

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1183 - Chapter 1181: Are You Happy (part two)

Chapter 1183: Chapter 1181: Are You Happy (part two)

Of course I deserve anything you'll find in the capital city! It is a reward to keep my mouth shut! Aren't you concerned that I might go there and warn him first since you are saying that you're going to dig his details? Anyway, don't flatter yourself. You won't even come closer to him. You will be surrounded by a platoon of soldiers even before you get a chance." It seemed that they were having a casual chat. But in reality, Leena said those words to hint that her husband had a military background. This was their unique way of communicating. They had been friends for years. Sometimes, they could even read each other's mind through gestures. Leena was being honest with Patricia. She was her close friend and there was no need to hide her husband's identity from her.

"So what is his name? You could not possibly still keep it as a secret!" Patricia was slightly shocked to find out that Leena's husband was from the military. Now she was really eager to know about his name!

"Kevin Gu. I will introduce you to him properly when I get a chance." Leena knew her husband well. He would feel offended if she kept him from all her friends. It was quite important for him to get to know her social circle. She should at least introduce him to her friends as he wished. It was nice of him to try to get involved as much as possible in her life. She felt flattered by the thought.

"Excellent! I have never met a real Major General in my life before! I hope he is a good-looking man! You know me, I only talk to handsome men. If your husband is not up to my standard then don't expect me to be friendly to him." Patricia gave Leena a profound look. She had her unique cool way of expressing herself. Leena didn't take her words seriously as she knew Patricia was just joking around.

"Whatever floats your boat! I don't care if you talk to him or not." Leena pouted her mouth and pretended to be annoyed at her friend. She was pondering why on earth would Patricia judge a person by his look. Shouldn't she value a person according to his personality?

"So, he is not that handsome, I guess? Are you serious? Is he an ugly man? What were you thinking, girl? You are supposed to spend decades of your life with your other half. You could have at least found yourself a hot dude! But anyway, I am more interested to know how you two met. When did it happen? I would never imagine this kind of person walking into your life!" Patricia stared bluntly at Leena. She knew that Leena was keeping something from her and she was eager to find out what it was. They had been good friends for years but she never heard the name Kevin Gu being mentioned once. She was surprised to hear about him. She started to wonder whether she really knew Leena that well.

He is definitely not ugly! He is such a fascinating guy. I hope you are not trying to steal him from me!" Leena laughed and teased Patricia. She knew Patricia was an open-minded girl and would not be offended by her harmless joke.

"Good for you, Leena! I am glad that you think I am capable of stealing your man's heart. You have finally realized that I am the prettier one here." With her loose hair twisting around her finger, Patricia pretentiously winked at Leena. She looked so flirtatious that Leena almost spat the coffee out of her mouth.

Shocking! Look at you and your flirtatious move! I have to say, I am not a match to that at all." Leena covered her mouth with both of her hands and tried hard not to burst out laughing. She was greatly amused by Patricia.

"Shut up! I know what you are thinking right now. You bad girl!" In reaction, Patricia cracked a big smile on her face and turned her head away. She knew that Leena was holding back her laughter hard. Nonetheless, she was glad that her poor acting just now amused Leena.

"Hey, I am not the one who is flirting around here. You have always teased me. Now it is my turn to tease you back! Every dog has his own day. You have suppressed me long enough and it is my time to shine!" Leena couldn't hold back her laughter anymore. She proudly raised her chin up and looked all triumphant.

"Is he nice to you?" Patricia looked at Leena in the eyes as she sincerely asked the question. It was to her greatest surprise that Leena chose a military man as her husband. It never occurred to her that Leena would make such a bold choice.

"Of course, I love him." Leena sighed sweetly as she lightly stirred the coffee in her mug. She was always serious when it came to her husband. The topic apparently meant a lot in her heart. Even the tone of her voice changed, she was no longer playful.

"Are you happy?" Patricia sensed the seriousness of Leena's tone and gazed at her warmly. She wanted to make sure that her friend was living her dream life.

"I am very happy." Leena gave her an assuring look. Her smile was genuine and it instantly made Patricia understand her. She felt truly happy for her.

"My blessings to you, girl!" Patricia extended her hand and gave Leena a splendid smile.

"Thanks, hun." With these words, Leena caught Patricia's hand and held it tightly. She felt greatly blessed to have a friend like Patricia. They didn't even need many words, just a mere look, and the lady could magically fill her heart with warmth.

Leena drove directly to FX International Group after bidding goodbye to Patricia. She thought that it would be nice to visit Mr. Mu as it was still early. She remembered what Daisy had told her before and that urged her to see him in person.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1184 - Chapter 1182: Are You Happy (part three)

Chapter 1184: Chapter 1182: Are You Happy (part three)

It is my pleasure to see you here." Anna leaped with joy as soon as she saw Leena stepped in. She extended her arms and greeted her warmly.

"The pleasure is all mine! I heard the good news about your new relationship. Congratulations to you!" Leena smiled warmly and said. Actually, she was quite surprised to know about her new date. It never occurred to her that Anna would date that guy.

"Thank you very much, Leena. Actually, I need some help right now. Would you mind coming in first, please? I badly need help in calming down the president. He is really in a foul mood today and he has scolded several senior managers. It is getting tough here." Anna knew how fond of Leena her boss was and she sincerely wished for her arrival to calm him down. Seeing Leena coming in earlier, flooded her both in so much hope and relief.

"What happened? How come? Was Daisy giving him a hard time again?" Leena's eyebrows slightly furrowed. In her mind, the only person who could possibly cross Mr. Mu was his dear wife, Daisy.

"I am not quite sure about that. He has been in a bad mood since this morning. I don't know what is really going on with him." Anna could not draw a conclusion as she had no idea about the exact cause of Edward being mad. It would be wrong for her to give a false guess.

"Don't worry about it! Just leave it to me." With a reassuring smile on her pretty face, Leena walked straight to the president's office.

