

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1273 - Chapter 1271: The Sleeping Beauty (part two)

Chapter 1273: Chapter 1271: The Sleeping Beauty (part two)

"Kevin, thank you so much for not holding Louisa accountable. I know you spared her only for my sake. I promise you, she will not have any chance to get close and bother you in the future. You have my word." The Commander's face blushed red with shame when he said this. It had never occurred to him that his daughter could stoop down so low and be a home wrecker. Her behavior had provoked much discussion. Luckily, Leena's friends didn't really hurt her. Otherwise, the Commander would be so overpowered by his guilt and shame that he wouldn't have the face to look Kevin in the eye again.

Let bygones be bygones, Commander. Don't think too much of it. Louisa has been punished, right?" Kevin didn't know how Edward had punished Louisa, but he believed it was not an easy one.

"I'm afraid she still hasn't learned from her mistakes. Never mind. I'd better call the higher authorities now. The sooner, the better." The Commander was furious with the manner that Edward punished his daughter, but he had to hold back his anger. After all, his daughter deserved it, especially that Leena was still in a semi-stable state. He had heard of Edward's cruel style of punishment before, and he knew Edward had showed his daughter mercy. The Commander had a clear estimation of himself, and he knew Edward would by no means show mercy to his daughter because he was a Commander, but because of Daisy.

"Thank you, Commander. Whether the high authorities agree to your request or not, I appreciate your efforts." Kevin rubbed his brow. If the high authorities didn't agree, he had to leave this evening. Leena hadn't woken up yet, and he didn't want to leave her behind like this.

After hanging up, Kevin poured a glass of warm water and wet a q-tip to clean her lips with the utmost care.

"Nana, why are you still sleeping? Are you still mad at me? You are not willing to give me one more chance, aren't you?" Kevin let out a bitter smile and was overcome with remorse. He would do anything to wake her up, even give his life if that was what it took.

Leena heard the man's voice again, which stopped her from approaching her mother. She was eager to know who it was. But no matter how hard she tried, it was so dark around her that she could hardly see her hand in front of her, let alone the man's face.

"The sun is shining brightly today. Don't you like basking in the sunshine with me in the garden? If you are going to sleep any longer, you'll get moldy and stagnant." Kevin really wanted to know what Leena was thinking. Tom said she was already out of immediate danger. Why was she refusing to wake up? Was it because she just hated to see him?

"Nana, don't you believe that I have fallen in love with you? You think it's a dream. You are willing to live in that dream, aren't you? Let me assure you, I would prove to you in words and in deeds that I do love you." If Leena woke up now, Kevin would be willing to show her his real self and let her know that he fell in love with her and couldn't live without her.

Edward stood at the ward door for a while before coming in, pretending not to hear what Kevin had said. He looked at Leena first and then cast a glance at Kevin, asking, "How's she? Did Tom say when Leena would wake up?"

Doctor Qin doesn't know either when Leena will wake up. It all depends on her own willingness," Kevin answered in a calm voice. He didn't care whether Edward had heard what he had just said to Leena. He meant it, and he was willing to let everyone know that he loved Leena.

"Are you okay? Why don't you go home for a rest. I'll be here to take care of her. I can handle the files here," Edward offered. Edward disliked Kevin before, for the latter actually had a thing for Daisy first but then ended up getting married to Leena. But after he heard Kevin's confession, Edward's opinion of him changed.

"I'm good. I've taken a few naps on the side of the bed," Kevin admitted, a little embarrassed. After cleaning himself up at home, Kevin hurried back as soon as possible without taking a rest. On seeing that Leena was in a stable condition, he slept for an hour or two on the side of the bed. With a few rest periods like that, he was no longer that tired.

Well, then you should go and eat something in the hospital canteen. It's lunch time." Edward had to chair an important meeting that morning, so he had just called Tom to inquire about Leena's condition instead of coming here. Rain also had come to the hospital that morning, and because of that, he was late for the meeting. As soon as they adjourned, Edward wasted no time coming to the hospital.

"Don't worry about me. Claire just called and she will bring me lunch soon." Edward realized Kevin would by no means leave Leena. He sighed and thought, 'If he had realized his true feelings for Leena earlier, things wouldn't have worked out this way.'

Okay. I'll go find Tom and ask about Leena's situation. Please do take good care of her." After thinking for a whole night, Edward had calmed down and was more composed in the morning. Maybe part of the reason was because Leena was already out of danger. He felt much relieved and was more able to control his temper. As a matter of fact, he was no longer in the fight mode.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1274 - Chapter 1272: The Sleeping Beauty (part three)

Chapter 1274: Chapter 1272: The Sleeping Beauty (part three)

"Well, she is my wife, and this is what I should do," Kevin said with a frown. He didn't think taking care of Leena was a burden to him. After all, Leena was his wife, the closest person to him in the world. But Edward's words, as if giving him orders, made him feel like an outsider, which made him very uncomfortable. Then there was a soft knock at the door. Kevin looked up to see who it was and couldn't believe who was standing by the door. His mother came. Although it was a long way from the capital city, she rushed over as soon as she could. Apparently, Shannon cared a lot about her daughter-in-law.

