am involved. You should know the consequences better than others." Leena was a bit worried. Duke harbored grudges against Kevin already. If he was informed of what happened to her, it would mean trouble.

"Don't worry. I can endure the pain," Kevin answered. He smiled at his wife soothingly. As he did so, he released her hands and looked over her, his gaze intense.

"Why are you staring at me?" Leena asked nervously. It made her feel embarrassed to be stared at so passionately. She subconsciously touched her face, fearing that it was smeared by mud or something.

"It just occurred to me how bright and beautiful my wife is." Leena's innocent face was charming and her luscious figure was tantalizing. Kevin reached out and chucked her under the chin. He was grateful to her. When he had felt let down and been extremely disappointed, Leena decided to marry him. As a result of that, he stopped pitying himself and managed to pull himself together.

"So? Don't you know that you found a treasure when you married me?" Hearing his explanation, Leena felt close to Kevin for the very first time. This man finally belonged to her. Although it was a long road before Kevin truly fell in love with her, that day would certainly come, wouldn't it? Leena was willing to give up everything if it meant that day would arrive. She had to win over his love.

"The more you get, the more you want. Now scoot and get dressed. We can't keep Claire waiting. She's likely to get impatient and come upstairs, demanding us to hurry up." Kevin pinched her adorable cheeks. Deep down in his heart he realized what Leena meant, but he couldn't admit it in front of her. Otherwise, she would get arrogant and tease him.

"Do I really need to change my clothes if we are just going out for dinner?" Leena looked at herself in the mirror, finding her clothes to be fine. They had traveled quite a distance today, but she didn't see the need to change into something else.

"Are you sure you want to wear these warm clothes around the city? Don't forget the temperature here is a lot higher than it is in Capital City." Kevin gazed at Leena in amusement, wondering how she forgot about the weather she had been so accustomed to all these years.

"Yes, you're right. It's damn hot out there. I feel even hotter because I haven't taken off these warm clothes." In hindsight, she realized how stupidly dependent on Kevin she had become. She had gotten so used to being looked after by her husband.

"Darling, I am beginning to wonder how you managed your life when I was away," Kevin said. He found it funny to imagine the life Leena must have lived alone, in the past.

"I just got confused. Wait a minute for me, I'll get ready quickly," Leena said in haste. She loved the pleasant climate in S City. The temperature difference wasn't large in all the four seasons.

"Well, Don't rush. Take your time. I'll wait downstairs." Kevin usually wore a shirt and tie. All he needed was a light coat to ward off the cold in the early winter of S City.

"Fine. Please don't forget to take the car keys." Leena looked for suitable clothes in her closet. Now that she was back in her own house, she didn't feel forced to wear so-called appropriate clothes to see her in-laws. She could choose the clothes she liked, such as the popular, expensive and avant-garde ones that were normally the first choice of designers. She looked more like a model than a renowned designer in them.

"Are you sure you want to wear these warm clothes around the city? Don't forget the temperature here is a lot higher than it is in Capital City." Kevin gazed at Leena in amusement, wondering how she forgot about the weather she had been so accustomed to all these years.

"Yes, you're right. It's damn hot out there. I feel even hotter because I haven't taken off these warm clothes." In hindsight, she realized how stupidly dependent on Kevin she had become. She had gotten so used to being looked after by her husband.

Darling, I am beginning to wonder how you managed your life when I was away," Kevin said. He found it funny to imagine the life Leena must have lived alone, in the past.

I just got confused. Wait a minute for me, I'll get ready quickly," Leena said in haste. She loved the pleasant climate in S City. The temperature difference wasn't large in all the four seasons. "Well, Don't rush. Take your time. I'll wait downstairs." Kevin usually wore a shirt and tie. All he needed was a light coat to ward off the cold in the early winter of S City.

Fine. Please don't forget to take the car keys." Leena looked for suitable clothes in her closet. Now that she was back in her own house, she didn't feel forced to wear so-called appropriate clothes to see her in-laws. She could choose the clothes she liked, such as the popular, expensive and avant-garde ones that were normally the first choice of designers. She looked more like a model than a renowned designer in them.

"I won't. Rest assured. I'm not as absent-minded as you are." Kevin was about to take the keys of Leena's Ferrari sports car, but stopped on second thought. He chose his own Bugatti, since Leena's sports car only had two seats.

Claire was already dressed up for dinner. Impatiently, she waited downstairs for a long time, but Leena and Kevin didn't show up. She was about to yell at them when she saw Kevin come downstairs. "Kevin, what took you so long?" Claire asked in irritation. "Didn't you know I was waiting for you here?"

No need to get mad. I'm here now, don't you see? What's the rush? It's still early," Kevin answered. He deliberately kept from Claire the reason he was late. He was talking to Leena about something important, so Claire had to wait.

"Why are you alone? Where is Leena? Don't tell me she is still dressing up? No matter how long she takes, she would still look old-fashioned and ordinary," Claire derided as a lopsided grin lingered around the corners of her mouth. Although she hated Leena, she didn't really dare to go too far in front of her brother. Reluctantly, Claire had to watch her mouth and not disrespect Leena, and even pretend to be nice.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1076 - Chapter 1075: Strike Back (part two)

Chapter 1076: Chapter 1075: Strike Back (part two)

"Claire, I am warning you once again. I hope you can enjoy a good time with Leena in the city. Otherwise, be sure that I will send you back home. Besides, Leena's family is a lot more well-known than you think. She just doesn't want to be thought of as one of those rich girls from powerful families. She chose to keep a low profile and endure your insults again and again. I am supposed to respect her wishes and so I didn't intervene. But now that you have decided to stay here, you'll discover many more secrets about her. By then, I'm sure you'll regret everything you have done to Leena," Kevin said sternly.

