On their way, they didn't see many soldiers. Leena was curious about everything.

"Sis, this base is huge. There must be many people here, " Leena asked with her head tilted.

"Yes, there are a few divisions." Daisy didn't answer Leena's question in detail. She thought Leena wouldn't understand.

"Well, how many soldiers are there in a division?" Leena pursued.

"Normally, an army consists of three divisions, a division three brigades, a brigade three regiments, a regiment three battalions, and a battalion three companies. But our army is special. There are four divisions in the army, four brigades in a division, four regiments in a brigade, four battalions in a regiment, and four companies in a battalion. Therefore, there are 16 brigades, 64 regiments, 256 battalions, and 1024 companies all together in the army. Daisy didn't understand why Leena was interested in the number of people.

"Wow, that's a lot of people! How come we have only seen a few of them?" Leena stuck out her tongue and asked again.

"Because it's lunchtime. Most soldiers are having lunch in the canteen." Daisy walked quickly. Leena had to jog to catch up.

"Sis, do you also eat in the canteen?" Picturing tens of thousands of people eating together, Leena got excited again. 'What a scene it will be!'

"Yes. We're on the way to the canteen. My accompanying official will show you around after lunch. I'm sorry that I don't have time to accompany you." Daisy turned to see her reaction.

"That's OK. As long as I'm not alone its fine. Actually, I can look around by myself. But I think you won't let me. I'm also afraid that I might wander into some prohibited zone." Leena didn't care who was with her. She was longing to enter the canteen to meet some handsome soldiers. 'There will be so many of them! How thrilling!'

Daisy stroked Leena's hair. She had been used to quietness. On the contrary, Leena was lively. She had no problem with Daisy's distance and clung to her like glue. Her lonely heart felt warm.

The noisy canteen surprised Leena. The soldiers were attracted by her sweetness and beauty, including Kevin.

It was the same girl who had had a one-night stand with him. Kevin recognized Leena immediately. 'Why is she with Daisy? How did they know each other?'

Leena didn't know about Kevin's state of shock. She glanced around until she was brought near Kevin.

"Is everything ready?" Daisy asked. She never cared about the attention the soldiers paid to her. She pulled Leena over and sat opposite Kevin.

"Colonel, who's this?" Kevin asked Daisy hesitantly, but his eyes remained on Leena, who was still looking around. He wondered when she would recognize him.

"Well, this is Leena, a close friend of mine." Daisy pulled Leena's dress to prompt her to turn around.

Finally, Leena saw him. Her eyes went wide open. Kevin thought Leena had recognized him.

"Wow, Sis, he is a really handsome man. Look at the attractive face and the athletic build. A perfect man!" Leena exclaimed. Kevin almost fainted to hear that. She didn't recognize him at all. She was just smitten with his appearance. She had only a vague impression of the man that night. How could she recognize him?

"Leena, be nice. This is Kevin, Chief of Staff. You can call him Mr. Kevin." Daisy was embarrassed by Leena. 'How could she talk like that? All the soldiers are watching us because of her.'

"Hello, handsome! I'm Leena. Your name sounds familiar,. Do I know you? She failed to notice that she had made a scene. She started hitting on Kevin. But she had heard the name somewhere.

Kevin wasn't sure how to react. He kept gazing at the woman who was smiling at him.

Does it? Where did you hear it? Kevin laughed. Since she had forgotten all about that night, why should he care?

Um, I think I have heard it before, but I don't remember where. Leena tried to recall. The longer she thought about it, the more familiar it seemed. How can I not remember such a handsome young officer?

Do you need a hint? Kevin asked, looking at her mischievously. We spoke on the phone. Has she forgotten that too?

Have you two met? Daisy looked at them perplexedly. That seems impossible. Leena was abroad for years. She has just come back. And Kevin has been in S City for the past few years only. They can't be possibly knew each other.

"Yes"

"No"

They gave two different answers at the same time. Daisy was confused.

Leena raised her head to look at Kevin. Have we met? How come I can't recall this? I have an excellent memory. I wouldn't have forgotten such a handsome man unless I was too drunk to remember.

"Ugh." 'That drunken night, and Kevin Gu...' Suddenly Leena's eyes were wide open as she recognized Kevin.

"You... You... You are the..." Leena was going insane. She couldn't believe what she was seeing. The coincidence was absurd. 'He can't be. It's just the same name. That's all.' Leena kept comforting herself. Her initial joy of visiting the base for the first time vanished abruptly.

"Yeah, that was me indeed." Kevin saw the way she reacted. He knew that she recognized him. He smiled at her adorable expression.

"Haha! So, we meet again!" Leena got to know what it meant to shoot one's own foot. She felt she was doing that right now. She didn't want to stay confined in the house and so she planned to visit the military base. Now her curiosity got her into big trouble.