"How's Leena?" Shannon entered the ward with Claire, travel-worn and weary. Anxiety was written all over her face.

"Mom, why are you here? Claire told you everything, didn't she?" Kevin had told Leena his true feelings for her the whole day, but there was still no sign of her waking up. Kevin felt both physically and mentally exhausted. Luckily, the Commander had persuaded the superior officers to reassign his tasks to Hank, otherwise Kevin would not know how to balance himself between his country and his wife.

"Yes, she did. Last night, she called me and told me what had happened, and I was eager to come here then. But it's not safe to drive at night. So I set out this morning. How's Leena? She still hasn't woken up?" Shannon approached the bed and gazed worriedly at Leena's pale face.

"No, she hasn't. But the doctor said she would wake up sooner or later. Did you drive here? Or dad arranged a driver for you?" Kevin asked casually. He didn't think his father would care about Leena. After all, he had always made no secret of his dislike for her.

"Your father asked his guard to drive me here. You know, I am so worried about Leena. Your father said it was dangerous for me to drive." Shannon didn't hide her feelings for Leena either. She had actually planned to visit her son and daughter-in-law a couple of days before. But she didn't expect her plans to be realized with the inclusion of such a gloomy event. She shook her head with profound resignation and hoped Leena would wake up soon.

"Claire, why did you tell mom about it? You are not helping." Kevin gave Claire a reproachful look as he didn't want his mother to worry about Leena. The good news was that Claire had become a sensible and thoughtful girl. Kevin also finally got to know what an excellent person Leena was in a blaze of publicity. He had thought she was only an apprentice with no real job. That was the reason why he was okay with Leena's refusal to hire a house maid. After all, in his opinion, Leena had a plenty of time to do the housework. He had no idea that she was able to be a great success in the fashion industry while cleaning and arranging everything in their house in perfect order. He had never put himself in her shoes before, and he felt very guilty about it. Strangely, none of the media had reported on Leena's drowning. He wondered whether Edward had put pressure on the media to stop them from reporting it. After all, it wasn't good news.

"Don't blame her. She was doing the right thing. If I didn't come here during such a critical moment, Leena would think that I don't care for her enough." Shannon rolled her eyes at Kevin with irritation. She couldn't believe her son had planned not to tell her about it.

"I didn't mean it that way. I just wanted to tell you about it after Leena wakes up." Kevin scratched his head in embarrassment. In front of his mother, he was no longer the iron-hearted Major General, but a guilty kid who did something petty.

"Look at Leena. Her face is as pale as death. It makes my heart ache to see her like this. What a bad girl Miss Ye is! How could she push Leena into the water on such a cold day?" Shannon cast a blaming look at Claire. If Claire hadn't gotten so close to Louisa, the tragedy might not have happened. Shannon hoped that Claire had learned her lesson this time. Kevin didn't know how to answer the question, as he was not Louisa and he had no idea what she had been thinking at that time.

"Mom, why don't we go eat something first? And then we can bring Kevin something to eat," Claire suggested. She knew Kevin would not leave Leena, so she didn't even ask Kevin to go with them. She could understand how Kevin felt. If she were Kevin, she would also be unwilling to leave. When Bella was about to leave after visiting Leena, Kevin asked Claire to drive her back. He had spent the whole day in the ward keeping Leena company.

Oh... Who is this?" asked Belinda in confusion. She drove to the hospital as soon as she got off work, and she was surprised to see a middle-aged woman in the ward.

"Hi, Belinda. This is my mom, Shannon Long. Mom, this is Leena's sister-in-law, Belinda Shangguan," Kevin introduced, a little embarrassed. He had been married to Leena for quite a long time, but it was the first time that his mother met Leena's family. What a weird situation it was!

"Ah, nice to meet you, Aunt Shannon. I'm Belinda Shangguan, Leena's sister-in-law. Just call me Belinda," she introduced herself to Shannon with a wide smile. She didn't expect Kevin's mother to be such an elegant and graceful lady. In her eyes, women from military families were usually careless and didn't care much about how they dressed in public.

"Nice to meet you, Belinda. I'm Shannon Long, Kevin's mother. Leena is such a good girl. She is adorable and capable. Thank you for letting Kevin have the chance to be her partner. We're so sorry for not having taken good care of her." Belinda could tell from Shannon's words and manners that she was a well-educated woman. She heaved a long sigh of relief to herself and hoped that Kevin's family would treat Leena well.

