Chapter 1391 Being Mad At Her (Part One)

"You still have no shame. Why are you always chasing after a man who wants nothing to do with you? Oh, I get it. You are a thug. So how is it possible that you would have any shame at all?" Luke sneered. He used the worst words he could come up with to insult her.

"What... What did you just say?!" Michelle widened her eyes at him. Her lips quivered in shock. She knew Luke disliked her but she couldn't believe that he would throw such hurtful words to mock her.

"What, didn't I make myself clear enough? Or do you want to hear what I said one more time?" Luke gritted his teeth and looked her over from head to toe. Despite the fact that he just talked to her so hatefully, he could not help but feel sorry when he caught a glimpse of the sadness that lingered in her eyes. The guilt caught him off-guard. It was strange to experience such a feeling.

"Yes, you are right. I'm a thug and I don't have any shame. That's why I keep chasing after you regardless of what other people think and how they taunt me. But if you think I'll give up on you so easily just because of the way you insulted me, you have another think coming. You underestimate how far I can go!" Michelle felt like her heart was being torn apart, but she still forced a bright smile on her face. He was right. She could indeed be quite shameless.

"Michelle, I'm warning you; stop following me and trying to get close to me. You don't know what I could do to you if you persist." Luke's hand still rested around her neck. He could have strangled her if he exerted enough strength to squeeze

. Luke was lucky that Michelle was into him. He'd better take the opportunity given to him. They would have certainly shot him if he was anyone else.

"Did I not make myself clear? Go away! Are you people deaf? Go away! All of you!" Michelle was unable to control her emotions. She rose to her feet unsteadily and staggered forward.

The men stared at each other. They had no choice but to run after Michelle, otherwise they would be punished severely by the boss if something bad happened to his daughter.

Luke said Michelle was not qualified for him, that she was shameless and a stalker. He used the meanest words to malign her. Still, Michelle did not cry. Instead, she felt like laughing out loud. 'Luke, you look down upon me? I would never have liked you or your cold attitude towards me if I was prone to giving up so easily. Now that I have chosen to love you, I will never stop until I have achieved my goal. I will pursue you endlessly, whether you like it or not. Don't try to escape me, unless you really want to shoot me.'

Chapter 1392 Being Mad At Her (Part Two)

As time went by, Dorothy became one of the stars of FX International Group. She was a high profile celebrity. Leena had great difficulty recognizing her when she saw her with the heavy makeup in press conferences. Back in time, she had been so innocent and pure.

The woman was a stunner. Her beautiful face had made it possible for her to become a star. With the right makeup and clothes, she looked even sexier.

Leena could not help but smile as she turned her eyes away from the big screen. She was probably too concerned about this. She and Dorothy had nothing to do with each other. They were strangers. Why would Dorothy cause trouble for her on purpose? Leena's mood lightened up as she convinced herself of this. But as soon as she saw the dreaded medicine bag lying on the dining table, she fell down in the dumps again.

In the past, she had never thought it would be difficult for her to give birth. However, the cruel fate had decided that it was beyond her to have a child.

"Major General, Lieutenant General Hank is back." Lee rushed into Kevin's office. He was unlike his steady and calm self.

"Oh! Really? I'll go and see him then." Kevin was happy to hear this piece of news so he did not reprimand Lee for his behavior.

"He is reporting to the commander right now," Lee said, following him. It seemed that Lieutenant General Hank had done good work this time. It had been obvious from the delighted expression on his face.

To welcome Hank and celebrate his successful work, the army base held a party that night. Kevin was unable to return home on time. It was the same for Daisy.

"Here, Major General Gu and Senior Colonel Ouyang, I'd like to make a toast ration. Sometimes, he felt like no matter how much he loved her, he would always be unable to see through her. She was clearly hiding something from him. How could she not trust him with her secret?

"Really? Didn't you ask her what happened?" Daisy hesitated. She did not know if she should tell Kevin the truth. Leena had asked her and the others to keep the secret from Kevin for now. Daisy was in a dilemma.

"Yes, I did. But I think she didn't tell me the truth. She said that she watched too many Korean dramas, so now she's been feeling sad. I can tell she only said it to keep me from worrying over her," Kevin sighed heavily. He had been wondering about her situation for the last few days and almost couldn't stand it anymore. It was overwhelming him. Was she in trouble?