"Oh, you two know each other!" Daisy Ouyang listened to their quick exchange and got the idea. The world was full of surprises. One could run into all kinds of unexpected encounters.

"Haha! We met just once. We don't know each other very well. Sister Daisy, the food here is quite good!" Leena tried to change the subject. She wanted to distract Daisy. "Yes! It's not bad. You can have more if you'd like." Daisy knew that Leena was purposely steering her away from the subject. But since Leena was reluctant, Daisy didn't push her. After all, everyone was entitled to their privacy.

Kevin smiled coldly. It was true that they met just once, but they were not total strangers. Why would she lie like that? They had already done the most intimate act reserved for husband and wife. And she was saying they didn't know each other well.

Leena was completely focused on her food, but Kevin's eyes occasionally met hers. She was terrified. Leena regretted that she got involved with a major general. And it wasn't just a brief encounter but a night of passionate sex. She didn't even know who he was. Leena felt sad at her own misfortune. The more she thought about it, the more exasperated she got. Why did this happen to her?

"Leena, you should slow down! Nobody's fighting you for the food. And don't just eat the rice. Try the other dishes as well!" Daisy furrowed her eyebrows, not sure what had happened to Leena that made her act like that.

"Cough." Before Daisy could finish her words, Leena was violently choking. Her face turned red, and she was patting her chest.

"Here, have some water." Kevin quickly reacted, handing Leena a glass of water. He seemed concerned.

"Ah! Thanks!" Leena immediately drank the water and it helped her settle down. But as soon as she saw the glass in her hands, she put it down on the table anxiously. Kevin had been drinking from that glass as well! He just handed it to her, and she drank from it without realizing it. She felt as if they were kissing indirectly.

Kevin didn't think much about it, since no one made such distinctions in the army, especially during outdoor drills. People shared the same water bottles. That was why he passed his water to Leena without any apprehension.

"How do you feel? Are you OK?" Daisy didn't find anything wrong with what Kevin did. She patted Leena's back all the while wondering where Mark had disappeared. The kid probably went chatting with the others again.

"I'm fine. I just choked a bit." Leena turned to Daisy and smiled, but inside she couldn't be more distraught.

"Hm! I'm glad you're OK. I'll call Mark and have him show you around. We can go back together when I get off work." Daisy said as she took out her phone. She wondered where Mark had gone for gossiping.

"No need to call Mark. I can show her around." Kevin slowly drank some water from the same glass that Leena had just used. He was watching the ablush Leena. He wanted to have a private conversation with her.

"Are you free?" Daisy looked at Kevin curiously. How come she was swamped with work but he had so much free time? "Nothing I can't manage, I can handle work later tonight." Kevin smiled while looking at Daisy gently.

"Please don't. Daisy, you can ask Mark to accompany me. Chief of staff Gu must be quite occupied. I don't want to trouble him." Leena tried to decline the offer. The idea of being alone with Kevin terrified her. There was no way she'd stay with him!

"I see no trouble in chaperoning such a beautiful lady. It would be my utmost honor." Kevin was not letting her go. He lifted his eyebrows and stared at Leena casually.

"Leena, what do you say? Since Chief of Staff Gu is available, you two should get to know each other. I'll get to my work." Although Daisy was not aware of the history between Leena and Kevin, she felt it would be safer to have Kevin take care of Leena instead of Mark.

"Go on! I promise I'll return her safe and sound when you get off work." Kevin didn't let Leena interrupt. He blatantly rushed Daisy away.

"Then I'm taking you up on the offer. Please take care of Leena for me. As gratitude, I'll buy you dinner sometime." Daisy stood up as she spoke. She approached Leena and touched her head, looking ever so lovingly at the girl. It was quite different from her usual aloofness.

"Leena, please go with the Chief of Staff Gu and take a tour! Relax, he's very nice. And he's still single!" Daisy whispered in Leena's ear, giving her a sly look.

Ummm... Sis Daisy.. What are you talking about? Upon hearing Daisy's word, Leena's face turned red. She glanced at Kevin in embarrassment, worrying that he might have heard Daisy.

Kevin observed the exchange between the two women in bewilderment. He was curious why Leena suddenly blushed and looked at him strangely.

Daisy checked out Leena and Kevin once again, feeling that there must be some kind of secret between the two, yet she couldn't figure out what it was exactly. She was baffled, but since she had work, she couldn't get to the bottom of it. Therefore, Daisy decided to leave this matter for now.