"That's very kind of you to say that, Aunt Shannon. Leena is indeed an adorable girl. If she does something inappropriate, please forgive her. After all, she is still young and has a lot to learn." Belinda was a successful woman in the business circle, and she knew how to switch back and forth with words of politeness for people whom she met for the first time. She thought Leena would not do anything inappropriate, and she was just being polite to say that.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1275 - Chapter 1273: Time To Get Up (part one)

Chapter 1275: Chapter 1273: Time To Get Up (part one)

"What are you talking about? As to how I see it, she is doing great! I really admire her. You should know how rare it is to find such a nice and decent girl like Leena." Shannon sighed softly as she silently wished for Claire to behave more like Leena. She would surely be happier if that was the case.

"Thanks for being so gentle and gracious. My Leena is really lucky to have you as her family," replied Belinda. Then she cast a glance at Leena and smiled. As Leena's sister-in-law, she couldn't help but feel proud whenever others complimented Leena.

"Actually, I think Kevin is the lucky one here. Being a soldier makes him always busy with military matters. I know that he seldom has time for his family. Therefore, Leena has to manage a lot of things all by herself. I feel sorry for her." As someone who was married to a soldier, Shannon herself knew just about everything that Leena was going through too. It honestly amazed her to see Leena handle so many things by herself despite her young age.

"Sounds like a heated chat here," said Duke as he stepped in with his gloomy face. He was deeply concerned about Leena's health and he just couldn't relax about it. In reality, he had always been worried about her all this time.

There you are, Duke. Come here. I would like to introduce you to Major General Gu's mother. She came all the way from the capital city to see Leena upon hearing about the accident."

The sincerity on Belinda's face was so clear as she greeted Duke. It was actually a pleasure to see him here. She had thought of giving him a call and asking him to come just a few minutes ago. Thus, it was a pleasant surprise that he showed up here so unexpectedly.

Good to see you, madam. My name is Duke. I am the elder brother of Leena. It really warms my heart to see you coming from afar to visit my sister." Duke sounded indifferent when he spoke. It was obvious that he was still mad at Kevin.

"Good to see you too. Leena is our daughter-in-law. She is part of the Gu family. It is only natural for us to come here and visit her. We are all relatives here, so there is no need to be aloof. Don't you think so?" As smart as she was, Shannon easily sensed the coldness from Duke's words right away. It was what pushed her to stand her ground and subtly remind everyone that Leena was already a part of the Gu family.

"Of course, you are right. We are all family here. I am sure you are hungry. Why don't we all go out for dinner? It would be perfect if we can treat you a nice dinner since you are visiting our city." Belinda quickly changed the subject upon noticing the tension that filled the air. She was actually worried that Duke might say something wrong, or worse, do something inappropriate Shall we go?" Shannon turned her head and looked at Kevin, who had been silent the whole time. She wanted to know her son's opinion about dining out.

Sure. You guys have fun. I will stay here and look after Leena." Kevin replied without giving much attention to Duke's attitude. He knew that he was still mad at him. However, nothing could change the fact that Leena was his wife. There might have been a lot of complications lately but never had divorce gone any close to his plans. He just simply loved Leena more than anything.

"Sorry to trouble you then. It might cost you a fortune." Shannon smiled at them and teased a little to lighten up the mood.

Not at all. We are actually glad that you're here. By the way, please call me Belinda. It is easier and it sounds friendlier. I'm more used to being called by my first name." Blushing a bit, Belinda smiled back at Shannon. She was an open-minded woman with a great personality. She was naturally friendly, thus, she liked being casual with everyone.

You are right. We are all family here. Calling you by your first name does sound better," replied Shannon while nodding. She appreciated Belinda and liked her straight away. She might be much older than her but she was definitely an easy-going woman herself too. She couldn't agree more to Belinda that families shouldn't be aloof and distant with each other. Silence flooded the whole hospital room the moment they left. Kevin released a soft sigh and turned to Leena who was still lying on her hospital bed. Just the sight of her beautiful face made his heart skip a beat. She was his sole joy after all. He was about to tend to her when someone suddenly knocked on the door.

"Come in." Kevin was surprised as he was not expecting any visitor at the moment. He wondered who would that be. Could it be the arrogant Edward himself?

"Major General. Sorry to bother you. There are some urgent documents from the army base that require your signature. I have brought them here for you." Lee stepped in with some files in his arms. He looked apologetic as he knew that he was disturbing Kevin and Leena's moment together. It was clear to him that the Major General's priority right now was his beloved wife. However, the issues concerning the army base were also important and couldn't be delayed. It was Kevin's responsibility to deal with them as soon as possible. This was what was required of him for being a soldier. With a heavy sigh, Lee nodded to Kevin and walked towards him with the documents. Sure. Noted with thanks. Please leave them on the corner table for me. Has Hank set out already?" Kevin knew that the documents were not confidential since they could be brought outside of the army base. He gave Lee an approving look and watched him carefully put the documents on the table.