"Maybe you are thinking too much. Don't worry. She'll be fine soon." Daisy struggled with a guilty conscience, yet she forced herself to speak and behave as usual. To ease her mind, she picked up the glass in front of her. it had been filled up by the waiter again. Daisy gulped down the liquid. She coughed heavily immediately afterward.

Chapter 1393 Being Mad At Her (Part Three)

"Why did you drink it in one go? No one's gonna take the wine away from you." Kevin frowned. Daisy's behavior was very suspicious. He could tell she knew what was wrong with Leena, but she was keeping him in the dark. Why was she hiding this information from him? Why was she helping Leena keep this secret?

"Sorry, I thought it was water," Daisy said, grimacing. Who filled up her cup without her realizing it? Well, she would definitely be intoxicated soon enough. Daisy could already feel the shivers.

"Let's go. I'll drive you back." Kevin shook his head at her. No one would believe that such a reckless woman was the youngest female senior colonel in S City, if they saw what this lady was up to tonight.

"It's okay. Edward will pick me up. He'll be here soon." Daisy raised her arm and took a look at her wrist watch. It was quite late already. The party was supposed to end soon.

"Okay. Then you stay here and take a seat. I'll go and talk to the soldiers, in case there is any trouble brewing." Kevin stood up and turned around. He walked over to the group of soldiers who were easily distinguishable as the battalion commanders. Ever since the fight between the new recruits and senior soldiers, Kevin had been more careful when it came to their security and discipline. He would never allow such a thing to happen again.

A car was parked outside the army base. Edward was not sitting inside. Instead, he leaned against the door frame and patiently waited for his wife to come out.

A handsome man's stance, even a casual one, could be fatally attractive to a woman. When Daisy stepped out and saw Edward leaning against the door so casually, her heart could not help but beat faster.

She knew he was an extraordinary man. He had the most handsome face and elegant manners. Even now, his charm and sexiness made her heart run a mile. Her mind just went blank as she stared at him unabashedly. At that moment, she forgot that this man was her husband, not a god whom she should worship.

"Hehe! Darling." Daisy staggered by her heavy workload recently. Plus, she drank alcohol at the party. It was natural that she wanted some rest.

Kevin did not drink too much. When he arrived home, Leena was asleep on the sofa. Her laptop was on the coffee table, still running some Korean drama. If he remembered correctly, this one was her favorite. It was named Secret Garden. She must have watched it a thousand times, but she never got bored of it. Kevin saw her watch the show from time to time, her eyes red and restless.

He shut down the laptop and was about to pick her up from the sofa to take her to the bedroom. That was when Leena opened her sleepy eyes and stared at him.

"You're back." Leena reached out and put her arms around his neck, snuggling in comfortably.

"Yeah. You fell asleep on the sofa. Don't do it again. You might get a cold." There was nothing but deep affection in Kevin's eyes. He let her adjust herself to find the most comfortable position to snuggle up to him. He never expected to love a woman so passionately, with all his heart. Finally, he had found his Mrs. Right. A smile from her was enough to take his breath away.

"Don't worry, I've turned on the heat. So how was it? Did you enjoy the party?" Leena raised her head to look at him. There were only a few inches between their faces. She could kiss his soft lips if she just leaned forward a little.

"It was just a gathering of officers and soldiers. I don't think you like those types of events," answered Kevin. Frankly, he felt awkward when the soldiers asked him to sing a song earlier. He was never a singer and he couldn't even carry a tune. He would just make a show of himself if he agreed with their idea.

"Have you been drinking in the party?" Leena asked as she could smell the wine from his breath.

"Yes, but just a little. Don't worry. I'm not drunk," assured Kevin before kissing her on the forehead. He knew how much Leena hated it when he got drunk, thus, he just drank a little.

"Take a bath now, Kevin," said Leena while standing up. She had initially planned to wait for him but she didn't expect herself to fall asleep on their couch.

"Nana, I guess we need to talk." Kevin's voice was low when he spoke. He then looked at his wife straight into her eyes as he didn't want to miss any of her expression.

"Oh, okay. What are you trying to say?" In reaction, Leena sat again as she waited for his response.