Kevin had kept the knowledge of Leena's wealthy family from Claire since Leena wished to keep the secret to herself and he had to respect her wish. Rich as she was, Leena was also independent and open-minded, and she knew what was right for herself. So Kevin had decided not to make any decisions on her behalf.

"What secrets? Are you talking about me?" Leena asked loudly, suddenly arriving at the scene. She walked downstairs. She had heard part of Kevin's conversation with Claire, and couldn't help but be curious about what they were discussing.

"It's your guess," Kevin answered, smiling. He looked over Leena up and down. Apparently, his wife had finally decided to be herself again, instead of pretending to be someone else in front of his family. She must have been tired of being discreet and mature. Today, she looked like the lovely princess she actually was.

"What? Are you actually Leena? Or just some fucking imposter?" Claire shouted in disbelief. She was shocked to see Leena in the fashionable clothes. How could this woman, as beautiful as a supermodel, be the same girl she had come to know in Capital City, whom Claire considered to be ordinary, old-fashioned, and even ugly?

"What are you talking about? Did I miss something? Kevin, is there something wrong with me?" Leena asked, ill at ease. She was wearing a pair of most fashionable dark blue pencil pants, and a low-cut lacy shirt covered by an expensive fur coat. The outfit made her look cute and alluring at the same time.

"No, you're all right. Claire's just being silly. Ha!" Kevin burst into laughter. He couldn't blame Claire for sounding so shocked and rude when she saw Leena come down the stairs. This was Leena's true side. She had behaved differently in a thousand ways at Capital City. Leena chose to hide her charm and beauty to please Kevin's parents, pretending to be old-fashioned and mature instead. Kevin had persuaded her to be herself, regardless of his parents' likes and dislikes. But Leena had her own way in the end, claiming that she couldn't be her childish self in front of her husband's family.

"Oh! I see." Leena winked at Claire mischievously. She realized the reason for the shocked expression on Claire's face. She must be upset by the enormous differences between the old and new Leena.

"Fuck off. Don't be so arrogant. You are only wearing different clothes, which doesn't change anything about you," Claire said reluctantly, her awkwardness obvious. Her mouth curled. Obviously, Leena was much better than her when it came to fashion. What was worse was that Leena's snow-white skin scored her many points. Claire was incomparable.

"Let's hit the road. And stay away from Claire. She has a big mouth. Don't quarrel with her, otherwise you'll only frustrate yourself," Kevin said. He knew only something drastic could change Claire's biased opinions about Leena. Her relationship with Leena could not transform overnight. On the other hand, it was fortunate that Leena usually turned a deaf ear to Claire's criticism and taunts. It would be awful if they got into a quarrel one day.

"Okay. I see." Leena deliberately played the mature woman and agreed with what Kevin said. She wanted nothing but to see Claire getting pissed off, stomping her foot and shouting at her. Back in Capital City, Claire was always making trouble for Leena and attempting to pick a fight with her. For the sake of Kevin's parents, Leena had to swallow her anger and behave herself. But now since they were in S City, Leena found it necessary to teach Claire a lesson and clue her in some ground rules. Claire should know better than to think that Leena was a weak woman whom she could provoke easily.

"Quit being naughty!" Kevin said. He shrugged, already knowing what Leena planned to do next. He decided to step aside and become an observer. In his opinion, she was a smart and thoughtful girl who knew what she was doing.

"Stop running away! And don't you look down on me," Claire yelled, trying to catch up with them as they left the house. Noticing that her existence was being ignored while Leena and Kevin flirted with each other right in front of her, Claire couldn't refrain herself any longer and grew angry. She knew she was the subject of their conversation.

"Why should we care about your feelings? You're too old to be looked after by others. You're a grown-up, you should learn how to do things on your own," Leena said. She was highly amused at the expression on Claire's face. She finally had the opportunity to get her revenge and reprimand Claire. Claire had been so arrogant in Capital City. Leena had to swallow her anger and do what she was ordered. It was different now. This was her city and Leena would be the one giving Claire orders. Nobody dared to use Leena as a punching bag. Not her parents, not her brothers. However, Claire had an exaggerated opinion of her abilities and had forced her to kneel and surrender. It was time to strike back.

Kevin, why are you standing there and doing nothing? Didn't you hear what she just said to me?" Claire yelled hysterically. She finally caught up to them as they reached the elevator. Claire didn't want to be left behind or be considered a pathetic clown. As Kevin's only sister, she had the natural right to be loved and looked after by her brother, didn't she?

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1077 - Chapter 1075: Strike Back (part two)

Chapter 1077: Chapter 1075: Strike Back (part two)

"Claire, I am warning you once again. I hope you can enjoy a good time with Leena in the city. Otherwise, be sure that I will send you back home. Besides, Leena's family is a lot more well-known than you think. She just doesn't want to be thought of as one of those rich girls from powerful families. She chose to keep a low profile and endure your insults again and again. I am supposed to respect her wishes and so I didn't intervene. But now that you have decided to stay here, you'll discover many more secrets about her. By then, I'm sure you'll regret everything you have done to Leena," Kevin said sternly.