Usually, she would walk straight into the office without knocking. She was a bold girl in front of Edward and would not really care about those polite manners. However, today was a bit different. She raised her hand and earnestly knocked on the closed door. With her lips curled up, Leena thought of a great idea.

Come in." A deep male voice sounded behind the door. Leena sensed the irritation and impatience in his voice straight away. It indeed confirmed that someone was really mad today!

Nonetheless, what she heard just made Leena's smile bigger. She deliberately knocked on the door more rather than stepped in. She wanted to see what Edward would do next.

"Are you deaf? I said come in! If you don't understand what I said, you might just as well be fired!" Edward was now shouting behind the door as Leena successfully pushed him over the edge with her bold moves. He sounded really angry and dangerous. Anna's heart was almost in her throat as she thought, 'Geez, what is wrong with Leena? Why is she irritating Edward like that? Is she trying to pour more oil to the fire?'

As if she could read her mind, Leena turned around and smiled at Anna. She had the most naughty twinkly eyes Anna had ever seen. She was really worried that Edward might dash out the room like a bullet if Leena kept annoying him.

Behind the door, Edward's eyes were glaring with anger as he could not believe what was going on at this point. Someone had dared to test his limits and it was indeed a very bad timing. He was growing more and more impatient as he waited for the person to come inside his lair. However, almost one minute had passed and the door was still closed tightly. It was clear that someone was joking around him on purpose. Edward was furious! He couldn't stand this farce anymore. Thus, he stood up quickly behind the desk and dashed towards the door. He was fuming when he forcefully pulled the door wide open and someone delicate fell right into his arms. Goodness! His world automatically stopped.

Ouch, Edward! Can't you open the door gently?" Leena touched her cute nose and pouted her mouth. She bumped him right on the chest and now her poor nose hurt. She was about to open the door anyway, it was just that he did it first. Therefore, she lost her balance and fell straight ahead.

"Leena, it is you! Are you okay? Did I hurt you?" Edward raised his eyebrows in shock. All his anger disappeared the moment he realized who was standing in front of him. He couldn't help but worry about her upon seeing her face twisting in pain. Gently helping her stand straight, he bent down and carefully examined her face to see if her nose was bleeding. To his great relief, nothing major happened. As Leena did not fall down to the ground, she was alright. However, it still made Edward worried to see Leena frowning. He could see that her nose was a little reddish due to the bump.

"Well, you almost broke my nose there. See? It is now all red!" With her hand rubbing her nose, Leena deliberately gave Edward a cold glare. She would not have joked earlier if she knew this would happen. Leena sighed silently and thought sarcastically, 'That's your fault, Leena! Congratulations for hurting your own nose!' Now she couldn't help but worry if her pretty nose was still firm! She was quite proud of her nose to start with.

"Let me see. It seems alright. If it is actually broken, however, I think we should put a piggie bone there instead. What do you think?" Edward sniggered. He fondly moved her hand away and took another close look at her nose. He was no longer in a bad mood since Leena's arrival had lightened up his day. He was delighted to see her and her unexpected visit turned out to a big sweet surprise for him. No one could resist the charm of the adorable Leena.

"What piggie bone? Are you implying that I have a piggie nose? Edward, this is not cool. You are hurting my feelings! I am going home!" With her mouth pouting in distress, Leena stomped her feet and whirled around. However, her arm was caught by Edward. He stopped her and said with a grin, "Hold on now, We are not done yet! Why were you knocking the door without coming in just now?" Edward had to know the answer to that question. Leena was such a playful girl full of interesting ideas. He was greatly amused by her thoughts from time to time. He was wondering what kind of tricks she was pulling just now.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1185 - Chapter 1183: Are You Happy (part four)

Chapter 1185: Chapter 1183: Are You Happy (part four)

I am not tricking you, alright? I am just being polite, like always. It is important to have good manners. Therefore, I knock twice before walking in." Leena's big eyes were sparkling with mischief. She was now lying to Edward's face boldly. Under no circumstance would she admit to his accusation.

"Cut the crap! I can easily recognize all your little tricks! You never knock on my door." Edward shook his head and laughed. He knew Leena well enough to tell her bullshit. She was just like Rain, restless and full of surprises. They were like two spoiled kids who tended to act on their own wills. Whenever they came to his office, they walked in straight without knocking at all. 'Manners? Unheard of with these two.' thought Edward with a big grin on his face. He looked at Leena's naughty face and again shook his head helplessly. 'She must have heard about my bad mood from Anna earlier. She must have teased me, in order to cheer me up a little bit.' Edward sighed silently as he came to the conclusion.

"Whatever you say! I am now more sensitive about manners. I am aware of them because I have matured!" Leena caught his arms and said softly. She smiled at him, knowing that he would never shout at her or get mad at her. Edward always had a good temper whenever he was with her.

"So, according to you, you have matured? Oh really? May I ask, is getting married secretly a mature behavior?" Edward tapped on her forehead softly and snapped. Judging from his tone, Leena could tell that he was just as annoyed as Duke when it came to her secret marriage with Kevin. The topic was sort of taboo for everyone who cared for her.

"Not now! Stop mentioning it! Edward, you are just like my big brother! You guys keep barking about the same old thing! Could you let it go already? Let bygones be bygones! It happened for a reason. I am already happily married. Just let it go!" Leena pouted her mouth and stared back. It seemed to her that it would take a long way before they could finally accept Kevin as her husband. Leena hoped for that day to arrive soon. For now, things didn't seem easy for her and Kevin. They needed to gain trust and blessings from everyone.

"Sorry, no can do. I think I would nag you about this even after half a century. I am permanently traumatized by your behavior." Edward said with an evil grin as he sat down on the sofa. Not surprisingly at all, Leena's face twisted with anger as she was genuinely annoyed by his words. Poor lady. Edward just sniggered triumphantly at her aggravated look.