"Nana, I'm really worried about you. You've changed a lot since you came back from Paris. Can you tell me what happened?" As Kevin wasn't the type of person to beat around the bush, he went straight to the main problem without any ado.

"Uh... Are you kidding me? I think you're thinking too much," said Leena. She refused to talk about it as she still wished to get pregnant soon. She was not ready to tell Kevin about her situation right now. She sincerely didn't want him to worry about her. Moreover, she feared that he at's going on here? Why is it so noisy?" A cold voice came from outside the door. Tom entered the hospital room and frowned at the sight of the mess all over the place. It was then that his confused gaze landed on Patricia, who was still hysterical on her bed. He didn't intend to but for a while, he felt his heart broke silently while looking at the woman he secretly loved.

"Doctor Qin, please do something. Miss Bai got angry as she thinks that her medication isn't working." The nurse explained in one breath upon seeing Tom. Fear was written all over her face and it seemed like she was going to pass out anytime.

"You may leave now. I can handle this," said Tom to the nurse as he walked towards Patricia. His eyes were dark as he focused all his attention on the woman.

Meanwhile, the nurse who was attending Patricia left the room in record speed. The door even created a huge bang when she shut the door behind her. She really felt grateful that Tom came as she didn't know if she could stand another second inside the room.

Chapter 1395 I Am In Love (Part Two)

"What are you going to do? Are you deaf? Get out of my room!" Patricia yelled loudly as she tried to reach for even more things to throw. She didn't see who was approaching as she was staring blankly at nowhere. She looked very frightening right now as she moved madly on her bed. However, Tom didn't care.

"Patricia, what do you think you are doing? Do you think that this is helping your recovery?" Tom rushed to her as he spoke. She was holding a flower vase now and he was afraid that she might hurt herself with it. He suddenly got no sense of danger for himself. All he wanted was to protect her when he suddenly stepped on something that was splattered on the floor and he began staggering. Goodness! He almost fell on his face.

"You are not the one who can't stand! If you put yourself into my shoes, you would know how I feel," Patricia continued to scream. Seconds more and she began to beat her leg as hard as she could. "God! Why couldn't I feel a thing? Why? Why!" Seeing Patricia losing it scared Tom to death. Thus, he quickly reached for her hands and stopped her at once.

"Can you please calm down? The rehabilitation is slowly working. You will be able to stand in the future," Tom assured her. Honestly, he also hoped for her to stand as soon as possible. However, as a doctor, he knew it would take a long time for her to recover. The process of rehabilitation was long and boring and it demanded patience from Patricia.

"In the future? When? When I'm already a granny?" roared Patricia at Tom. Her eyes were beaming with anger.

"You won't be able to stand till the end of your life if you keep acting like this!" Tom thundered back. He was too molding to hers.

Tom stopped and retreated just in time she thought she would suffocate. He licked his lips unconsciously which made her swallow. She felt a sudden impulse to kiss him again.

"You... I..." Patricia stammered as she was still in shock.

"If you ever try to piss me off again, I'll punish you this way. So look before you leap," said Tom with a sly smile. He felt much relaxed now as he just made up his mind to court Patricia. Yes, she had forgotten about him. So what? He could make her fall for him once again. Oddly, he felt as if a heavy weight just got lifted from his chest. There was this type of warmth that filled him and for some reason, made him happy.

"Uh... Tom, are you going nuts?" Though Leena and Michelle had kept telling her that she loved Tom, Patricia had always doubted that since Tom had been treating her in a cold way. If Tom was really her boyfriend, why was he so indifferent towards her? However, he just kissed her and she couldn't deny the impact of that kiss. Patricia was now a little more convinced that Leena and Michelle might have been telling the truth.

Chapter 1396 I Am In Love (Part Three)

"I guess so, otherwise I wouldn't do something like that," said Tom with a shrug. He couldn't stop smiling at her.

"What do you mean by that? You regret having kissed me or regret having been hasty?" Patricia's attention had completely been shifted from her leg to Tom's kiss.

"Maybe both. But I'm not gonna apologize. It was you who started it first by irritating me. You should pay for what you've done." Tom was now acting like Edward, arrogant and shameless.

Patricia was dumbfounded at Tom's shameless behavior. 'When did I irritate you? It was you who started a fight with me first! You are such an ass!' she thought.

