Chapter 1561 How Time Flies (Part One)

"Duke, I'm here." With his army uniform on, Kevin looked intimidating yet handsome, aggressive yet calm, looking special yet not sticking out like a sore thumb among the guests.

"Okay, good. I need your help. Go over to those gentlemen by the table and have a few glasses with them. I already drank too much. I don't think I can take another drop," Duke said while pressing on his temple. He really overdid it today.

"Okay, let me handle this." As a Major General, he was good at socializing. It was a piece of cake for him to deal with all kinds of people.

"Hey wait. No, you can't drink too much!" Leena blurted out. He just had a lucky escape from death several months ago. He might have not completely recovered yet. He still had to watch his alcohol intake.

"Don't worry. I know my limits." He gave her a reassuring smile. He knew that she was worried about his health, so he would not really take the risk and get into drinking games and challenges with other guys tonight.

"Can you do it? If not, I will get Rain to take your place. Where is Rain? That jerk, he's gone in the blink of an eye." Duke reeked of alcohol and his face was completely flushed. While he tried his best to stand straight, his intoxication was showing in the way he walked. He really drank a lot tonight.

"I'll go to find him and bring him back," Leena said with a sly smile. For the sake of her husband, she had no choice but to sacrifice Rain who was surely now hiding somewhere. But better him than Kevin.

"It's okay, Nana. I can do it. Like I said, if I feel that I'm close to my limit, I will stop, okay?" Kevin stopped her. It was rare for Duke to ask him for a favor. He didn't want to disappoint him, especially now that he needed him the most. That man was completely tanked!

"Okay! Then I'll go and look for Sis Daisy." Leena compromised at his insistence. She didn't want to be the wet blanket.

In fact, as soon as Daisy reached their mansion, she was dragged to a secret place by Edward. Pas

f you were in my shoes, would you still be in the mood to continue? You did it on purpose, right? Did you follow us here? How much of our conversation did you hear?" Edward said, grinding his teeth. Then he leaned closer to Daisy and whispered in her ear, "Don't think that you have already gotten away with it. We can discuss this the whole night. As to the way how I discuss it, I think you don't need me to remind you. You know that."

Daisy gazed at him incredibly. Oh, no! Come again? They had crazy animal sex the whole night last night, and she still felt sore all over her body and especially down there.

Leena craned her neck, trying to listen in and trying to figure out what they were talking about. But she didn't hear anything. She complained to herself, 'Edward is too mean! He would not lose a piece of flesh even if I hear what he says.'

"Tell me, what did you hear?" Edward repeated with an ambiguous yet threatening tone as he turned around and leaned closer to Leena. This caught Leena off guard.

"What did I hear? Hmm. Did you say anything?" Edward's intimate gesture almost took Leena's breath away and made her heart stop beating. If he was not her brother whom she had always respected since she was young, she would definitely be captivated by him. Yes, Edward's attractiveness was of a different level.

Chapter 1562 How Time Flies (Part Two)

"You are very smart, you slick girl!" Edward's mood lightened up. He planted a gentle kiss on Daisy's forehead and left with a roar of laughter.

"Sis Daisy, what happened to Edward? Was he beaten by something?" It sent a shiver down her spine at the thought of his actions towards her moments ago. No wonder so many women had gone crazy about him and thrown themselves at him. He had the natural charisma that had all kinds of women spellbound. Even she, herself, was almost entranced by him just now.

"Don't mind him. He was flooded and infested by dirty thoughts in his brain tonight." Daisy felt a little embarrassed, being caught fooling around with her husband.

"Daisy, is it the nature of men to be so shameless?" Thinking of how Kevin behaved towards her recently, Leena's face darkened.

"Probably. But it depends. Sometimes, it's normal for men to have dirty thoughts on their wives. But if he also acts like that to other women, then that would be something else. We call those men, assholes, jerks or pigs!" No one can be a real saint in this temporal world. Daisy could understand Edward's moments of uncontrollable desire towards her every now and then. They were a couple and they were supposed to be bound into one.

"Okay, I see. Daisy, I found that you have a thorough understanding of almost everything. I really admire you and you deserve my respect." Leena raised her head and looked up to Daisy who was a little higher than her, with admiring glances, "Don't worship me like that. The one you imagine in your head may only live in fantasies and the stuff of legends." Daisy couldn't help but laugh as soon as she finished her words. It was not her style to use the online buzzword in her remark.