"Whatever. I don't want to talk about it anymore. Let's change the subject, shall we? I heard that you are not in a good mood today all day long. What and who are you angry with?" Leena tilted her head and gazed at Edward. She was curious to know the answer. Her face was lit with eagerness.

Who else would piss me off? Of course, it was you. You and your rude manners!" Holding back his laughter hard, Edward gave her a cold stare. He still looked amazingly handsome in spite of his fake angry look. Time did not leave any trace on his face as all his features remained as gorgeous despite his age. "Me? How is that even possible? I haven't seen you for days. How could it be me?" With her lips pressed together, Leena looked all confused. She didn't expect his answer at all. How could she possibly piss him off?

"Well, you pissed me off by not paying me frequent visits!" With his back leaning casually against the sofa, Edward opened his mouth and teased her. He looked relaxed and somewhat arrogant.

"Haha! Edward, you are funny. What are you talking about? Don't be ridiculous. You are just finding excuses here!" Leena burst out laughing as her irritation turned to amusement. She walked up to him and sat down next to him on the sofa.

"Why did you turn off your phone last night?" He sounded serious as he was genuinely worried about her safety. It was important for him to know her whereabouts as he cared for her greatly.

About that. I dropped my phone and it broke. Did you try to call me? Wait a minute, is this what you're angry about?" Even more confused, Leena twisted her lips. She could clearly see the care in Edward's eyes when she looked up. Why would he get so mad over her phone? He shouldn't be in a bad mood anyway just because he could not reach her.

"Well, you tell me. How did you drop your phone?" Edward chose to bury the truth deep in his heart. He didn't wish to tell her the real cause of his anger at all. It was through Daisy that he heard about what happened to Leena last night. He was upset that she didn't contact him in time when she was in trouble. Was it just him who thought that they were close and wished that they were closer. She shouldn't have kept things away from him.

"Well, it was an accident. I didn't hold it tight enough. It fell from my hand!" Leena looked away as she made a lame excuse to cover up the facts. She didn't dare to tell him what happened last night. She knew what Edward was capable of. He was a man of iron will. Things would lead to bigger troubles if she told him about the incident. Thus, she would rather keep him in the darkness. It was a lot better this way than to see him seek revenge for her. Edward would do anything to get even, no matter who he was fighting against. Leena didn't wish to get him involved at all. Therefore, she even went all out and stopped Tom from telling him the incident.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1186 - Chapter 1184: He Is Your Husband (part one)

Chapter 1186: Chapter 1184: He Is Your Husband (part one)

Do you really think that I will believe you?" Edward smirked at Leena. He couldn't believe how she seemingly took him for a fool. How could she think that he would believe such a lame excuse? Edward knew that the truth was definitely not as simple as Leena told him.

"That is the truth, whether you believe it or not. Besides, look, here is my new phone. I just bought it." Leena took her new phone out of her purse and handed it to Edward. She wanted to prove that she was saying the truth and that she didn't lie to him.

"Well, I believe that your phone was broken. What I don't believe is how it was broken." Crossing his legs casually, Edward gave her phone an uninterested glance. Yes, it was indeed a new one. However, it didn't mean that he would believe what she said just because she got herself a new phone.

"How was it broken? What do you mean?" Leena furrowed her eyebrows and pretended that she didn't understand what he said. She was secretly wondering if Tom had told Edward about what happened last night. Good Lord! She sincerely hoped not. He couldn't have told Edward about it, could he? Tom was not like Rain, he was not the type of person who would be spreading others' secret like it was butter to a toast. If it was Rain who knew about her secret, then he would have probably told Edward already, but not Tom. She trusted Tom.

"Well, you're the only one who knows what I mean. By the way, why did you decide to come here all of the sudden? You haven't been here for a long while," complained Edward. It was obvious that he wasn't happy about Leena not visiting them.

"I'm sorry but I just got really busy these days! If only I'm not busy, trust me, I will definitely come here to bother up every day until you get annoyed with me." Leena felt a bit guilty that she didn't spend much time with her brothers after she was married. She knew that they all cared so much about her and would always want her around. However, married life was not as easy as she expected. Thus, she hadn't had much time to focus on her brothers anymore.

"On the first place, why are you so busy nowadays? What the hell are you busy about? You don't even have time to call!" With one of his eyebrows raised, Edward turned to the lady as he thought about these things. She was never this busy before she got married after all. She would always call him at least every two days even when she was abroad. So what was wrong now? How could she even not call him once every week? Or more, once every two days? Why! He couldn't help but worry that something might have happened that he didn't know.

"I'm just busy. There is nothing big about it. There are just so many little things that I need to do these days. Why? Are you all mad at me?" Leena stuck her tongue out at him. Honestly, she didn't expect herself to be this busy before she got married too. Things just changed so much that she felt like her time didn't belong to her anymore. She had lost much of her free time that she couldn't do what she wanted to as freely as before.

"Well, how about this? I will send a maid to help you out. That way, you wouldn't have to do everything by yourself." Edward was not a fool. He might not have clearly understood what Leena meant by 'little things' but it was easy for him to figure out that she was spending a lot of time on housework. Thus, he offered her a maid. That would definitely resolve her lack-of-time issue and get her more time to hang out or even call.

"Umm. You don't need to do that. How about we wait and see? If I am still busy after a while, I will go and find a maid myself. You are already very busy and I don't want to bother you." Leena waved her hands. Truth was, she had already considered hiring a maid before but then changed her mind. She wanted to be with Kevin in their apartment without a third wheel. However, she would need to be preparing the clothes for the upcoming fashion show within the next few days. The sudden thought of the event made her bite on her lip. She knew that she was no-superwoman at all and doing house choirs would surely take up a lot of her time. She needed to focus on her designs now. Was it really the time for her to get a maid?