"Actually, you have a thing for me, right? But why have I forgotten you? Did you do something horrible to me in the past that I've blocked you from my memories?" asked Patricia in curiosity. Her cheeks flushed and lips were trembling a bit. She was no longer feeling bad but happy after he kissed her.

"Well, I won't tell you that. Why don't you try to remember everything? Then you'll know it. Just be patient with your rehabilitation. No pains, no gains. Stop being so willful, okay?" Tom said in a soft voice. His face twitched when he saw the mess in the ward.

"But I want you to be my doctor. I will be more motivated that way," Patricia said with a shy smile. She was still thinking about the kiss.

"No way," Tom rejected in a cool way. He was really busy every day and had to deal with tons of patients. He really had no time to accompany her.

"Come on! Don't just say no," pleaded Patricia. She should have been pissed off by his kiss as she didn't know him, let alone love him. She didn't know why but she felt a sense of familiarity when he kissed her as if they had done it before.

"No! That's not possible. So you better stop daydreaming." Tom left without turning his head after saying that. He acted so indifferently as if the man kissed Patricia before were not him.

Patricia pursed her lips as she felt wronged. She was a straightforward woman and she shook the unpleasant things off easily. However, she decided t

"What do I know? Maybe you've wiped the saliva off before I came here. Come on, just tell me who the man is! Otherwise, I'm leaving," Leena threatened Patricia and pretended to leave. Actually, she really had something else to do.

"Okay, okay. You know him. He is your beloved sworn brother Tom," said Patricia with a guilty look on her face. She had told Leena before that she hated doctors and would never date any of them. However, she was taking back her words now. She felt so ashamed of herself. She just couldn't understand why she had a thing for Tom. Though she had changed her views towards doctors after having spent such a long time in the hospital, she still couldn't accept to date doctors other than Tom.

"What? Are you serious? What did you just do? You've come to the third base, right?" Excitement suddenly flooded Leena upon hearing what Patricia shared. That was the best news she had heard recently. Her face lit up in joy and she was eager as curiosity ate her up at once.

"Come on, Leena! Stop making fun of me!" Patricia snapped at Leena but actually, she was not angry at all. They had been friends since they were students, and they always made fun of each other. This was the way they showed their affection for each other. Patricia's face flushed again when she thought about Leena's question. But this time, she decided to take it easy with Tom.

"I am just happy for you." Leena had a big grin on her face. Well, her best friend and her brother were finally together. Wasn't it a huge miracle and something to really be happy about?

Patricia rolled her eyes at her friend's words in fake annoyance. Leena was indeed her best friend who knew her inside out. They were alike in more ways than one.

Life was just perfect for Patricia now. She had great friends who cared much about her around, a bittersweet love she would remember for the rest of her life and a lot more to look forward to.

"Hi, would you mind if I sit here?" In an elegant and tranquil coffee shop, Dorothy gently asked Leena in a sweet voice, looking at her with smiling eyes.

"Oh. Hello, Miss Lu. Of course not. Please, have a seat." The corners of Leena's lips lifted into a gentle smile. She was much more mature than she was before. She had that beautiful and elegant aura around her just sitting there.

"Thank you." After these words, Dorothy pulled a chair and sat down in front of Leena. As usual, she had that pair of over-sized sunglasses, hiding half of her face. She looked sexier than the last time they saw each other and Leena noticed it.

"Would you like something to drink? I can order it for you." Saying this, Leena raised her hand and gestured for the waiter to come. There was a small smirk on her face. 'What is going on, that Dorothy and I keep running into each other? I can't even have a cup of coffee alone.' she thought to herself.

"I will have a latte. Thank you." Dorothy gratefully smiled at Leena. The smile lit up her young and beautiful face. Though she and Leena were about the same age, Leena still thought that Dorothy looked more youthful and was much more childish than her. Maybe Leena just went through too much in her life that she couldn't help but be a grown up.

"Miss Lu, it's such a surprise seeing you here. Are you not busy filming? How about other projects?" Leena asked in a casual tone, taking a sip from her coffee. She was really curious why Dorothy would be here instead of working.

"I just happen to have some time for myself, that's all. I will start filming a tunately, Leena was not the same naive girl like before. She didn't really mind what others thought about her. So she quickly threw it in the back of her mind, smiled at Dorothy and didn't say a word. She didn't want to change just because of what the young actress just said. Especially an actress that she wasn't comfortable calling by her first name.