"Ha!" Leena also laughed. Daisy's joke lightened up the mood and Leena felt less depressed.

"Well, Leena, how is everything with you? Are you still drinking the herbal medicine?" Daisy asked with concern while helping her brush away the petals which had fallen on her dress.

"Yes I am. Tom is still giving them to me. But don't tell t on me!" Leena raised her eyebrows. When did she bully him? She just had verbal arguments with him.

"What? Are you afraid of him?" Daisy looked at her, amused. No wonder there were endless squabbles whenever they found themselves in the same room or the same place. It turned out that they had one thing in common, that both of them hadn't really grown up yet. It seemed that no matter how mature Leena acted in public, she was still a little girl inside. Her true innocent nature was just hidden and restrained by the bonds of marriage.

"Are you joking? It's impossible. Would Kevin really eat me up for this? It's so absurd." Leena said casually. She would never worry that Kevin would believe Justin and do something to her.

"Then what else are you worried about?" Let's go! I miss the baby already! I want to look at him all the time!" Daisy shook her head helplessly. The girlish manner that Leena occasionally behaved made Daisy want to love her and care about her as if she were her little sister.

Time went by. Good news about being pregnant came one after another from Leena's friends. But for herself, there were no signs of any conception. Although Tom proposed to check on her many times, she turned him down politely. She didn't want to pin too much hope on it. She just did what she could - secretly following the prescription that Tom ordered for her.

Chapter 1563 How Time Flies (Part Three)

Every time she saw how much Kevin adored Belinda's baby, she would weep in the corner and keep all the tears to herself. It turned out that he couldn't really act like he didn't mind at all. She could see his eyes light up when he was with kids.

"Kevin, how about we adopt a child?" Leena suddenly proposed one day.

"Why? Aren't we good with our life now?" Kevin wasn't very excited about the idea. He didn't want to hurt her. This would cause much more stress to her and possibly drive a wedge into their marriage.

"Yes, we are. But I just think that you may want to have a child." The truth of the matter was, if they really adopted a child, she was not sure if she would handle it well.

"Don't think too much. You don't know how tiring it is to raise a child. Aren't you going to prepare the winter fashion show soon? Why not put more efforts on that?" Kevin embraced her and squeezed her into his arms. His brows furrowed. Did he do something wrong that had unwittingly hurt her? He wondered.

"Okay. I will listen to you." Cuddling up against him, Leena beamed. But deep inside, she felt cold as if there was a snow storm in her heart.

"I will go abroad next month and I will stay there for about eight weeks. Will it be okay for you to be here at home alone?" In fact, besides training, there would be competitions which would be as fierce as ever. They had to cross the rain forest and overcome life-and-death challenges. The one who held on until the last moment would be declared the winner.

"Huh? Is it a military task? Isn't it dangerous?" Leena backed a few steps. She was worried whether his body could cope with it.

"A little dangerous. But don't worry, I will be very careful." As a soldier, it was his obligation to follow the orders. He couldn't have any other choices. But since he loved his job, he would stick to it until the very end.

ast. And it is so true!" Leena gave her a bright smile and tried to get rid of all the unhappy thoughts. Even though she was not pregnant now, she believed that one day her wish would come true.

"That's great. I am happy that you think that way. But, don't push yourself too hard." Patricia patted her shoulder, feeling very sorry for her.

Tom came back soon. The assigned doctor to the emergency case was not sure of his diagnosis, so he conferred with Tom so he could have a look.

"Leena, it has been a long time since you came here last." Tom said while putting down the medical records on the desk. He was quite surprised to see her.

"Oh, no. Tom! This is the hospital. Why would you expect to see me here frequently?" Leena switched naturally from a mature woman to a lovely and sweet girl, as if she had a dual personality.

"Good point! Besides, who makes the rule that people can only come here when they are sick? Right? Well, Since you came, you must have something to ask." Tom recognized what she came for as soon as she finished talking.

"That's why I always told other people that you are a smart guy. You are really a genius." Leena smiled embarrassedly. As expected, Tom saw through her. So she was not surprised at all.

Chapter 1564 Visiting The Army Base (Part One)

"Just tell me. Don't keep me guessing," Tom said, smiling. He shook his head helplessly at his little sister, feeling amused. He was dressed in his all-white uniform, looking handsome and gentle as ever. His smile was enticing, making everyone around him return it.