"He has! He actually set out one hour ago. He told me to send his best regards to you and your wife. He said he was truly grateful for your kind help on his promotion." With full respect, Lee forwarded Hank's messages to Kevin. He then walked to Kevin's side and waited for his further instructions.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1276 - Chapter 1274: Time To Get Up (part two)

Chapter 1276: Chapter 1274: Time To Get Up (part two)

"That is really nice of him to say so. Have you had your dinner already?" said Kevin as he looked away from the papers. He wasn't interested in dealing with those now. Rather, he looked at Lee's face and noticed that he had been sweating due to the long trip he just had to get there.

"Don't worry about me. I have eaten something on the way. How is Leena doing now?" said Lee as he cast a concerned stare at the sleeping Leena. She used to be so energetic and cheerful. However, it wasn't the case right now as she lay motionless on the hospital bed. The sad sight made Lee a bit depressed. He felt his throat ache a little so he quickly looked away.

"She hasn't woken up yet but I think it won't be long before she recovers. You know Leena, right? She is not the type of person who enjoys lying in bed all day long." As he spoke, Kevin reached out to tuck Leena's stray hair to the back of her ear. A bitter grin cracked his lips. He was just consoling himself. He knew that there was nothing that he could do to wake Leena up at this stage. Even someone as extraordinary as Tom couldn't give his words about the exact time Leena would be waking up. Things were really not looking fine for them at the moment.

"I really hope for Leena to come back to her senses soon. Major General, is there anything I can do for you?" said Lee to comfort Kevin. It worried him a lot to see Kevin as gloomy and down as this. He had been with Kevin for years and this was honestly the first time Lee saw him being this discouraged.

"If you have time, could you please help drive Leena's car back? I got a phone call today that the car has been fixed. I have to stay here and look after her myself. Would you mind driving the car back for us?" In reality, Kevin was actually worried about the car. He had no time to deal with it and couldn't possibly bother the men from the traffic bureau with such a trivial thing. Kevin knew that Lee would be the perfect man to run the errand for him.

"No problem. I will do it right away. I will also go and visit the injured soldiers on your behalf. That would make them understand why you haven't shown up yet." Lee quickly nodded and said with great confidence. He would do anything to ease his Major General's pain. As cautious as he was, Lee was naturally better at his job than Mark.

"Thank you for your help. Please tell the soldiers to take good rest and don't worry too much about the incident." said Kevin. He shook his head and sighed with a heavy heart. Things were happening too fast these days that he couldn't avoid feeling worn out.

"I'll be going now. Major General, again, take care and my sincerest regards to Leena," Lee said with a soft voice. He then shyly touched his head. He wasn't used to saying sentimental words himself. Thus, he felt awkward.

"Thank you. Drive safely. See you soon." A thankful smile cracked on Kevin's lips as he watched him go. He couldn't be more grateful that Lee was by his side. He trusted him and knew that he would carry out his orders perfectly.

Meanwhile, Shannon had brought her own guard with her, however, there were not enough rooms to accommodate all of them inside Leena and Kevin's apartment. She had to ask him to sleep in the living room for the night and sent him back to the capital city early in the morning. She, on the other hand, refused to go back as soon. She just couldn't leave Leena behind this way. Knowing that Leena was lying motionless on a hospital bed made her heart sink. Thus, she decided to stay until things were getting better.

Shannon started the next day by cooking in the kitchen. She noticed that Kevin didn't look well last night. Thus, she decided to make him something delicious and nutritious. She hoped for him to eat more and rest so he could recover better.

"Mom, Leena is so ill now. Did dad say anything about it?" Claire approached her mother in a cautious way. She wanted to ask her that question for a while but she couldn't seem to open her mouth. She was absent-mindedly watching her mother made soup when she finally mustered up courage to ask the question. She regretted every little lie she told her father about Leena. Deep down, she knew that it might be the reason why her father held a hostile attitude towards Leena.

"Not much. He is a man of few words and I feel sorry for Leena. He always holds Leena's wealthy background against her. I don't know why it bothers him so much. She couldn't possibly choose her own background, could she?" Resignedly, Shannon sighed and turned the stove off. She turned around and worriedly gazed at Claire. As a mother, she cared greatly for Kevin and it wore her out to see him this down. She had to do something for him to share his burden.

"Well, there seem to be no secrets then. You guys have known that Leena is from a rich family since the very beginning!" Claire covered her mouth in shock. It never occurred to her that her parents knew about Leena this well. She had always thought that her background was an untold story.