"I am wondering if it is possible to ask you a... quite a private question?" After an uncomfortable silence, Dorothy hesitantly asked Leena a question.

"Well, if you are sure that it's a private question, I guess it would be better if you don't ask. There is a reason that it is called a private question," Leena said while playing with the coffee cup on the table. Originally, she wanted to have some time to herself in this quiet coffee shop and think about some things in private. But now, it seemed impossible with Dorothy at the same table, struggling to do away with the awkwardness. She should just go away.

"Umm..." Dorothy was a bit stunned at Leena's subtle but direct refusal. She didn't expect that Leena would be this straightforward and she was taken aback. She just shut her mouth. Now, after Leena specifically said no, she couldn't ask the question that had been lingering in her mind anymore.

And right at this time, Leena's phone suddenly rang, breaking the deafening awkward silence. She smiled at Dorothy a bit apologetically and picked up the call.

Chapter 1398 We Are Not That Familiar (Part Two)

"Hello. It's me," Leena answered in a low voice and didn't say Kevin's name out loud because she was in front of Dorothy. She didn't want Dorothy to know it was Kevin's call.

"I know it's you. I am wondering if you are free now?" Kevin felt amused at her words. How could he not know whom he was calling?

"Yeah, I am free. What's up?" Leena got a bit nervous all of a sudden. She was worried that he might want to discuss with her again, the thing that he brought up the other night.

"Right. I forgot to bring one of the documents. I'm sure I left it on your desk. Do you think you can bring it to me?" It was not some secret file, just his daily report that was important for the meeting this afternoon, Leena could save him a lot of time and effort if she could bring it to him. This way, he wouldn't have to drive home himself..

"Yeah, of course. Give me your location and I'll bring it to you. See you later." Leena stood up after these words. But then she sat down again as if she suddenly thought of something.

"Miss Lu, I'm sorry. I have to go now. I have something urgent to do. You can stay here and finish your coffee. It's all on me, as an apology." Leena smiled a bit apologetically at her. Secretly, she let out a sigh of relief. She was glad that Kevin called her now, because she really wanted to leave but she couldn't find a good excuse to do so. It was so awkward sitting in front of a person she didn't really like and having small talk with the said person. The call was really a life-saver.

"That's all right. Just do your be nice to go home with her husband, like what normal couples would do.

"It's still a few hours till I get off work, silly girl. I don't want you to waste your time just sitting around, waiting for me here." Kevin gently pinched her face. She was really cute sometimes. But Kevin didn't take her words too seriously. He thought that she was just joking. If she decided to actually stay until he got off work, she would have to wait for hours before they could leave.

"I won't mind it at all. I really want to." Leena stared at Kevin with eager eyes, hoping that he would see how much she wanted to wait for him. She didn't have anything else to do for the rest of the day anyway. It would be better than just staying around the house. Their home felt empty without him.

"Are you serious?" Kevin couldn't do anything about it, because Leena seemed to have already made up her mind. He just shook his head helplessly at Leena and silently agreed. Well, if this was what she really wanted, who was he to deny her this little wish?

MY WIFE IS AN ALOOF BEAUTY

Chapter 1399 We Are Not That Familiar (Part Three)

"Yes! So you will let me stay here?" Leena got excited because she could tell that Kevin would eventually give in. She didn't mind waiting for hours at all. Waiting for her own husband to get off work was actually a pretty sweet thing to do, in her opinion.

"Well, how can I refuse if you insist like that? You make such good arguments that you're so hard to resist. Of course I agree. Just wait here. Let me ask Lee to take you to my apartment here. Such a stubborn girl!" Kevin couldn't do anything about her perseverance. He tapped her forehead with his finger, with eyes full of affection towards his wife.

"Yay! Thank you thank you thank you!" Leena stood on her tiptoes and smacked a loud kiss on Kevin's cheek. Her face was proud and showed her happiness. She was glad that she had Kevin wrapped around her little finger.