Kevin had kept the knowledge of Leena's wealthy family from Claire since Leena wished to keep the secret to herself and he had to respect her wish. Rich as she was, Leena was also independent and open-minded, and she knew what was right for herself. So Kevin had decided not to make any decisions on her behalf.

"What secrets? Are you talking about me?" Leena asked loudly, suddenly arriving at the scene. She walked downstairs. She had heard part of Kevin's conversation with Claire, and couldn't help but be curious about what they were discussing.

"It's your guess," Kevin answered, smiling. He looked over Leena up and down. Apparently, his wife had finally decided to be herself again, instead of pretending to be someone else in front of his family. She must have been tired of being discreet and mature. Today, she looked like the lovely princess she actually was.

"What? Are you actually Leena? Or just some fucking imposter?" Claire shouted in disbelief. She was shocked to see Leena in the fashionable clothes. How could this woman, as beautiful as a supermodel, be the same girl she had come to know in Capital City, whom Claire considered to be ordinary, old-fashioned, and even ugly?

"What are you talking about? Did I miss something? Kevin, is there something wrong with me?" Leena asked, ill at ease. She was wearing a pair of most fashionable dark blue pencil pants, and a low-cut lacy shirt covered by an expensive fur coat. The outfit made her look cute and alluring at the same time.

"No, you're all right. Claire's just being silly. Ha!" Kevin burst into laughter. He couldn't blame Claire for sounding so shocked and rude when she saw Leena come down the stairs. This was Leena's true side. She had behaved differently in a thousand ways at Capital City. Leena chose to hide her charm and beauty to please Kevin's parents, pretending to be old-fashioned and mature instead. Kevin had persuaded her to be herself, regardless of his parents' likes and dislikes. But Leena had her own way in the end, claiming that she couldn't be her childish self in front of her husband's family.

"Oh! I see." Leena winked at Claire mischievously. She realized the reason for the shocked expression on Claire's face. She must be upset by the enormous differences between the old and new Leena.

"Fuck off. Don't be so arrogant. You are only wearing different clothes, which doesn't change anything about you," Claire said reluctantly, her awkwardness obvious. Her mouth curled. Obviously, Leena was much better than her when it came to fashion. What was worse was that Leena's snow-white skin scored her many points. Claire was incomparable.

"Let's hit the road. And stay away from Claire. She has a big mouth. Don't quarrel with her, otherwise you'll only frustrate yourself," Kevin said. He knew only something drastic could change Claire's biased opinions about Leena. Her relationship with Leena could not transform overnight. On the other hand, it was fortunate that Leena usually turned a deaf ear to Claire's criticism and taunts. It would be awful if they got into a quarrel one day.

"Okay. I see." Leena deliberately played the mature woman and agreed with what Kevin said. She wanted nothing but to see Claire getting pissed off, stomping her foot and shouting at her. Back in Capital City, Claire was always making trouble for Leena and attempting to pick a fight with her. For the sake of Kevin's parents, Leena had to swallow her anger and behave herself. But now since they were in S City, Leena found it necessary to teach Claire a lesson and clue her in some ground rules. Claire should know better than to think that Leena was a weak woman whom she could provoke easily.

"Quit being naughty!" Kevin said. He shrugged, already knowing what Leena planned to do next. He decided to step aside and become an observer. In his opinion, she was a smart and thoughtful girl who knew what she was doing.

"Stop running away! And don't you look down on me," Claire yelled, trying to catch up with them as they left the house. Noticing that her existence was being ignored while Leena and Kevin flirted with each other right in front of her, Claire couldn't refrain herself any longer and grew angry. She knew she was the subject of their conversation.

"Why should we care about your feelings? You're too old to be looked after by others. You're a grown-up, you should learn how to do things on your own," Leena said. She was highly amused at the expression on Claire's face. She finally had the opportunity to get her revenge and reprimand Claire. Claire had been so arrogant in Capital City. Leena had to swallow her anger and do what she was ordered. It was different now. This was her city and Leena would be the one giving Claire orders. Nobody dared to use Leena as a punching bag. Not her parents, not her brothers. However, Claire had an exaggerated opinion of her abilities and had forced her to kneel and surrender. It was time to strike back.

Kevin, why are you standing there and doing nothing? Didn't you hear what she just said to me?" Claire yelled hysterically. She finally caught up to them as they reached the elevator. Claire didn't want to be left behind or be considered a pathetic clown. As Kevin's only sister, she had the natural right to be loved and looked after by her brother, didn't she?

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1078 - Chapter 1076: Strike Back (part three)

Chapter 1078: Chapter 1076: Strike Back (part three)

"Why should I defend you? As far as I'm concerned, Leena is right," Kevin answered coolly. He pressed the pause button on the elevator's control panel and allowed Claire to come inside.

"I see. You were pretending to be well-behaved and nice to fool Dad and Mom. As soon as you came back to your own house, you just couldn't wait to show your true self," Claire huffed in irritation. She glared at Leena accusingly and in disbelief, not quite registering the fact that the weak and soft Leena had the nerve to stand up to her. She seemed so different.