"Well..." Leena hesitated, "Kevin is going for a field training next month. I heard that this training is especially hard. I'm not sure if he can handle it, considering he has just recovered from his injuries. I am a little worried. I want to hear your thoughts about it." Leena gently bit down on her lower lip. Her worried eyes were fixed on Tom. She wanted to know exactly what he thought about letting Kevin go for the training. She didn't want Kevin to injure himself again. She was there for his professional advice.

"Since when have you started being so formal with me?" Tom sighed, "Ask him to come here for a check-up. I will run some tests on him and see if he has recovered completely. But I don't think there will be any issues. It has already been more than half a year since Kevin's accident. Considering his current health condition, there shouldn't be any problems. I'm sure he can handle a little hard training. But I'll run some tests anyway to make sure. Better safe than sorry." He smiled reassuringly.

"Okay, I will ask him to drop by whenever he is free. Kevin has been very busy lately. He hardly has any time to eat and sleep. It would be hard for him to squeeze in some decent time for a check-up," Leena frowned.

"Let him come when he has some spare time. Just give me a call before he comes, okay?" he said, as he glanced at Patricia's belly. He had been prepared to be a slave for h ely take them for a couple. Patricia had to admit, she was a bit jealous.

"What were you thinking about? You seemed really focused on your thoughts," Leena teased her as they walked down the hospital corridor together. But Patricia was going through some complicated emotions regarding the relationship between Leena and Tom. She knew that they cared deeply for each other and that mutual feeling was completely platonic, but she still couldn't shake off her doubts. What if there was a glimmer of a chance that they might be holding some subtle feelings for each other?

"I'm afraid that you will both laugh at me if I tell you." Tom gently held her hand as they walked and the small gesture warmed her heart.

"Why is that? Patricia, were you thinking about some other handsome guy?" Leena teased her again, winking at Patricia with a meaningful smile. Leena knew that Patricia had always been fond of pretty boys. But she was just pulling her leg. Leena knew how much Patricia loved Tom. But she was very curious as to what she was thinking about, especially after Patricia had said that they might laugh at her.

Chapter 1565 Visiting The Army Base (Part Two)

"Of course not! What are you talking about?" Patricia scowled at her best friend. She stole a glance at Tom, wondering whether he looked jealous or angry. He wasn't.

"Oh really? If I remember right, you were the one who was always chasing after handsome boys all day," said Leena, mercilessly throwing her best friend under the bus. Leena knew that Patricia was hiding something. She was trying to get her to tell the truth. But she wasn't really lying about how Patricia always fell for handsome boys. That was the reason why she had fallen in love with Tom at first sight.

"Leena! Are you my best friend or not? Why are you telling this in front of Tom? It is so humiliating!" Patricia shouted, her beautiful face turning red. She felt embarrassed. She gently slapped Leena's back, hoping she would shut up.

"Tom, help! She is trying to hurt me!" Leena laughed and hid herself behind Tom's back. She grabbed his arm, knowing that he would protect her from her friend's playful attacks.

"All right, all right. You two, calm down." He couldn't help but let out a silent sigh at their childish play. They had gone completely off-topic. He had to step in and take the rein on the conversation once again. "Patricia, tell us, what you were thinking about. You seemed awfully serious at the time. Is something bothering you?" Tom asked, furrowing his eyebrows. He was still waiting for Patricia's answer. He was very curious to know why she was distracted.

"Um? What was I thinking?" Patricia looked bewildered by Tom's sudden question. She was too engrossed in the conversation with Leena that she had completely forgotten what they were initially talking about. She looked so confused. Leena, hid behind Tom, trying her best not non-platonic way. No offense, Tom," Leena said. They were just too familiar to ever become lovers. They considered each other family, but they just didn't see each other like that.

"That's it? It's that simple?" Patricia looked between the two of them in shock. She was surprised by their simple answer. She had thought that maybe there was some serious and more detailed reason.

"What else were you expecting to hear?" Tom asked, abruptly stopping in his tracks. Suddenly, he wondered why she would think to ask such a thing. Was there something wrong with the relationship he had with his sister? Where was this coming from? Well, at least Patricia was right. It was indeed a silly question.