"Don't exhaust yourself too much, Leena. We can surely hire a maid for you. It's not expensive at all! Though I know that you like cooking for the ones you love and think that it's a very romantic thing to do, you have to put yourself first." Edward's voice suddenly sounded worried. He was even frowning when he continued. "You must take care of your health. Don't you remember what Tom told you the last time? Your resistance to diseases is lower than before, so you shouldn't be exhausting yourself." Leena might be careless but that didn't mean that he was as careless as her. Leena used to be sickly during her younger age and he knew how much she struggled to be as healthy as she was now. Thus, seeing Leena as busy and overworked made those people who cared deeply about her worry.

"Edward, you don't need to worry about me. I will look after myself. Can't you stop being a worrywart?" Leena said these words in a sweet tone before gently leaning into her brother's arms. She wanted him to stop worrying so much about her. She wasn't a little girl anymore and she could surely take care of herself. What she was doing right now was actually one of her tactics since she knew that her brothers couldn't resist her whenever she acted this sweetly.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1187 - Chapter 1185: He Is Your Husband (part two)

Chapter 1187: Chapter 1185: He Is Your Husband (part two)

We wouldn't be so worried about you all the time if you really could take care of yourself as good as you said." Edward's hand moved to stroke Leena's hair gently. He was really concerned about her so much and considered her his own little sister. There was no way that he wouldn't notice whatever was going on with her.

"Have I ever told you that I'm the happiest person in the whole world? That is because I have you all in my life, my brothers who treat me like I'm the most precious thing to ever breathe." For the first time, Leena told him about how grateful she was to her brothers. She was aware of how much they truly loved her and she remembered it all deep inside. She might not be the type to put her heart on her sleeves but she was also sure that they could feel how thankful she was through her actions.

"Leena, you may be thinking that you are the happiest girl in the world because of us. But you know what? In our eyes, you are the best thing we have received. You are the reason why we can be this good." A deep sigh escaped from Edward's chest as he pondered about their relationship with Leena. In reality, they were all a bit damaged in different ways. It was because they had Leena, their beloved little sister, that they could never be knocked down easily. It was just natural for them to encounter failures from time to time. But then, Leena was the driving force that kept them coming back up to fight again. They all knew that they couldn't disappoint their little princess.

I don't know about that. What I know is that you all hold a special place in my heart that nobody can ever replace." Leena was suddenly at the verge of crying upon hearing Edward's words. She was so touched about what he said that she felt her heart squeezed so good.

Silly girl, of course, we know that already! No more emotional talks, okay? Now that you are already here, why don't we have dinner together tonight?" Edward held her in his arms gently. He saw that Leena was about to cry, and that was why he diverted their subject. Not all things needed to be said out loud after all.

Tonight?" said Leena a bit hesitantly. It was true that she wanted to have dinner with her brothers but Claire would be home alone. She couldn't just ignore her and go out herself. Besides, Gerard was also a problem. He flew all the way from France to visit her. She surely needed to be a good hostess to him.

"Yeah, tonight. Is there a problem?" Edward furrowed his eyebrows after noticing Leena's reaction. He didn't know why she was even hesitant about having dinner with him. Was she really that busy? Didn't she have the time for a simple dinner with her brothers? That was such a bummer!

"No. It's just that I have a friend who flew all the way here to visit. So I am not sure if I have the time to eat with you," said Leena in an apologetic tone. God knew how much she wanted to spend more time with them and have a good time. It was just that she didn't know if her schedule would allow her tonight.

"Who? The one you are calling Gerard? It's easy. You just need to invite him to dinner with us. It's just a casual dinner with family and friends after all and we won't be talking about business." The more people, the merrier. Edward was not even bothered by inviting someone he didn't really know.

"It's not that easy. My sister-in-law is also here." Frustratedly, Leena rolled her eyes. She found Claire as the bigger problem in this scenario. She was her sister-in-law! She couldn't just leave her alone and hang out with her brothers.

"So that's what you're worried about? It's fine. It's not even a problem. Invite her too. The more, the merrier. Besides, it's Friday, right? We can spend more time together without worrying about going to work tomorrow." In Edward's eyes, problems that could be solved by money were not to be considered problems. Thus, he didn't think that it was a big deal to invite two more people to join them. He could afford it easily.

Then how about Daisy? Do you know if she is free tonight?" Leena asked Edward while tilting her head. She wouldn't dare ask Kevin if he had free time. She thought that if Daisy was free then Kevin probably might be free too.

"I don't think that she got anything important to do tonight. Well if she is late, we can eat first while waiting for her and Kevin." Edward wasn't even worried about this because he knew that there wasn't much going on in the army base these days.

Okay then! Let me call Gerard and tell him. Frankly speaking, I haven't spent much time with him since he came to the S City." She had been worried that Kevin might misunderstand things if she hung out with Gerard alone. Thus, she wasn't able to take Gerard out for sightseeing. Hearing Edward's suggestion made her excited because it would allow her to have a good time with Gerard without worrying about how Kevin would feel.

Edward shook his head fondly at her. Seeing her this excited lifted his mood too. So he walked to his desk and picked his phone up. Then he called Daisy's number.

Meanwhile, Daisy was checking her guns when her phone rang. An instant smirk appeared on her lips as soon as she saw Edward's name on it. She had been thinking the whole time about how to calm his temper down once she got home. It was actually a surprise that he called her first since Edward was never the type to compromise with anyone at all. "What, Edward? Aren't you mad anymore?"

"I didn't say that. I'm still mad at you. Don't think that I will let this go so easily." Although Leena's visit cooled his head down a little, Edward still didn't want to be the first to compromise with his wife. They could all blame his stubbornness but he would never admit to Daisy that he wasn't angry anymore.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1188 - Chapter 1186:He Is Your Husband (part three)

Chapter 1188: Chapter 1186:He Is Your Husband (part three)

Yeah? Really? Then let me ask you, why are you calling me now, Mr. Mu?" On the other hand, Daisy already knew him so well and had seen right through him. She didn't even have any issues with Edward being as stubborn, so she just let him enjoy it. Who said that only women needed to be spoiled in the first place? Sometimes, men needed some way to boost their egos too. Thus, she chose to spoil the mighty Mr. Mu today.