"Of course, we knew! Your father doesn't like Leena very much because he is deeply bothered by her family background. He is concerned that her family might be the hindrance for your brother's career. Who knows what kind of trouble would she bring to our family?" Shannon gave her daughter a sad smile as she bitterly shook her head. She knew her own son well enough that she trusted in him perfectly. Kevin was such a righteous man and he would never do anything against the laws to gain profits.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1277 - Chapter 1275: Time To Get Up (part three)

Chapter 1277: Chapter 1275: Time To Get Up (part three)

"How could dad possibly think of her like that? From my point of view, Kevin seems to have a better career because of Leena's help. She is truly an ideal wife and good life partner for my brother." Since Claire was brought up in a typical family of high ranking officials, she had been taken good care of and didn't know much about the business concerning her own brother. It was her ignorance that gave her many doubts about her brother's marriage. She gazed at her mother's face earnestly and hoped to find answers from her.

"My dear, you are way too naive when it comes to the hidden rules in the officialdom. It is considered a big taboo when officials have business connections. People are strongly against the collusion between government officials and business owners. Your father is deeply concerned that Leena's family would contribute negatively to your brother's career. Sometimes, bad rumors can literally destroy a person and his future. To be honest with you, I am also slightly worried about it." As she was explaining to her daughter, Shannon carefully put the cooked soup into a thermal bottle and sealed it tight. Then she looked up and fondly gazed back at her daughter in an attempt to soothe her concerns. She still believed in Leena despite the little worry she had. In her opinion, Leena was well brought up and her parents were decent people. Shannon had every reason to believe that her daughter-in-law was a trustworthy girl and deserved everyone's love and care.

Oh dear, this is quite shocking! I don't believe it at all! Business is just business. I don't think Leena's family has anything to do with the army base! Dad was just throwing false accusations around! He shouldn't be this stubborn. At least, he should view things without any bias!" Claire smirked and shook her head in disbelief. She was with her mother on this one. She didn't think that Leena's family was a hindrance to her brother's career at all. Based on what she knew about Leena, her family was powerful and strongly connected to everything. They didn't need to rely on others just to maintain their well-off life.

"Alright, I'm done packing the soup. Let's go now! It has been a long night. I wonder if your sister-in-law already woke up. Claire, you should have taken my advice and stayed away from Louisa, but you just wouldn't listen to me. Now you see, things have gone out of control. Such bad luck! I feel so sorry for Leena." A soft sigh escaped Shannon's chest as she touched her daughter's forehead. She knew that there was something wrong with Louisa. She had feared that Louisa would cause trouble and harm others. It was unfortunate that her fear did come true and there was nothing she was able to do to prevent it from happening. Now things were even worse than she had imagined.

"Mom, I am so sorry. I have not contacted her since then," said Claire guiltily with her lips pouted. In fact, it would be impossible for her to contact Louisa even if she wanted to. That cunning woman had already turned her phone off for good. There was no way for Claire to reach her and scold her anymore. That made Claire feel like she was double-crossed. Another night had passed but Leena remained lying on the hospital bed. There was not even the slightest sign of her waking up soon. Even Kevin who had been convincing himself to be optimistic seemed to find his hope quite slim. His heart was getting terrified. His hands couldn't help but shake as he was scared of his own thoughts. He was in that situation when he saw Tom walked into the room. He rushed to greet him with the sincerest question, "Dr. Qin, how is my Leena? Is she waking up soon?" Kevin's face wasn't shaved and he looked messy. It was a good thing that he was not in his military uniform, otherwise, it would be a blasphemy to the army. He might be tired but it was still undeniable how handsome he was.

"Her vital signs are all normal at the moment. I need to study her case further to provide a better method to wake her up. Meanwhile, you should keep talking to her. Try to say something that would stimulate her memories and thoughts. In that way, we might help speed up her wake-up process. Hopefully, it would work on her." Tom's eyebrows furrowed as he was also distressed about Leena's slow progress. Things were not getting as better as he had expected. He thought that she would already wake up by this morning at the latest. However, Leena was still sound asleep with no sign of waking up anytime soon. She looked absolutely peaceful and beautiful as she slept like she wasn't bothered by any earthly duties anymore.

"Thank you for the advice. I will talk to her." sighed Kevin. He had been talking to her all this time. He wanted her back to him so much. He usually leaned closer to her and whispered to her ears softly whenever he got the chance. His words for Leena were all genuine and uplifting, but she seemed to be deaf to all of them. Despite his constant effort, Leena never moved, not her eyes or even her fingertips.