"I'm sorry, Claire. But you are right. If you are offended, just let it be and don't say another word," Leena retorted sharply. Her response shocked Claire once again and was a huge blow to her ego. Leena smiled sweetly. As Kevin's wife, she was determined to convince Claire, one way or another, to get rid of her bad habits of being wild, self-willed and ungrateful. She had been spoiled by her family since she was born. If Claire didn't change, she was doomed and wouldn't find herself a suitable husband. No matter how kind and tolerant men were these days, they wouldn't accept such an uncontrollable wife.

Kevin zipped up his mouth and decided to let Claire have a taste of her own medicine. Truthfully, he would feel delighted to see it happen.

"I know women can be erratic, but I never thought you were the worst of the lot. I really underestimated you," Claire voiced out in a mocking voice. Her mouth twisted in a contemptuous sneer. She realized suddenly that she had been fooled by Leena. She had tried desperately to uncover Leena's true side, but had failed to do so. There is an old saying that goes, 'People shouldn't be judged by their looks.' Claire finally knew what that meant, now that she had seen Leena for who she was.

"Claire, let me give you a piece of advice. Despite their superficial resemblances, things can be very different in their essence. Just take human beings as an example. People can be really evil, although sometimes they seem to be amiable and kind." Leena wanted her to realize that Louisa wasn't as much of a friend to her as she pretended to be.

"What do you mean? Are you accusing me of something?" Claire had intended to squeeze in between Leena and Kevin. It was in vain, since Kevin chose to stand close to Leena, forcing Claire to step aside.

"If you think so, sure. I have got nothing else to say," Leena answered. She decided to adopt a neutral position. As far as she was concerned, Claire wasn't a bad woman. To tell the truth, she was just a spoiled rich girl. If Claire was guided properly, she would be lovely and charming, rather than mean and repulsive.

"Kevin, what's wrong with her? Shouldn't you discipline your wife?" Claire wasn't brave enough to be arrogant when her parents weren't with her. So she asked her brother for help.

Listen to Leena. Although she is younger than you, she is smarter and more thoughtful. I know you have always been a spoiled girl, but you really get carried away sometimes. It's time that Leena taught you a lesson and showed you how to be a decent lady." Kevin was impressed with Leena. Claire was his beloved sister and he hoped she could live a better life. If Leena could transform Claire, it would be a real blessing to Kevin's family.

"Why should I listen to her?" Claire pressed her lips together. A look of pure hatred flashed in her eyes. However, she couldn't confront Leena directly since Kevin had decided to side with his wife.

"Leena is my wife and your sister-in-law. Isn't that good enough for you to show her some respect?" As they reached the parking lot, Kevin pressed a button on his car keys. They walked in the direction of the car.

"I have never considered her my sister-in-law," Claire said haughtily. Although she had spoken in a small voice, Kevin heard her anyway. His trainings as a soldier had made him extremely sensitive to faint noises. However, Kevin chose to remain silent. He didn't intend to embarrass Claire in front of Leena.

"Wow! Bro, it's Bugatti. Since when have you become so rich? This is very strange. Wait a minute, tell me the truth. Are you taking bribes?" Claire should have cheered up seeing her brother's luxury car. However, as she stopped to think about it, she wondered how her brother got his hands on that kind of money. A luxurious house and luxurious cars. It was more likely that Kevin was taking bribes, because as far as she knew, he had never asked their parents for money. He was old enough to be earning quite enough on his own.

"Sis, what are you thinking about? I won't do anything that violates the law and order. Dad would surely skin me alive," Kevin said, struck at her words. He hit Claire's head softly, annoyed that his sister would consider him to be a dirty soldier. Kevin was a man of strict moral principles. He would never allow himself to smear his reputation and ruin his own career.

"In that case, how did you get so much money? Did you get it from Mom?" Claire massaged her head. Although Kevin hadn't hit her too hard, she didn't like him doing it.

"I'm a grown man and won't ask Mom for money. Please set your mind at rest. I'm earning money legally. There's no way that I will be court martialled." Kevin opened the car door, ushering Leena into the passenger seat. He wouldn't be out of money even if he was denied his income from the bar. After all, he rendered outstanding services every year, and was awarded with a great deal of money and rewards. Of course, all this was restrictive. He wasn't as rich as Leena's brothers.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1079 - Chapter 1077: The War Between The SISTER-IN-LAW (part one)

Chapter 1079: Chapter 1077: The War Between The SISTER-IN-LAW (part one)

"Really?" Claire was doubtful when she stepped into the car. She couldn't believe what Kevin said. Her brother's salary as a military officer was never enough for him to afford a luxurious life. It was still the government that was paying them regardless of how high their positions were. Thus, there was no soldier who had ever become a millionaire due to their limited salaries. So how was it possible for Kevin to purchase such a fancy house and cars? He couldn't afford them! Moreover, he bought those branded clothes and shoes like he just paid them with wasted papers and not money. That was just unbelievable!

"What do you mean, Claire? Do I need to steal and rob just to polish myself?" Kevin glanced at his sister disapprovingly as he fastened his seatbelt. He was silent when he started the engine and slowly drove off.