"I mean, I just thought that there might be some other reason. You two always behave like a couple. You are intimate, you know. That's all," said Patricia, biting down a bit harshly on her lower lip. She didn't know how to explain it without making herself sound unreasonable. Was she wrong? Was there something wrong with her? She knew that she shouldn't have asked that! Maybe she was just thinking too much into it. It was kind of ridiculous anyway.

Chapter 1566 Visiting The Army Base (Part Three)

"Patricia, it's not just Tom. In fact, I act the same way around all my brothers. They are all the same to me, really. I have only ever considered them as my brothers," Leena said, furrowing her brows. She had a feeling that something was slowly changing, and she also wondered if she was behaving inappropriately around her brothers. Should she start keeping her distance from them, now that they were all married? Maybe that was the reason why Patricia had that ridiculous question. To be honest, if Patricia had known any better, she would have found that Leena was much closer to Edward and Rain than to Tom. But it was understandable, because Patricia was Tom's wife and she had probably only noticed her interactions with him.

"Leena, I was just curious. I didn't mean it in a bad way," Patricia said in a hurried tone. She didn't want Leena to misunderstand her. She had only asked out of curiosity, not to cause trouble or to warn her.

"Of course. I know you were just curious," Leena said with an understanding smile. It looked like she really didn't mind Patricia's doubts. But she was secretly thinking back if she was really behaving inappropriately around her brothers. After all, they were all married and now belonged to other women. They were not just her brothers anymore. Maybe she was just so used to the way she had been interacting with them that she hadn't realized that it might cause their wives to feel uneasy and suspicious. So maybe this should change from now on. She shouldn't be too close to them anymore.

Tom had a bad feeling when he saw the bitter smile on Leena's face. He knew that Leena's smile was just a farce to cover up what she was really thinking. He looked for her husband's reply. It was the first time that she was insisting something from him. She knew exactly why she was feeling sad after her lunch with Tom and Patricia, and she needed her husband's comfort more than ever.

Kevin raised his eyebrows in surprise when he heard Leena being so persistent. He had a feeling that she was not quite herself. Kevin was now really sensitive when it came to things that involved his little wife. "All right. I will have Lee go and get you when you arrive here," Kevin said softly.

"Okay! Go back to work now. I don't want to disturb you anymore." Leena finally smiled. She really wanted to go to him, and she looked forward to picking him up in the evening.

Kevin hung up, and was immersed in thought. 'Didn't she say that she was going to visit Tom at the hospital today? Why did she want to come here and pick me up? Besides, she sounded so weird, as if something was weighing on her mind.' He wondered if Tom had said something that might have worried her. He was curious and a bit worried. He disliked seeing Leena unhappy, and that was why he had agreed to let her come to the base.

Chapter 1567 Visiting The Army Base (Part Four)

"Major General, can we end this punishment now?" Lee asked a bit hesitantly, pulling him out of his thoughts. The soldiers were being punished and had been half-standing in the field for more than two hours now. They had also missed lunch time. Lee thought that maybe this was enough.

"Yes. That's enough. Let them go eat lunch," said Kevin. He glanced at the time on his watch and nodded in agreement. This kind of punishment was a necessary evil. If he didn't punish them for messing up, they might never learn. That was not something he wanted to see from his subordinates.

"Understood, Major General," Lee saluted and immediately ran to the training field to relieve them from the hell they had been in. He had a feeling that the Major General might go easy on them. It must have had something to do with the phone call he had just answered. But that was just his guess.

Looking at Lee's retreating back, the corners of Kevin's lips lifted into a smirk. Then, he turned around and walked to his office. He still had some paperwork to finish.

"Looks like I am no longer the Devil Drillmaster anymore. You are the real Devil here," a voice said from behind him as he walked into the building. He stopped and turned to look at the owner of the voice. Daisy was quickly walking towards him. It looked like she was in a hurry.

"I learned it all from you," Kevin immediately countered. He rubbed his nose a bit sheepishly. He was always worried about his soldiers. And this time, he had lost his cool and decided to punish them harshly for their mistake. He wanted them to remember the pain and not repeat their errors. It was for their own good.

"Hey, don't drag me into this. You make it sound like I really am a cruel drillmaster," Daisy protested. She was s inform Kevin that his wife was waiting outside. So Leena didn't have to wait for too long. A few minutes later, Lee appeared at the gate and ran towards Leena's car.