"You look very tired. Slack a bit, will you? You also deserve a good rest. It is pointless to look after her every single minute. Have a break, otherwise, you will fall ill yourself. You need to look after yourself as well." Tom shot Kevin with a concerned look. Leena might be the patient here but that didn't mean that Kevin could abuse himself. He cared for Kevin too. He never thought highly of Kevin before since he knew very little about him. However, as time went by and they got to know each other better, Tom found Kevin was a really nice man. He felt truly happy for Leena for marrying such a decent man like Kevin. In his opinion, the two were a perfect match. There might be many people in the world, but not all were fortunate to be married with their rightful match.

Chapter 1278: Chapter 1276: Time To Get Up (part four)

"Thank you for your kind reminder, Dr. Qin. I will see to that." said Kevin in full respect. He had always thought highly of doctors as they rescued people and saved lives. He honored Tom for saving his wife's life and he would be eternally in debt to him for that.

"You don't need to be formal with me. You can simply call me by my first name, Tom." A warm smile made it to Tom's face as he calmly said those to Kevin. He wanted him to call him by his first name just like how the rest did. He was looking at Kevin as a part of his family now since he wasn't holding any grudge against him anymore.

"Thank you!" Kevin was no fool. Of course, he understood the message between Tom's lines. He appreciatively patted Tom on the shoulder and gave him a big warm smile. He was determined to change these people's view about him through his hard work, including Edward's.

"Don't worry too much about it. My best wishes to you. I need to carry on with my duties in other wards. Please try to talk to Leena as much as possible. Especially about the things that matter to her." With these words, Tom walked out of the room. He cast a profound glance at Leena before he closed the door. She meant so much to him and how he wished for her to come back to her senses right now! As he silently closed the door, the other doctors who were waiting outside all gathered up. Together, they moved on to the next ward. No one asked anything as they knew that Tom had a lot in his mind. They were all aware of how important the patient lying inside that hospital room was to Tom and that she shouldn't be disturbed at all.

Back inside the room, Kevin poured some hot water into a clean basin as soon as Tom left. He tested the water temperature carefully before soaking the towel into the basin. He then rinsed it, spread it, and then gently wiped Leena's face with it. He was extra gentle with his every move. Leena was a girl who cared about her looks and Kevin knew that. He was cleaning her face as he knew that she wanted to be pretty all the time.

"My little sleepy cat. It is time to wake up. You are going to be chubby if you keep lying here. Are you sure you want to lie here and end up being chubby?" whispered Kevin softly as he lovingly gazed her sleeping face. He remembered that her biggest fear was looking fat and ugly. Thus, he deliberately chose that topic to scare her. He hoped for his words to encourage her and wake her up from her long sleep!

Not many knew but Leena could hear his familiar voice echoing inside her ear. She knew that it was from someone she had a great bond with. It was the same voice that had been calling her million times and was always there when she needed it most. How she wished to open her eyes and look at the owner of the voice. It sounded so sad and so distant. Her heart ached whenever the voice sadly called her name over and over again. However, she simply couldn't open her eyes no matter how hard she tried. Her world was surrounded by darkness and it felt like she was shackled to it.

"Nana, my beloved, is this how you want to love me? Is it supposed to be like this? You are ignoring me here! I am just sitting next to you, watching you sleep away. I know that you may be indulging in your beautiful dreams right now and wish not to wake up. Nana, I am giving you one more day. After that, you have to wake up for me. If you do not wish to see me anymore, I have to go away and leave you alone. Think about what you are gonna do carefully. Is your beautiful dream more important than me, your husband?" Kevin buried his head in his palms and painfully mumbled the words out. He knew it sounded hurtful and harsh but he was at the edge of breaking down himself. He had desperately tried every possible thing but none of them worked. Now he even used pointless threats just to wake her up. He wasn't even sure if Leena could hear him or not.

It was the word 'husband' that triggered Leena's memories. Everything flashed through her mind like a bolt of powerful lightning. Who was her husband? Leena searched beyond the darkness and tried to find the answer to her question. She couldn't see nor hear. However, the agony of that voice was so strong that it cut through her heart. Uncontrollably, her heart sank down as if it was falling into an endless abyss. She couldn't find a way to answer the calls. She didn't even know where was that sad, deep, and heartbreaking voice coming from. Her head was full of sounds from different directions but she had no memory of what they were. All she could feel now was how helplessly at loss she was.

"Kevin, has Leena woke up yet?" Shannon showed up with a big thermal bottle in her hand. She also brought some other daily essentials for them in a bag. Kevin was always by Leena's side around the clock and Shannon had to run errands for him so that he could have the things at hand without leaving Leena.

"Mom, I am so scared. Do you think that she will keep sleeping like this and never wakes up?" Kevin's mouth trembled. It was difficult for him to ask such vulnerable question. He couldn't hide his fear anymore before his mother. He emptily stared at his mother as he desperately tried to seek some positive answers from her. His eyes were red but he was holding his tears back bravely. He couldn't break down right now. Leena needed him.