"I just want to tell you that we will be having dinner with Leena and some other friends. We haven't spent time together for a long time. So if you are not busy, come home early. By the way, tell Kevin about it too." Edward slightly raised his eyebrows. He delivered his line in such a cold and indifferent tone as if was still very mad with his wife.

"Okay, I see. Just text me the address of the restaurant once you have decided where we will be eating," replied Daisy in an equally indifferent tone. Well, in fact, it was not just Edward who knew how to play this game of bluff. She couldn't even help but secretly smile fondly at his behavior. How could he still be this childish before her after all this time?

"That's all you want to say!" Edward's tone came out sounding a little bit more shocked than what he had intended. Shouldn't it be the time for her to say something sweet and nice to him? Shouldn't she be pacifying him by now? It would only be after she yielded at him that they could make up with each other.

Yeah, that's all. What do you expect me to say?" Now that made Daisy smirk wider. She knew what Edward wanted and what he was insinuating. It was just that she wasn't in the mood to satisfy him now.

"Well, I'm not expecting anything. I have to go now," said Edward disappointedly. He knew that Daisy got what he silently meant but just didn't want to do it now. It appeared like he had lost to Daisy again on this round. Apparently, he got no one to blame as he was the one who had been spoiling her all the time. Great! He was now harvesting the results. Daisy wasn't afraid of him anymore.

"Wait." Daisy reacted fast after hearing how upset Edward was. She didn't want to make him unhappy. If it would only take her a few words to make him happy again, then fine! Why wouldn't she do it? No matter what, it was still him who called her first. It was technically him who compromised in a way. Thus, it was pointless to act as stubborn and distress him more. She honestly didn't like how Edward sounded but she didn't want to hold on to that. It would be easy for them to make up and be happy anyway. Thus, she whispered on her phone sweetly, "I really miss you, honey."

Honey, I really miss you too." Hearing those magic words melted Edwards bad mood in an instant. He was suddenly smiling while holding his phone next to his ear. His lighter aura made his already gorgeous face look even more breath-taking. They finally made up!

"You are not mad anymore, right?" teased Daisy as she sported an equally gorgeous smile. She knew that Edward was always stubborn and she really didn't mind spoiling him from time to time. He was her husband after all.

Well, you're not mad anymore so how can I be mad?" answered Edward shamelessly. He was now back to his usual self since his cute wife already compromised to him first. Ha! He won!

Okay, okay! That's enough. I have to continue with my job now. Go ahead and do your own things!" Her voice might have sounded a little hard still but Daisy was secretly giggling deep inside. Truth was, she never expected Edward to stay in love with her for a long time when they started living together. She realized how wrong she was as time went by. Edward was in fact very serious about her. He had already proven how loyal and how deeply in love he was with her. How could she not love him back as much?

Be careful there. Are you trying to make me angry again, Daisy?" said Edward coldly as he dangerously squinted his eyes. The fact that it was only Daisy who could control his emotions as easily as this was still a surprise to him. Daisy was indeed his kryptonite.

"See? I was just joking. How come you're serious again? Well, if you want me to come home early tonight, just stop chatting with me and wasting my time. Otherwise, I won't be able to finish my work." Daisy was aware of how much she could annoy Edward up. Thus, she intentionally teased him. She had already foreseen that he would react this way.

"Fine! We'll decide what happens to you later. Do you really think that I can't do anything about this?" Edward sniggered as some private thoughts came into his mind.

Hearing him made Daisy shudder out of control. She wondered about what Edward was implying and she was suddenly a bit nervous about it. If her guess was indeed right, then she might not be able to leave their bed for a few days!

"Edward, how's Daisy? Is she free tonight?" Leena approached Edward fast as soon as he hanged the phone up. It was out of respect that she didn't eavesdrop on their call.

"Yeah! She will be coming with us but she might be a little late." A broad smile cracked on Edward's lips as he talked. Daisy already yielded by saying that she really missed him and that was all he wanted. He was really easy to please. He didn't even need Daisy to do big gestures or say something more flattering. A sincere confession was enough for him to be happy. Daisy was his everything after all. Her love and care would always be more than enough for Edward.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1189 - Chapter 1187: He Is Your Husband (part four)

Chapter 1189: Chapter 1187: He Is Your Husband (part four)

"Then how about Kevin? Does he have time too?" asked Leena with a bit worry. She was afraid that Kevin might come home to an empty apartment without anything to eat. Thus, she badly needed to know if he would come with them.

"Leena, he is your husband. If you want to know if he has the time or not, just call and ask him yourself. You shouldn't be this careful and worried." Edward slightly furrowed his brows at her question. She shouldn't be this anxious about calling her own husband, should she? She was being overly cautious!

"I'm just worried that I might interrupt his work if I call now." The thought of Kevin's impatient voice when she called this morning made Leena a little depressed. Although she knew that he wasn't upset with her, she could tell that Kevin wasn't the type of person who liked being interrupted during his work.

"You two are already married, Leena. Why are you being so careful around him? You have the right to just ask him! He won't be mad with just a simple question. There is no need for you to guess. I don't want you to do that to yourself, okay?" Concerned, Edward shot Leena a soft glare. It broke his heart to see her like this. He didn't know if Kevin still had some unresolved feelings for Daisy. But if so, then it would surely hurt Leena. And frankly, Leena getting hurt was the very last thing he would want to see.

"I am not doing anything to myself. Don't worry about me, okay? Well, it's time for me to go home now. See you tonight at dinner!" Leena grabbed her purse and got herself ready to leave. She was worried that Claire might come home and didn't see her. Thus, it was better for her to go home as early as now.