"Steal and rob? That is just ridiculous! I just felt puzzled, okay?" Claire was excited for her first trip to S City. It was just within a minute when her attention got caught by the scenery that was passing by. It was easy to say that S City was quickly progressing into a very lively area. She could see a lot of buildings and streets that had been constructed. Everything was screaming development and economic advancement in S City. It was like a breath of fresh air to Claire as she had gotten so used to the ancient cultural atmosphere of the city she was from.

On the other hand, Leena stayed quiet the whole time as she didn't want to interfere with the siblings' conversation. The two might have a lot to talk about. She chose not to feed Claire's curiosity about her brother's income even if she knew about it. It was forbidden for military officers to run a business. Kevin had been very clear with that when he told her about it. Leena wouldn't want to leak his secret to anyone, even to his younger sister.

"Leena, do you have any restaurant in mind?" Kevin turned and asked. He needed to know Leena's opinion as she was the one to pay the bill.

"Claire, what's your opinion? Western food or Chinese food?" As thoughtful as Leena always was, she turned to Claire. It had been a habit for her to inquire about others before making decisions.

"Of course, Western food! My life is already full of Chinese food. I honestly miss everything Western nowadays," said Claire with a grin. She had been outside the country for a while and had her filled with Western cuisines. However, it wasn't just the taste that she missed about Western foods. It was actually the luxury and elegance one felt when eating such. So high-class and fab! It felt like she had been eating too many Chinese foods since she came back to China.

"Okay! I know where we should go. To Westin, Kevin!" Leena made the decision as soon as Claire finished speaking. Confidence was in her voice as she knew that she could satisfy everything her sister-in-law would ask for as long as it was in S City.

"Got it. Westin it is," replied Kevin in an obedient tone. He slightly turned the steering wheel and drove toward another direction.

Westin was already a sea of noise and commotion when they arrived. The dining hall was crammed with guests. Everyone's voices and clanking utensils were filling the place with noises from wall to wall. There was no way to deny that Westin was one of the city's most popular restaurants.

"Wow! What a crowd!" Claire was beyond amazed as she looked around. As far as she recalled, most of the Western restaurants were not welcomed in China. She didn't really expect such a number of people in this place.

That's not strange as Westin is the number one Western restaurant in S City. It ranks first both for its food and interior design." Kevin spoke to Claire in a calm manner. He wasn't really a regular in Westin. He just came here a couple of times on invitations.

"I think the price must be among the top as well!" The lady pursed her lips as she talked to her brother. It was easy to see that everyone in there was dressed up beautifully. There was no doubt that Westin was only for rich people.

"You are right. Don't worry about the price though. The dinner will be on your sister-in-law's treat. I'm sure that she will not lend you here as collateral in case she doesn't pay." Kevin said with a slight laugh. He was having his time joking with his sister.

"Huh! Actually, I worry because she is the one to pay. On the other hand, it is still your money that she will use even if she said that it is on her treat. It is like being famous without paying anything. What a nice business!" The lady smirked and shot Leena with a contemptuous glare. She even remained with her disdainful expression as she followed Leena and Kevin across the place.

"All tables are occupied," concluded Kevin after surveying the place. There seemed to be no seat available for them as it was the peak hour.

"That's all right. We can dine in the compartment!" Leena said. Worry was out of her mind as she knew that there was a compartment in that restaurant for special guests. She didn't think that the lack of seat should be considered a problem at all.

"Is there a compartment?" The man gave the place another look. He'd been in the place for a few times but never had he thought that the restaurant actually had such a section.

"Yes! There is a compartment but it is not open to the guests. No worries, I can use it. Just follow me," was Leena's calm reply. She didn't really use the compartment often. Compared to dining alone in a lonely compartment, it was better to dine in the hall where the atmosphere was livelier and warmer. It was just that she had to use the compartment this time as there was no available table outside.

"You sounded like you know the boss of this restaurant, do you?" asked Kevin with a frown. Now he could not help but guess who among Leena's close brothers owned Westin.

"I know him of course! Westin is a property of FX International Group. Do you think I should not know the boss of Westin?" Leena flashed a smile at Kevin and Claire. Little did her sister-in-law know that her specific request just saved her a sum of money. She never paid for anything while dining in Westin.

"Oh! I got it. I never expected that Edward owns this place." Realization finally hit Kevin. Although FX International Group had many assets and branches across the whole country, never had he imagined for it to engage in so many industries as to cover Western food restaurant.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1080 - Chapter 1078: The War Between The SISTER-IN-LAW (part two)

Chapter 1080: Chapter 1078: The War Between The SISTER-IN-LAW (part two)

"Mrs. Gu." They were already at the compartment's entrance when a manager came and addressed Leena respectfully. Everybody in the place knew her as she often visited here with Edward.

"Aha, Manager Liu. Is the compartment reserved? Will Edward come here tonight?" Leena asked in a graceful manner with a smiling face.

"The compartment is available. Mr. Mu hasn't been here for a long time. Even his close friends who usually come here with Mr. Mu haven't been around for a while." Manager Liu smiled politely. He would never dare to neglect any of Leena's questions as he knew her relationship with his boss.

"They must have been very busy! I want to use the compartment since it's available." A playful smile cracked Leena's lips as she looked at the manager. Of course, she knew what Edward and his friends were busy about! Edward could not even keep his hands off Daisy for a single moment. Rain was sent to Thailand. Tom took no interest in anything except for his experiments. How could it be possible for them to come here and eat?