"Leena, you are early. The Major General told me that you would not be here until at least 5 o'clock." Although it was already autumn and the weather was chilly, Lee still had a thin layer of sweat on his forehead because he had run all the way to the gate.

"I didn't think I'd be here this early either. Is Kevin still busy?" asked Leena. She couldn't tell Lee that she had intentionally arrived an hour earlier. She didn't want Lee to tell that to Kevin and worry him unnecessarily.

"Yes, he is still working. He is in the middle of something important right now and is not in his office at the moment. How about letting me give you a tour around the army base? I don't think you have visited before, have you?"

asked Lee. He didn't know what else to do with Leena because Kevin hadn't given him any particular instruction. It was a good idea to accompany Leena in visiting the army base. After all, she seldom had a chance to visit the base, and she was a curious one. Lee assumed that she might enjoy it.

MY WIFE IS AN ALOOF BEAUTY

Chapter 1568 Visiting The Army Base (Part Five)

"Really? Can we do that? I am really interested!" Leena exclaimed. She had only been in the base once when she had come with Daisy. She was happy that she got the chance to look more closely at the place where her husband worked.

"Of course, it's just a visit. It's no big deal. We can totally do it." Lee looked at her in confusion and thought, 'Why is she so excited all of a sudden? Doesn't she know that she can visit the army base as the wife of the Major General?'

"Great. But what about my car?" Leena asked, looking at her car. She couldn't leave it outside the army base.

"We can park it in the parking lot of the army base. Let me. You are not familiar with the place," Lee said as he opened the car door, and got into it before Leena could even reply. Ever since Major General got married to Leena, Lee had been lucky enough to drive some expensive cars which he had never even seen before. He was pretty much used to it now.

Leena quickly got in the car too. She didn't know if it was the right thing to do by showing up at the army base, but she couldn't care less. After the lunch with Tom and Patricia, she had been feeling extremely low. She didn't blame Patricia at all, because she had a point. She knew that her best friend had no intention to hurt her whatsoever. But still, it had hit her hard when she had realized that she couldn't be close to her brothers anymore, because she didn't want to cause any disputes between the couples. She wanted to see Kevin badly and be comforted by him.

As they drove into the army base, Leena heard the loud and strong calls of the soldiers. And it made her feel warm. She felt closer to Kevin, and she was happy to know more about his work life.

They parked the car and started walking around the base. Wa

Eventually she stormed off after she learned that he had betrayed her again. But life brought her back to him a few years later, to his astonishment. pproaching stealthily behind them.

"Yeah! That's a good question. Tell us your love story, please! We are curious." They all seemed super intrigued by the second soldier's question. They wanted to know some juicy stories about the Major General. Leena was a bit startled by their curiosity. Besides, that was a question Leena didn't know how to answer. She couldn't tell them that she had a one-night-stand with the Major General, could she? That didn't seem like a proper answer. So Leena kept her mouth shut and just smiled at them, pretending like she didn't hear the question.

"Why don't you let me tell you our love story, huh?" Kevin asked in a cold voice, driving the whole canteen silent. The soldiers froze for a moment and then immediately straightened their backs and looked at him with serious eyes. The smiles on their faces had been wiped clean.

"Major General, we have finished our meal. So, we'll leave you and Mrs. Gu to enjoy your dinner now," a petty officer said immediately. He wanted to get the soldiers out of there as soon as possible. They would never dare to gossip about the Major General when he was right in front of them. That would be suicide.

Chapter 1569 Feeling Depressed (Part One)

Leena looked blankly at the soldiers who just fled. Then she turned to Kevin and wondered, 'Why did they all run away? Is Kevin really that terrifying?'

"Major General, would you like to choose your own dishes or shall I help you with it?" However, unlike the other soldiers, Lee remained calm upon seeing Kevin. Even his voice didn't show any trace of fear at all when he approached.

"Help me choose," said Kevin as he sat next to Leena. Feeling her staring at him made him look back at her too. He thought, 'I didn't expect her to get along that well with the soldiers.'

"Is there anything on my face?" Leena unwittingly touched the corner of her mouth. She felt her cheeks burned under Kevin's gaze. Thus, she silently thought, 'Do I have rice on my face or something?'