Yeah. Go ahead. I have to finish my work too. Remember what I said just now, okay?" Edward was still bothered about Leena and thought that he might never stop worrying about her. He wouldn't have been this anxious if he didn't know about Kevin's feelings towards Daisy before. It was unfortunate that he knew. Thus, he couldn't hold himself back from being distressed even if she was already married.

"Of course. Goodbye, Edward!" Leena made a face at Edward. It was true that she was thinking about Claire but it wasn't exactly the reason why she wanted to leave. What she really wanted was to dodge Edward's constant worry. She didn't want to talk to Edward about her relationship problem too much because she was afraid that Edward would see right through her and find something he wasn't supposed to know. There were a few things that she wanted to avoid now.

"Bye!" Edward watched Leena quickly leave his office. She was moving so fast as if she was running away from something. That made him frown even more. He was really hoping that things between Leena and her husband were fine. He just wanted his dear sister to be happy and to stop worrying too much. He also hoped for Kevin not to hurt Leena. He could never be at peace until he saw her live happily.

A few minutes after and Leena was already back at the Grand Apartment. It was then that she met Claire who just came in too. Behind her sister-in-law was Louisa who drove Claire back. Though Leena didn't like Louisa at all and didn't want to see her, she had to walk up to them because of Claire.

"Claire, where did you go? Why didn't you answer my call?" Leena put all her attention to her sister-in-law and deliberately ignored Louisa. To be honest, she didn't even want to see Louisa here.

"Oh!" We went out. The music there was so loud that I didn't hear my phone ringing." Claire's face looked tired. She never knew that modeling was actually a tiring job until just earlier. The title might be somewhat flattering but it sure required a lot of energy.

"You seem so tired. Are you okay, Claire? Are you feeling well?" Leena gave her sister-in-law a worried stare. She got no clue of where Claire and Louisa went. 'A place with loud music? Did they go to a bar? But that was impossible! It was daytime!' she silently wondered but didn't want to ask Claire. She was afraid that Claire might think that she was judging her. The two of them had been getting along so well these days and she didn't want to ask some stupid questions that might damage their fragile relationship.

"I'm fine. Don't worry. I'm just a little tired after being out for a long time. I just need to rest for a bit." Claire touched her face after hearing what Leena said. Did she really look that tired? But they only had a few hours' practice. Maybe it was because she hadn't exercise for a very long time and that was why she got haggard.

"Okay. Then go upstairs and have a good rest." Leena's eyebrows slightly furrowed upon hearing Claire's words. It was fortunate that there were still a few hours until dinner time. Thus, Claire could rest for a bit. Otherwise, she would be so anxious that she might not be able to join them for dinner. It was then that an uninvited voice tore between the sister-in-laws' conversation. It was Louisa, whose only hobby was to pick on Leena whenever she could. Who said that she was a fan of Leena on the first place? She didn't even like her!

Leena, where are your manners? Aren't you going to greet me at all?"

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1190 - Chapter 1188: Do Unto Others (part one)

Chapter 1190: Chapter 1188: Do Unto Others (part one)

Miss Ye, come on. We aren't friends yet. Why do I need to do this?" Leena finally looked up at her, and gave a snort of contempt.

Really? Why aren't we friends? Leena, are you trying to hide from me? As for why you're doing this, I think we both know." Louisa opened the car door and got out. One hand resting on the roof, she glowered at Leena. It was a clear challenge. Everyone said Leena was from a rich and powerful family. Louisa desperately wanted to find out what her bottom line was.

"Hiding? Louisa, do you think you're too ugly to look at? That's the only reason I'd hide. You shouldn't be so hard on yourself." Leena went on the attack now. And with good reason. Louisa had come to her place and insulted her. It was payback time.

You... Humph! You're one to talk," Louisa retorted. "You're such a slut, you had to sleep with Kevin to get him to marry you." Louisa was embarrassed by Leena's retort. She gnashed her teeth in anger, but she decided to fight back. What else could she do? She was beside herself with rage. But Leena wasn't done.

"Haha! Louisa, you have no idea what a real slut is like! No man would want you even if you threw yourself at him!" She had to be tough and mean. Leena wasn't trying to hurt her, but she was fed up. Louisa was a constant thorn in her side, and it was time to remove it.

"You bitch! What are you talking about? Say that again! I dare you!" Louisa quickly moved around the car and stood in front of Leena. Her eyes blazed with fury, her hands were balled into fists.

"Watch your mouth, if you don't want to get clocked!" Leena shouted. Leena tilted her chin. If she didn't have Kevin to think about, she wouldn't have let this get so out of hand. But Louisa talked about helping his career, being the commander's daughter. She could probably hurt it as well.

"What are you gonna do? Slap me again? Do it. I dare you. But I guarantee you won't get far. I meant to get slapped that last time. To call you out, and show everyone who you really are." Louisa just stood there, resting her hands on her hips, arrogant and imperious.

"That's right, I'm not an actor like you. But I could still hurt you. I just don't want to get my hands dirty." Though Leena was absolutely furious, she still put on a false smile. She wouldn't give Louisa the pleasure of looking frightened or confused. Elegance was one of her best weapons to deal with Louisa.

Cut it out, you guys! All you're doing is embarrassing yourselves," said Claire, confusion written large on her face. Leena was Claire's sister-in-law while Louisa was her good friend. She couldn't pick sides here, because she cared about them both. If she did choose one over the other, then either Louisa or Leena would be mad at her. And she didn't want to hurt either of them.

"I'm really not in the mood for her crap. She started it." Louisa snorted in disgust. 'Just wait, Leena,' she thought. 'You're rich and young now, but eventually I'll see you beaten like a dog.' Leena's lips trembled, but she didn't say another word. She did it for Claire. Besides, if she said something, that would just keep it going.

Come off it, Louisa. I know you started it," said Claire. She frowned. 'Since when has Louisa become so aggressive? She was just downright mean, and didn't listen to anyone. She changed a lot. But I know there's some good inside her, deep down. I've seen that side of her. I want it back.'