"Yes, Mrs. Gu. Please come in." The manager pushed the door open for them as a gesture for them to come in.

"Thank you, Manager Liu!" said Leena pleasantly. She believed in treating everyone nicely. It was impossible for her to put on airs against anybody. It was the reason why she was famous to many people.

"You're welcome, Mrs. Gu. We are promoting some new dishes recently. Would you want to have a try?" Manager Liu guided them to the compartment and made the promotion as soon as they reached their seats.

"Oh! Really? What are the guests' opinions about the new dishes?" Other people's opinion meant a lot to Leena. She had practiced taking ideas from others before trying out new things.

"The new dishes are welcomed by our guests as they are both aristocratic and tasty. Many guests revisited Westin just because of them. Would you want to have a try of those new products, Mrs. Gu?" The manager sounded tentative. He knew how to please his guest as a professional. As far as he observed, Leena was one of those women who were sensitive to every kind of new things and liked to welcome fresh challenges. That was the reason why he offered her their new dishes rather than the usual things she ordered. The great popularity of those new dishes among the guests was just a second reason for him.

"Since you recommend them so earnestly, I'd like to have a try. I'm really curious how tasty they are. How about you, Kevin? Would you want to order the same as mine or something else?" There was excitement in Leena's eyes as she talked. Like many girls, Leena was caught between her desire for delicious foods and her thirst to keep herself slender. Nonetheless, she would not even give a second thought about cheating her diet when she heard of new foods.

"Everything is okay for me. How about you, Claire?" Kevin was not particular about food. Every kind of food would mean the same to him as long as it didn't fall into the category that he extremely disliked.

"I will not take the same food as she ordered! I want to have lobster and beefsteak. That's all. Nothing else." The manager's flattering attitude had already aroused suspicion within Claire. She might be reluctant to ask but she could sense it that the manager had always been hospitable to Leena. She just disliked Leena regardless of what she would do! The male manager's sincere behavior towards her sister-in-law had no doubt intensified her hatred for Leena.

"Well, Manager Liu. Please serve Kevin and me the same food. It's lobster and beefsteak for the lady. Thank you!" Leena said while casting a look at Kevin. It felt nice to see Kevin agree and support her decisions regardless of how trivial or small the matter was.

"Okay. I will let them serve the dishes as soon as possible. Please wait for a moment." Manager Liu nodded before leaving the compartment.

"The service in this restaurant is quite good. That guy behaved like a waiter instead of a manager. He is quite different from those arrogant managers I have met. It seems a big restaurant is really better than those small ones." Claire was born into a military family. Due to her parents, almost all the people around her had high positions in the army and government. It was rare for her to get in contact with some senior executive people in the business circle. Thus, she had assumed that every high ranking executive in a company would be exactly like those poker-faced militaries or governmental seniors she knew.

"Manager Liu doesn't treat everybody that way. It depends on who the guest is," said Kevin with a smile. If Edward, Rain, and Tom hadn't treated Leena as their little princess, Manager Liu would have never treated Leena as a queen.

"Kevin, are you implying that that manager has known who you are?" For her prejudice against Leena, Claire didn't believe that Manager Liu was flattering her sister-in-law. She didn't think that she was that important. However, it was a fact that Leena was the only one who Manager Liu had kept talking with since they walked in. It was just that Claire was ignorant to even notice it.

"Of course not. The only reason why he is treating us politely is because of your sister-in-law." Kevin was unwilling to claim the credit belonging to Leena. His life had always been limited to the military circle. How could it be possible for him to know some commercial elites? Besides, it would cause him some trouble if he was considered to be too close with some businessmen.

"Really? How is it possible?" Claire measured Leena in suspicion. To her surprise, she did spot some changes in Leena's behavior and air. She was a different woman when she was in the capital city. Leena used to be calm and composed. But she looked more lively and bubbly now.

"We come here for dinner, not for interrogation, Claire!" The handsome officer could not help but furrow his eyebrows. Claire's questions were outright silly and her disrespect for his wife had certainly upset him.

"I'm just curious! Is it illegal to ask?" Claire twisted her lips sarcastically as some ideas came to her head. 'Is it possible that Leena isn't as simple as she seems to be?' she secretly asked herself.

"Claire, I can answer all your questions. What are your questions?" Leena butted into the conversation. She had sensed that Kevin already lost his temper with how his sister had been asking offending questions.

"All right. I'm not interested in your affairs. They're none of my business!" was Claire's arrogant reply as she raised her chin. She held no gratitude for Leena. She didn't even care if Leena had saved her from her brother's anger by diverting his attention.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1081 - Chapter 1079: The War Between The SISTER-IN-LAW (part three)

Chapter 1081: Chapter 1079: The War Between The SISTER-IN-LAW (part three)

"Okay! But as I said, you can ask me anything if you have any questions." A kind smile broke across Leena's face. Her good upbringing had forged her a forgiving nature. As Kevin's wife, she had more patience for his sister. Life was too long anyway. She wouldn't mind spending some time winning Claire's approval.

"Maybe In the future. I'm not sure that you can give me the answer that I want to know though!" Claire showed her disapproval by curling her lips on Leena. She said each of her words between clenched teeth. She just could not help despising Leena from the bottom of her heart.

"Leena, just leave her alone. Do you want to drink some water?" Kevin had noticed one of Leena's bad habits since they started to live together. She seldom drank water. That was why he kept reminding Leena to drink whenever necessary.