"Leena, we are in a public place," Kevin gently warned Leena, as he rubbed his face. It seemed that a little smudge of red had stayed on his cheek. Then he glanced back at the gate of the army base. He didn't know if Leena's behavior just now was seen by any of the soldiers. He sincerely hoped not. How would he keep his reputation of being strong and tough in front of them, if he was seen making small lovey-dovey, public displays of affection in the army base? Might as well strip off the uniform and wear a pink couple T-shirt during training.

"It's just a friendly smack. I did it everyday when I was abroad. Don't think too much of it." Leena looked at him with raised eyebrows, a smirk on her face. Though her heart felt a pinch of pain whenever she thought that maybe one day Kevin would belong to another woman, she kept the sweet smile on her face. Yes, this place smelt just like Kevin. It was the same faint mint smell she was so familiar with. She then entered the bedroom and opened the closet to have a look. The clothes were mostly military uniforms. But there were still some casual outfits. It seemed that Kevin rarely bought clothes for himself. It was understandable. He could not wear anything other than his military uniform when he was at work. He hadn't worn most of the clothes she bought for him, much to her disappointment, which she didn't show. He hadn't even gotten rid of the tags attached to the clothes yet.

Also, Leena couldn't ignore that the apartment was sparkling clean. Leena knew it must be Lee who helped Kevin clean his own room. She knew Kevin too well. He was never good at doing housework, and he was definitely not the one who made the place this clean. For one, he never lifted a finger to do any housework back home, other than cooking.

Maybe because Kevin didn't live here for long periods of time, this place seemed empty. And to make it worse, there was no heater in this apartment, so it was a bit chilly for Leena's liking.

MY WIFE IS AN ALOOF BEAUTY

Suddenly, something caught Leena's eye. It was a phone that was on his desk. The photo of Kevin on the phone had a big happy smile on his face, looking at Justin with eyes full of affection. At this moment, Leena suddenly realized how much Kevin adored kids. If she really couldn't have kids, what would Kevin think? Would he still love her like he did right now? Or would it affect their marriage?

Leena had no answers to the questions in her head, no matter how hard she tried to think of one. Her mood suddenly turned sour thinking of this. And she also realized why she always wanted to be by Kevin's side. She just wanted to cherish every precious moment together with him, in case one day he would leave her, after finding out that they couldn't have a baby together.

The day had ended and as soon as Kevin finished his work, he hurriedly walked to his apartment where Leena had been waiting all afternoon. He was worried that Leena might have been bored just hanging around for hours. But what he didn't expect was to see her sleeping peacefully in his bed. Maybe she had waited too long and had gotten a bit tired.

Looking at her beautiful and angelic face, he silently let out a sigh. He felt lucky that such a good girl had come to his life and fallen in love with him. Yes, there were ups and downs in their relationship. But in the end, he was blessed with the beautiful life that he wanted. But when he looked closer, he noticed that there was still something hiding behind her eyes that showed a trace of sorrow. Was it possible to know what it was? Maybe she had decided to keep it to herself and he respected that. A woman had every right to keep her secrets. Though he wanted to be as close to Leena as possible, there was a part of her that he might never get to see, which made him feel helpless.

"Nana, wake up. It's time to go home." Though Kevin wanted to let Leena sleep some more, he had to wake her up because it was already late. The sky would be fully dark by the time they were back downtown.

ful and sweet girl like Leena made her want to hug her as if she was a friend that she hadn't seen in a very long time.

"Thank you Mrs. Xu! You are also very pretty yourself!" Leena thanked Mrs. Xu and then glanced at Kevin with a proud look on her face. She raised one of her eyebrows at him as if saying, "Look! Your wife is so adorable and everyone likes her!" Kevin just smiled happily at her and didn't say any words.

"Do you have any plans this evening? How about the two of you have dinner with us at our home? It's about time for dinner after all. Besides, you can meet my husband. You haven't been around for a long time, Kevin." It seemed that Mrs. Xu was also hospitable. She had just met Leena, but she immediately invited them to her home for dinner.

"Nana, what do you say?" Kevin tilted his head and asked, looking at Leena. He often went to Battalion Commander Xu's home before. But ever since he got married to Leena, he didn't go there anymore. Especially nowadays, he went straight home after work so he didn't have time to visit or hang out with his friends anymore. He still remembered the happy times when Daisy and Justin were still here and they all got together and just hung out. But ever since they all moved away, this place seemed much quieter. There were new people who came but it wasn't easy to make new friends.