"No. You look great." The gentle smile that cracked Kevin's lips surprised all the soldiers who were still eating around them. Kevin had always been very strict with their training, thus, they were shocked to see him so gentle. He was like a different man when he was with Leena. The difference between how he treated the woman and them was just so evident that they could taste it in their food.

"They all seem to be afraid of you." Nevertheless, Leena seemed to be unaffected by all the attention when she looked at Kevin and sweetly smiled. The more she stayed in this place, the more she admired Kevin.

"And you? Why aren't you afraid of me?" joked Kevin while raising his eyebrows. He couldn't help but wonder about what happened to Leena today.

"Who told you that I'm not afraid of you? I'm always worried that you'll be angry," whispered Leena innocently. Little did Kevin know about the great pressure she was feeling whenever he was mad at her. It seemed that her fear of him unconsciously sprang from his career. He always looked so majestic, dignified, and intim hed the corner of his mouth and thought, 'Ah! You all deserve it. Why did you guys stay here just to spy on the Major General anyway? You guys are already done with your dinner! Good luck to you all. May you guys survive the ten kilometers run in full combat gear you'll do tonight. Tsk! You guys are so screwed.'

"Umh... Kevin, do you still have a mission tonight?" Leena looked at Kevin's serious face doubtfully as she didn't get what he meant.

"What the Major General said is a punishment to the soldiers, Leena." It was Lee who answered her query. However, the poor soldier instantly received a warning glare from Kevin right after he explained. It was as if Kevin was telling him that he should have not said that.

"Why? They didn't do anything wrong. Why would you punish them?" asked Leena in an even more confused tone. Her eyebrows were even knotting as she stared at the man. 'I just had a good time with them. I don't want them to be punished, ' she thought.

"Did you guys hear that? You all should thank my wife. I won't punish you today." Kevin let out a defeated sigh and then looked at Leena. This was how much he adored his wife. Regardless of how hard he was as a person, one word from Leena could make him melt.

Chapter 1570 Feeling Depressed (Part Two)

"Yes. Thank you, Mrs. Gu," said the soldiers in unison. Their voices went too loud that it echoed through the whole dining hall.

Hearing their neat answers, Leena scratched her head in embarrassment and blushed.

"You guys can leave now." Kevin glanced at them and the soldiers all left as fast as they could. Frankly, they were afraid that Kevin might change his mind and push for the punishment. They all moved so fast that for a moment the hall was filled with the sounds of running footsteps.

Leena had been smiling the whole time until she went out of the army base. She completely forgot about her displeasure before visiting the place.

On the other hand, Kevin was watching her through it all. He had been wanting to ask her why she was so happy. Her sweet smile was plastered on her face until they both reached the Grand Apartment. Nevertheless, he chose to put his questions on hold as he was afraid that doing so might change her mood.

"Why are you so happy today?" asked Kevin when he was finally parking the car. He'd bottled up his question for so long that his curiosity was already eating him at this point.

"Ha-ha. Nothing. I just never thought of the soldiers to be that interesting." Leena giggled as she remembered the scenes inside the army base. She thought that the experience she had today was nice. It was only now that she had the chance to observe the soldiers. She never thought of them to be that enthusiastic, strong and brave.

"Since you like them, I can take you there to see them more often." Kevin put his army coat over Leena's shoulders. Autumn nights were cold and he didn't want her to catch a cold.

"Really? Promise that to me then! You should swear to me that you are not lying!" Leena stopped and looked at him with questionin ling thoughts about Tom's request. He said nothing about it though and just continued to kiss her savagely hot while hugging her against him.

This was the first time that they had longed this much for each other's bodies. The passion was just intense and intoxicating. They were burning with lust and their wild kisses were simply unbelievable. For a while, it felt like everything else just melted on the background with nothing else left, but them alone.

The next day, Kevin left the house early. Leena missed tying his necktie for him again. She was too tired from last night and just couldn't move a muscle, thus, she never got the chance to fix Kevin for work.

Kevin's physical examination showed that his body had basically recovered. Therefore, he was given the opportunity to go out on a mission. He was already one step out of the door when Leena suddenly tugged on his sleeves tightly and shot him with her sad eyes.

"I think you should go back to your brother's house when I'm not at home, Nana. It's a lot better since they can take care of you. Besides, Spencer is there too. You like him, right?" Kevin tried to sound casual amidst the worry that he had for Leena.