"Okay, thank you, Kevin." Leena covered her uneasiness with a sweet smile. She was honestly worried about how the future would be. Claire's wantonness was beyond her expectation. It wouldn't be easy to get along with her, although she had already prepared herself for it.

For Leena's VIP status, all dishes were served to them very soon. To distinguish Leena's importance, it was even the manager who served the dishes for them in person.

"Mrs. Gu, please have a try of the dishes. Just let me know if they fail you. I'll arrange other dishes for you." Manager Liu stared at Leena with sheer expectation. He was afraid for his recommendation to disappoint his guest.

"All right, I'll take some of them to see if they are as fantastic as you said." Leena cut a slice of meat and put it into her mouth. The juiciness of the dish spread through her tongue immediately. It was so good that it had conquered all her senses.

How is it?" The manager looked at Leena nervously. He could not tear his gaze from her face as the slightest change in her expression would mean a difference in his career life.

"Wow! This is wonderful. The meat is both fresh and tender. It doesn't taste raw and the vegetables match perfectly with the meat. This dish is fabulous!" Leena studied the meat and vegetables in her plate carefully. This was the first time for her to see a Western food displayed in such a beautiful plating.

"It is very good that you like it, Mrs. Gu! Please enjoy the food. I must check outside as there are more and more guests in the hall." Alas! Manager Liu finally managed to flash his brilliant smile. No one wanted to leave their most distinguished guest with a bad impression after all.

"Okay, you can leave, Manager. Liu! We can take care of ourselves," said Leena in a mild attitude. It would be uncomfortable to eat while someone was watching anyway.

Mrs. Gu, let me know if you need anything, okay?" Manager Liu only said that to Leena. He had already noticed Kevin the moment they came in. It was just that Leena didn't show any intention of introducing the man thus he didn't dare to greet him recklessly. As a military officer, it was natural for Kevin to carry an air of sternness, thus saving him from unwanted greetings from others.

"I know. You are too courteous, Manager Liu. We have known each other for a long time. You don't need to pay too much attention to us." Almost everyone in Westin was familiar with Leena as she had been visiting the place often. It would be impossible for her to blame any staff for just some trivial issues.

Leena turned to Kevin right after the manager left. It was only then that she realized why Manager Liu kept peeping at the man from time to time while speaking to her. Kevin's stern expression was charismatic enough to attract anybody's attention. It was definitely this aura that cut him above everybody else. It was no wonder why the manager kept watching Kevin's reaction from the beginning.

"Why are you staring at me? Is there anything wrong with my face?" asked Kevin with a frown. He felt uneasy and perplexed upon noticing how his wife was looking at him.

"Nothing at all. I just suddenly realized that you look terrible when you stay silent." Leena rubbed her nose while talking in a teasing tone. There was a playful smile plastered on her face.

"Really? Nobody told me that before. I don't feel like that either." Kevin said as he took Leena's plate. He started slicing the meat for her into smaller pieces. It was easy to tell that Kevin was used to eating in Western restaurants.

"How could you know it yourself? Can you see your own expression?" Leena said in a happy tone as her husband sliced the meat for her. She found the action very thoughtful.

"That is unfair, Kevin. You should do that for me too!" On the other hand, Kevin's action made Claire feel jealous and discontented. She couldn't stand the fact that Leena had outweighed her inside Kevin's heart.

"What do you mean, Claire?" Kevin raised his head and shot his sister a confused glare. He wondered about what was wrong with her. Why was she shouting all of a sudden? No one said anything to provoke her, after all.

"You cannot just cut the meat for Leena alone. You should help me with it too!" Claire said like a spoiled princess. She pursed her lips to show how unhappy she was.

"Just that? What a calculating girl! All right, let me help you with your food. Give it to me! I'll cut all of it for you. But I think you have ordered too much. Are you sure you can eat all of this? Aren't you afraid of gaining weight?" said Kevin as he helplessly shook his head. It was extremely nice that Leena and his mother were getting along really well. That had saved him a lot of trouble. But it was different with Claire's case. The war between the two sisters-in-law seemed to be inevitable. As a brother, he had to forgive his sister's waywardness and assume the peacemaker role between the two ladies. He smiled bitterly before pushing Leena's plate back to her and then took Claire's.

"A skinny girl is not beautiful. That is what you told to me, Kevin. I still remember it. You see, I have no reason to lose weight. Besides, I only ordered lobster and beefsteak. It will be impossible for me to put on weight just because of them." To be frank, the two dishes were too much for Claire. The only reason why she ordered those was to embarrass Leena. She was dying to see how her sister-in-law would react once she saw the expensive bill. Those were her plans but never would she admit her real purpose to them. She wouldn't want to waste this opportunity of teaching her sister-in-law a lesson or two. She was sure that the bill would be beyond Leena's ability to pay. She would certainly ask for help from her brother. That would be extremely interesting and she just could not help but feel excited about it. She would bet her bottom dollar that Leena would die of shame today.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1082 - Chapter 1080: Suspicions (part one)

Chapter 1082: Chapter 1080: Suspicions (part one)

"That's true. I don't know why you girls are obsessed with getting thinner. I'm sure that you'll look ugly if you are as thin as a lath," Kevin replied as he cut the steak. He didn't know what other men thought but he had never liked skinny women.