"Never mind. I'll let you off the hook, because of Claire." Louisa made a noise. It wasn't a word, but it was still full of meaning. The sound showed her depth of contempt and disgust for Leena.

"Louisa, just remember the saying 'do unto others as you would have them do unto you.' In other words, treat people nicely and they'll be nice to you. If you don't, no one'll have your back when you need it most." Leena really didn't care if Louisa was haughty or arrogant. Or even if she hated her. But those vulgar words coming out of Louisa's mouth were really the limit. She felt really uncool when someone called her bad names, and when she felt like cussing them out because of it. Her elegance was her strength.

"Humph! Leena, what's wrong with you? You always hold back. But you have to be miss perfect. Why don't you stop pretending and show everyone who you really are?" Louisa scowled at Leena and showed the whites of her eyes. She disliked her so much she wouldn't even look at her.

"Shut up, both of you. How about this? Louisa, I think you need to go home. Leena and I are going inside." This was so awkward. Both of them were behaving badly, so Claire felt bad. Hurting those two was the last thing she wanted to do.

Claire, I'm going upstairs. See you there." Leena was tired of fighting with the girl. She cast one last contemptuous glance at Louisa, tilted her chin proudly, and left. Her day had been entirely ruined by this horrible woman.

"Louisa, I'm wiped out, so I'm going to turn in early. Have a safe drive home. Good night." Claire felt harassed and strained. Right now she wanted nothing more than a hot bath and a good rest.

Good night. Don't forget rehearsal tomorrow." Regardless of what she wanted, she was looking forward to the fashion show. If she participated, she'd be more likely to be discovered by an agent. The agent would then find places for her to work, and she might even find a mentor. This would be the turning point in her modeling career.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1191 - Chapter 1189: Do Unto Others (part two)

Chapter 1191: Chapter 1189: Do Unto Others (part two)

"No way! Tomorrow's Saturday. Can we start later? My legs have got tired after walking for a few hours." Claire was beginning to regret agreeing to Louisa's offer. She was in really low spirits.

There's only a few days left. So brush up on your technique so you don't embarrass yourself that day." Feeling trapped, Louisa had to turn to Claire for the modeling gig.

"We've got at least a week, right? Fine. I should go. Goodbye, Louisa." With a wave of her hand, Claire left before Louisa could even say anything. She rushed to catch up with Leena, who was waiting for the elevator.

Louisa gritted her teeth. She had been extremely furious with Claire recently. She couldn't even curse around her now. She swore that she'd teach Claire a lesson as soon as the contest ended.

Leena slowed down and waited, so Claire could easily catch up with her before Leena entered the elevator. Although Claire found herself panting for breath, at least she didn't have to wait for the next elevator.

"Come on in." Leena was about to push the button to close the door. But she saw Claire rushing to her, and hurried to prevent the door from shutting. Claire knew she had to explain what was going on.

"Leena, don't take Louisa too seriously. I think she's hurt and lashing out. It hurts to lose the one you love so much." Claire then bit her lips and looked up at Leena anxiously.

"I'm good. Her bark is worse than her bite. I'll leave her alone," said Leena. She didn't count on Claire to help her. However, she did hope that Claire wouldn't join Louisa to attack her. She didn't need that right now, with the fashion show and everything else.

"Probably a good idea. The less you two see of each other the better. By the way, is that a new phone?" Claire observed that Leena was in a bad mood, so she decided to clam up about Louisa, and change the subject.

"Yeah! I bought a new one today. As you know, the old one broke. You need to get home, take a shower and catch a nap. I'll take you out tonight, and you can meet my friends." Leena glanced at her worriedly. Actually she desperately wanted to know where had Claire been.

Really? Where's Kevin? Isn't he coming?" Claire's spirits were lifted when she heard they were gonna go out and have some fun. Since she got here, she almost never had time to go hang out and relax.

"Oh yeah. Barring serious accidents or urgency." Actually, Leena really didn't know if Kevin would join them or not. She kept going back over their conversation in her head. But she didn't want to cross the line. If she did that there would be no turning back. So she mustered all her self-control, and walled herself off from her emotions, from missing him and calling him every day, from making trouble for both of them. Deep down, she knew she couldn't do that.

Meanwhile, Hank stood in Kevin's office, feeling awkward and reserved. He wanted to say something, but bit it back.

"Hank, you want to say something? Spit it out!" Kevin snapped. Kevin frowned. He just finished the training exercises, and still was all hot and sweaty. He hadn't had the time to clean up, so all Hank was doing was getting on his nerves. Especially just standing there. Kevin just wondered why Hank even came to see him at all, and Hank wasn't saying anything. Why?

"I don't know how to say this, Major General, so I'll just say it. I understand that you're the guy who suggested the commander assign this task to me," said Hank hesitantly and cautiously. Hank couldn't believe Kevin would do that. Everyone wanted a shot at this, and he knew that he shouldn't even be in the running.

So? Anything wrong with that?" asked Kevin. Kevin stared at him intensely, and a flicker of confusion passed across his handsome face. Was Hank turning him down? This was a golden opportunity!

"Nothing wrong with it. I just want to know why. I screwed up, and my career in the army is doomed. So why did you do this?" Hank said suspiciously.

"So you think I have ulterior motives? Or don't you think you can hack it?" Kevin asked, playing with the pen in his hand, twirling it in his fingers. He couldn't hide the amusement in his voice. If Kevin didn't think Hank was good enough, he wouldn't have given him a second chance.

"Don't get me wrong, Major General. I know I'm good, but you should hate me. Normally I wouldn't get tapped for this assignment." After what Hank did, Kevin had been messing with Hank's career, keeping him from getting promoted. He was at the lowest rank and pay grade. So Hank wondered why he was helping him out now.