"Hey, don't say things like that. It is too discouraging. Leena is just tired. She is now resting. I am sure that she will wake up as soon as she has enough sleep. It has only been two days since she fell into this coma. We should all be positive. She will definitely wake up soon!" Shannon gently patted her son's shoulder and gave him a supportive look. She looked stern. The last thing she wanted to hear from his mouth was discouragement. They should stand firm and keep their faith in this situation.

Exactly, please be optimistic for her! Quit your stupid ideas, Kevin. Leena will be fine. After all, she loves you to bits and would never leave you behind. She would never ever hurt your feelings!" Claire's attitude surprised Shannon. She was glad to see the change in her daughter. She found it unbelievable that her spoiled daughter now acted elegantly and properly in front of others. It seemed that she had matured a lot. It was to Shannon's greatest joy that her daughter was no longer a childish brat. Smiling generously at her daughter, Shannon was thankful that Kevin and Leena brought her here in S City. Finally, she didn't need to worry about Claire anymore.

"I truly hope so. I would do anything to wake her up. I keep comforting myself that she will wake up eventually!" A bitter smile cracked Kevin's handsome face. He then looked away as he tried to hide his tears before his family. He was a strong man of few words. He didn't wish to reveal his vulnerability in front of his close ones.

"Don't worry too much about it. Come here and drink some of this soup I made for you. You have lost a lot of weight these days due to the stress. You are worrying me, child! It would be a huge irony once Leena wakes up and she finds you ill." Shannon's voice was also trembling despite the braveness she tried to put on. As she carefully poured the soup out of the thermal bottle into a bowl, she tried to keep her hands calm. She needed to look after her Kevin well. Her beloved daughter-in-law was already ill. She couldn't afford to lose her son. The bare thought of Kevin falling ill would destroy her confidence instantly!

Thank you for the soup, Mom. I am sorry for making you worry." Kevin took the bowl from his mother's hands and said gently to her. He knew that he should do anything he could to please his mother. He couldn't just let his mother worry this much, right? Moreover, he couldn't afford to break her heart.

"Claire, please bring the rest of the soup to Dr. Qin. He has been busy working for Leena these days. I would like to thank him for his effort." Shannon said warmly as she handed the thermal bottle to her daughter. She only knew about Tom yesterday while she was dining out with the others. Of course, she had also met other close friends of Leena. These men were really outstanding and she couldn't help but feel proud of Leena upon learning how everyone around her loved her. As the saying went, birds of the same feathers flock together. Judging from the manners of Leena's friends, Shannon could easily tell that Leena was a nice girl herself without doubt.

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 1278 - Chapter 1276: Time To Get Up (part four)

Chapter 1278: Chapter 1276: Time To Get Up (part four)

"Thank you for your kind reminder, Dr. Qin. I will see to that." said Kevin in full respect. He had always thought highly of doctors as they rescued people and saved lives. He honored Tom for saving his wife's life and he would be eternally in debt to him for that.

"You don't need to be formal with me. You can simply call me by my first name, Tom." A warm smile made it to Tom's face as he calmly said those to Kevin. He wanted him to call him by his first name just like how the rest did. He was looking at Kevin as a part of his family now since he wasn't holding any grudge against him anymore.

"Thank you!" Kevin was no fool. Of course, he understood the message between Tom's lines. He appreciatively patted Tom on the shoulder and gave him a big warm smile. He was determined to change these people's view about him through his hard work, including Edward's.

"Don't worry too much about it. My best wishes to you. I need to carry on with my duties in other wards. Please try to talk to Leena as much as possible. Especially about the things that matter to her." With these words, Tom walked out of the room. He cast a profound glance at Leena before he closed the door. She meant so much to him and how he wished for her to come back to her senses right now! As he silently closed the door, the other doctors who were waiting outside all gathered up. Together, they moved on to the next ward. No one asked anything as they knew that Tom had a lot in his mind. They were all aware of how important the patient lying inside that hospital room was to Tom and that she shouldn't be disturbed at all.

Back inside the room, Kevin poured some hot water into a clean basin as soon as Tom left. He tested the water temperature carefully before soaking the towel into the basin. He then rinsed it, spread it, and then gently wiped Leena's face with it. He was extra gentle with his every move. Leena was a girl who cared about her looks and Kevin knew that. He was cleaning her face as he knew that she wanted to be pretty all the time.

"My little sleepy cat. It is time to wake up. You are going to be chubby if you keep lying here. Are you sure you want to lie here and end up being chubby?" whispered Kevin softly as he lovingly gazed her sleeping face. He remembered that her biggest fear was looking fat and ugly. Thus, he deliberately chose that topic to scare her. He hoped for his words to encourage her and wake her up from her long sleep!