Look at your wife. She is also skinny," Claire answered back as she glanced sideways at Leena. The latter looked plump and awkward in her loose clothing during their stay in the capital city. It was only until now that Claire realized Leena's waist was much more slender than hers. This quite depressed her.

Yeah, you're right. You're too thin, Leena. I have to feed you up a bit." The man glanced at Leena while he spoke. Despite his words, he thought his wife was curvy and perky. The dress exaggerated her wasp waist and enlarged her bosom.

"Huh? I think I'm good." Leena looked down at her body. She might not be what people called "hot" but she had "hour-glass" figure written all over her body. She wasn't as thin as Kevin said.

You'll look more beautiful if you get fatter," was Kevin's indifferent reply. Leena didn't know whether he meant what he said as it sounded more like a half-meant joke. He even looked serious while staring at her.

"No! It'll be scary." She shuddered just by the thought of herself being fat. She used to suffer from obesity, so she knew how painful it was. She didn't want to fall into the same old trap again.

"See? I'm not alone in this. No woman wants to be obese." For the first time, Claire took Leena's side as they shared the same idea.

"Good to see that you hang together. Hope you can get along with each other afterward." Kevin smiled widely and pushed the plate back to Claire. His eyes glittered with joy. 'What a delightful scene it is,' he thought.

The meal wasn't enjoyable but the three got on very well with one another. They asked for the bill after they dined and wined to satiety. Claire chuckled to herself because she thought the price on the bill would embarrass Leena. However, things didn't go that way. Leena calmly took a card out of her purse and gave it to the cashier. More surprisingly, she didn't even need to enter the password. The cashier just swiped the card and respectfully returned it to her.

"Leena, what card did you use just now? You didn't even need to enter the password! It's amazing!" Claire asked curiously when they walked out of the restaurant. What she saw at the checkout counter really surprised her.

"Well, it's a Dragblac Card. What's wrong? You seem curious." Claire's question confused Leena. The card required no passwords and she had been accustomed to it. Why did it surprise Claire?

"How did you get it? Which bank is it from? It looks different from general bank cards," Claire continued to inquire. She also wanted to have this card. Then she could show it off to her friends.

"Yeah. It's not a bank card. It can only be used in all branches under FX International Group." Leena patted her forehead as she was suddenly enlightened. She finally knew why Claire was curious. She used this card in front of them for the first time, so Claire had no idea of it.

"FX International Group? What is it?" Now Claire's curiosity was just unstoppable. She wanted to get the answer to her question despite her dislike towards her sister-in-law.

"Err... It's a little difficult to explain. Well, you can search Google for the answer after you go home. I believe you'll know the ins and outs on the internet." Leena made a mystery of the card. She didn't expect Claire to be so interested in her card.

"Come on. Don't leave me hanging. Kevin, you have stayed in S City for long. You must know the story of the card, right? Tell me about it." Since Leena was unwilling to answer, Claire turned to ask Kevin, who remained silent all the time.

"You heard what Leena said. Search Google if you want to know the answer. I believe that it'll provide more detailed information." Kevin was also very curious about the card but he knew it was nothing more than a privilege Edward gave Leena. It was when Leena said that she could only use the card in FX International Group's branches that gave it away.

"Come on! Can't you tell me now? You're being so mysterious." Claire pouted angrily. However, she was even more curious about FX International Group.

No, we aren't. There are too many things to explain when it comes to FX International so you have to figure it out yourself. That way, we'll not need to answer your questions one by one." Leena frowned. She really didn't want to explain more on this.

"Fine. I'll find the answer myself. I won't bother to ask you!" Claire replied in a huff. She dismissively turned to look at the heavy traffic on the street. The moment turned awkward.

Kevin looked at Leena and smiled helplessly. He could do nothing to his sister. Leena stuck out her tongue at him, telling him that she seemed to provoke Claire again.

"It's still early. We can go have fun somewhere." Leena suggested after a while as Claire pulled a long face.

"Good idea! How about going to the bar? I'll invite Louisa to join us." Claire immediately got excited. But then she thought sadly, 'Alas. I was bored as hell in the capital city as my parents didn't allow me to go out. It sucks.'

"Maybe another time. I'm tired. I have to report for duty at the army base early tomorrow morning." Kevin agreed with Leena at the beginning but changed his mind after hearing Louisa's name. It was needless to say that he didn't like that annoying woman.

"In this case, let's go back now. We can go some other day when we're free." Leena didn't like Louisa either, so she chimed in with her words.

"Come on! You brought up the idea. How come you don't want to go now? You are liars." Claire pouted as she glared at the two with burning, reproachful eyes.

"Kevin just had a cold. If he says he is tired, he means it. Do you really want to go to the bar? Let's see if we can make it tomorrow night." To disappoint Claire wasn't really Leena's idea right now. Nonetheless, she didn't want to be with Louisa. It would be the worst night of her life if she had to.

"Since you don't want to go, I'll invite Louisa to go with me. I'll call her now." Claire took her phone out and called Louisa.

Leena was relieved. She shrugged helplessly to Kevin to silently tell him that he had to deal with his sister himself.

"Hello, Claire. Did you eat dinner? What's up?" Louisa was leaning against the sofa and painting her fingers with nail polish. She was looking cozy and lazy at the same time.