"Well, that's all you, Hank. Trust me, if you hadn't earned this, you wouldn't be getting it. You didn't even grumble much when I punished you. At least, not within earshot." Kevin smiled. At first, he was doing this for Daisy's sake. However, as time went on, he found that Hank was really a capable soldier. From then on, Kevin came down on him hard, insisting he complete his missions perfectly. He figured that was the way to get Hank to care about what he was doing.

Yeah, I know you're doing this for me. I shouldn't complain," said Hank in a state of panic. He had learned his lesson and kept a low profile for a long time. However, his rep was shot, and people still talked about it in whispers. So he figured that very few people in the army thought much of him, or trusted him to do anything.

"I get it if you hate me, but frankly, I don't care, as long as you have learned something from what I did to you," said Kevin peacefully. And he really didn't care about what everyone thought of him. The only thing that mattered was doing the right thing.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1192 - Chapter 1190: Do Unto Others (part three)

Chapter 1192: Chapter 1190: Do Unto Others (part three)

"Are you saying you've done all those things just because you wanted me to improve myself?" Hank grunted. He was wondering about that. He had to do things again and again, until the superior officer thought things were perfect. He thought it was just because of his reputation, but now he knew Kevin had something to do with it.

I demanded the best out of you so you could learn and grow. So you could show the base what you were made of. Rather than throw punches at Daisy, you'd grow the hell up and take charge of your career." Kevin could do nothing more to help him. Hank had to hold his own against all the ill will he'd earned. But Kevin did give him the chance to redeem himself, and really believed he could do the job.

I really appreciate you and Daisy recommending me. I know we aren't exactly friends." Hank wasn't young anymore. If he started again from scratch, he would never attain a decent rank again. However, with Kevin's help, he was offered a huge opportunity to turn the tables.

"Everyone makes mistakes. It's water under the bridge. Just learn from your mistakes, and you'll be okay." Kevin sighed deeply at the thought. People never learned without consequences. If Hank had just done what he was supposed to, he'd be in a much better position.

"Yeah, no kidding. I don't feel good about what I did. But I understand how important this chance is. If you send me on this mission, I won't fail you," said Hank, righteously and confidently. The incident last time taught him to be humble and careful. He ditched his conceit and arrogance. And now was his time to prove who he was.

As I said, no one's perfect. However, we learn and do the right thing. Just do your best." Kevin glanced at him reflectively. Since the army was known for competence, he wouldn't stand out unless he did something exceptional. And he was a capable soldier -- probably more naturally gifted than most.

"Thanks for the advice. I'll never forget it. By your leave, sir!" With those words, Hank raised his hand in salute, with infinite gratitude and admiration.

"Yeah! Go get 'em, soldier! Dismissed!" Kevin raised his hand, indicating that Hank was good to go. Being Hank's superior officer, Kevin was actually much younger. So, he decided to save him any embarrassment.

He remembered that Leena called him earlier, so he thought about it a bit, and then dialed her up. He knew he was kind of gruff last time they talked. Although he didn't mean anything by it, the woman was sensitive, and he needed to explain himself to his wife.

And Leena was just walking into her bedroom when her phone rang. She saw it was Kevin calling, and was confused. Why? Kevin never called her if it wasn't absolutely urgent and necessary. So what was this about? Was he going to bail on their plans tonight? Or something else? "Hey! It's me." Leena sat on the edge of her bed, one hand holding her phone, and the other hand untying the silk scarf around her neck. So now she'd find out why he called.

"I know it's you. Back home yet?" Kevin smiled lightly, and the hard lines on his face were softened. It was obvious he was fond of his wife.

Yeah! I just got in. By the way, Claire's here with me," replied Leena hurriedly. That usually happened. Leena would lose her composure when she talked to Kevin. She really cared about their relationship and didn't want any misunderstandings, so she tried to head those off at the pass. But it just made her seem anxious.

Did she ever tell you where she went?" asked Kevin. This was just a question that he brought up because she mentioned Claire. Pretty random, really. However, Leena misunderstood and thought that he was calling to ask about his sister, which disappointed her. Didn't he care about her?

"No. But she looks like a wreck, and she's tired to boot. Do you need her to come to the phone?" asked Leena tentatively. Both of them felt estranged from each other. Their love lacked warmth and passion. You couldn't find a relationship more strained than Kevin and Leena's.

"No, I called to hear your voice." Kevin hurried to stop her handing the phone over. In the meanwhile, he felt frustrated, and thought their conversation was always unsatisfying and rigid. Why was it this way? Couldn't they just be natural and loving like other couples?

"Yeah." Leena bit her lips lightly after the lukewarm response. Their conversation was becoming annoying and awkward. Was it possible that she still held a grudge? She really couldn't wait to hang up the phone.

"Babe, you still mad at me?" asked Kevin tentatively. He'd never get used to the coldness in Leena's voice.

No. Not that I know of. Why?" Leena put on a forced smile. However, Kevin couldn't see that. It didn't look natural, and she wasn't smiling from her eyes, at any rate.

You're quiet. Is this because of the other phone call?" Nervous and worried as he was, he really cared about Leena's feelings.

No, no... Nothing like that. I'm distracted, that's all. Besides, I'm an elegant lady. I'd never stay mad too long." Leena burst into laughter. She lied, because she did care about Kevin's tone of voice over the phone. She'd be lying if she said she didn't. But she wouldn't worry about it. She felt depressed because of her fight with Louisa. Some mean things were said, and she wasn't sure if she could forget that soon.

"I'm sorry if I was too gruff on the phone. I was just distracted, too, being at work. I hope you're not mad." This might be the first time that Kevin was worried about how Leena might take things the wrong way. So, he tried to explain himself to her sincerely and fully. He wanted to feel good, not depressed.

"Kevin, do you think of me as your wife?" She cut straight to the heart of the matter. She felt like a glacier was standing between them, stopping them from loving each other. She could feel this mountain of ice every time she thought of him, whenever she tried to hug him. She really wanted to melt this ice so their hearts would be warm once more.