Not many knew but Leena could hear his familiar voice echoing inside her ear. She knew that it was from someone she had a great bond with. It was the same voice that had been calling her million times and was always there when she needed it most. How she wished to open her eyes and look at the owner of the voice. It sounded so sad and so distant. Her heart ached whenever the voice sadly called her name over and over again. However, she simply couldn't open her eyes no matter how hard she tried. Her world was surrounded by darkness and it felt like she was shackled to it.

"Nana, my beloved, is this how you want to love me? Is it supposed to be like this? You are ignoring me here! I am just sitting next to you, watching you sleep away. I know that you may be indulging in your beautiful dreams right now and wish not to wake up. Nana, I am giving you one more day. After that, you have to wake up for me. If you do not wish to see me anymore, I have to go away and leave you alone. Think about what you are gonna do carefully. Is your beautiful dream more important than me, your husband?" Kevin buried his head in his palms and painfully mumbled the words out. He knew it sounded hurtful and harsh but he was at the edge of breaking down himself. He had desperately tried every possible thing but none of them worked. Now he even used pointless threats just to wake her up. He wasn't even sure if Leena could hear him or not.

It was the word 'husband' that triggered Leena's memories. Everything flashed through her mind like a bolt of powerful lightning. Who was her husband? Leena searched beyond the darkness and tried to find the answer to her question. She couldn't see nor hear. However, the agony of that voice was so strong that it cut through her heart. Uncontrollably, her heart sank down as if it was falling into an endless abyss. She couldn't find a way to answer the calls. She didn't even know where was that sad, deep, and heartbreaking voice coming from. Her head was full of sounds from different directions but she had no memory of what they were. All she could feel now was how helplessly at loss she was.

"Kevin, has Leena woke up yet?" Shannon showed up with a big thermal bottle in her hand. She also brought some other daily essentials for them in a bag. Kevin was always by Leena's side around the clock and Shannon had to run errands for him so that he could have the things at hand without leaving Leena.

"Mom, I am so scared. Do you think that she will keep sleeping like this and never wakes up?" Kevin's mouth trembled. It was difficult for him to ask such vulnerable question. He couldn't hide his fear anymore before his mother. He emptily stared at his mother as he desperately tried to seek some positive answers from her. His eyes were red but he was holding his tears back bravely. He couldn't break down right now. Leena needed him.

"Hey, don't say things like that. It is too discouraging. Leena is just tired. She is now resting. I am sure that she will wake up as soon as she has enough sleep. It has only been two days since she fell into this coma. We should all be positive. She will definitely wake up soon!" Shannon gently patted her son's shoulder and gave him a supportive look. She looked stern. The last thing she wanted to hear from his mouth was discouragement. They should stand firm and keep their faith in this situation.

Exactly, please be optimistic for her! Quit your stupid ideas, Kevin. Leena will be fine. After all, she loves you to bits and would never leave you behind. She would never ever hurt your feelings!" Claire's attitude surprised Shannon. She was glad to see the change in her daughter. She found it unbelievable that her spoiled daughter now acted elegantly and properly in front of others. It seemed that she had matured a lot. It was to Shannon's greatest joy that her daughter was no longer a childish brat. Smiling generously at her daughter, Shannon was thankful that Kevin and Leena brought her here in S City. Finally, she didn't need to worry about Claire anymore.

"I truly hope so. I would do anything to wake her up. I keep comforting myself that she will wake up eventually!" A bitter smile cracked Kevin's handsome face. He then looked away as he tried to hide his tears before his family. He was a strong man of few words. He didn't wish to reveal his vulnerability in front of his close ones.

"Don't worry too much about it. Come here and drink some of this soup I made for you. You have lost a lot of weight these days due to the stress. You are worrying me, child! It would be a huge irony once Leena wakes up and she finds you ill." Shannon's voice was also trembling despite the braveness she tried to put on. As she carefully poured the soup out of the thermal bottle into a bowl, she tried to keep her hands calm. She needed to look after her Kevin well. Her beloved daughter-in-law was already ill. She couldn't afford to lose her son. The bare thought of Kevin falling ill would destroy her confidence instantly!

Thank you for the soup, Mom. I am sorry for making you worry." Kevin took the bowl from his mother's hands and said gently to her. He knew that he should do anything he could to please his mother. He couldn't just let his mother worry this much, right? Moreover, he couldn't afford to break her heart.

"Claire, please bring the rest of the soup to Dr. Qin. He has been busy working for Leena these days. I would like to thank him for his effort." Shannon said warmly as she handed the thermal bottle to her daughter. She only knew about Tom yesterday while she was dining out with the others. Of course, she had also met other close friends of Leena. These men were really outstanding and she couldn't help but feel proud of Leena upon learning how everyone around her loved her. As the saying went, birds of the same feathers flock together. Judging from the manners of Leena's friends, Shannon could easily tell that Leena was a nice girl herself without doubt.