Ok, I must go now. You guys have a nice time. Chief of Gu staff, please take good care of our little sweetheart! Daisy playfully winked at them, and left the canteen, leaving the surprise duo looking at each other in silence. They were both stunned by Daisy's demeanor. Her behaviour was uncanny. What happened? Wasn't she known for being cold and indifferent? When did she become so playful?

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 163 - Chapter 163: Would You Marry Me

Chapter 163: Chapter 163: Would You Marry Me

"What do you prefer to be called? Miss Leng? Leena Leng, or Leena?" Kevin teased Leena. They were both drunk the other night. They didn't even bother getting to know each other before jumping into bed. If he hadn't left that note the next morning, Leena would probably never know who she slept with!

"Chief of Staff Gu, Leena Leng is fine." Leena answered reluctantly, curling her lips. 'Miss? Miss your ass! I just had sex with you once, and somehow I'm a "Miss" to you?'

"Chief of Staff Gu? So formal! That's kind of a strange way to get acquainted. Leena... Don't tell me you forgot that night already." Kevin deliberately drew each word out, teasing her. He laughed wickedly. His overly intimate address made Leena's skin crawl. She couldn't believe it! He was another one of those crooked men! Who said that military people were all serious and stern. Then how could they explain this mischievous, improper man before her? He wore the most solemn uniform in the world while saying the most shameless words.

"Um... So... I had a little extra booze the other night. That's why... That's why I behaved so awfully. Besides, you wasn't in your military uniform. How could I know that I got involved with a major general? You can't hold that against me." Leena remembered that it was she who seduced him that night, and really wanted to cry... Why did he want her to discuss that here, with so many people around?

"Let's go for a walk! Come on! Let's go!" Kevin tried to hold back his laughter, thoroughly amused by the girl. 'And I thought women had an advantage when it came to sex.' And it was her first time, so how did she get it backwards? Why was she afraid that he was going to hold it against her? Kevin didn't know whether she was innocent or simply naive.

"Go... Go where?" Leena looked at him defensively, filled with suspicion.

"What? I thought you wanted to look around the base. You can't see anything in this canteen." Kevin raised his eyebrows and found her apprehension funny. She acted as if he were going to gobble her up. Leena slapped her forehead in frustration. What was she thinking? Could it be that she was the one who's shameless, rather than Kevin? Why would he take her somewhere unsafe? Why was that the first thing that crossed her mind?

Kevin smiled knowingly and didn't say much else. He picked up his cap and walked out, and Leena cringed at his attitude. Again!

The two walked in a line on the shaded walkway. As they passed, soldiers would salute or say hi to Kevin. Everyone looked at them curiously. They wanted to know the nature of the pair's relationship.

Leena had no interest at all in seeing the military base. All she could think about was how to make Kevin shut up about the other night. She was so lost in thought that she didn't realize Kevin had stopped walking, and bumped right into him.

"Is this how you walk? Looking down but not ahead?" Kevin didn't know what to say. So he was a little lost in thought as well, which was why he stopped. But he didn't expect that Leena would bump into him like that.

"Who asked you to stop all of a sudden?" Leena touched her sore nose, looking ever so innocent. 'This guy has a temper!' Silently, Leena made a note of another one of Kevin's misgivings.

"You hurt yourself, huh!" Kevin knew how tough his body was. He hit the gym a lot. His muscles were very firm, so it was no wonder it hurt Leena's delicate nose.

"It's alright. I can take it." Although she brushed him off, deep down Leena couldn't stop complaining. 'Damn it! Why do you have to train your muscles so hard? Use them as rocks? My nose was almost shattered.'

Kevin saw through her right away, but he didn't want to call her out. Instead, he asked another question:

"Have you thought about it? Can I have my answer now?" Since he would soon return to the city, Kevin's heart was slowly tormented by his pain. He imagined that once he had gone, that woman would be out of his reach forever!

"What answer? Thought about what?" Leena looked at him in utter confusion. She didn't try to scheme against him like she usually did with other people. Perhaps everyone had his or her own nemesis! Kevin was her weak spot. Facing him, she would constantly lose it. She couldn't keep her head around him.

Kevin was a bit upset. So Leena forgot all about it! If they hadn't accidentally met, then she would probably have forgotten he ever existed!

"The answer to 'would you marry me.' I will take responsibility for that night." Just thinking about going on blind dates with strangers made Kevin's head hurt. Being with any other woman other than Daisy was a chore. So why couldn't it be Leena? "Chief of Staff Gu, um... You're not serious, are you?" Leena asked. 'This can't be real. He's pretty easy on the eyes, and he's got a great career in the military...but I don't want to throw my youth away just for him.' Besides, they just had a one night stand. There was nothing between them. Did he want that kind of shoddy marriage?

"I would never joke about this. I need a wife now, and you lost your virginity to me, I'm willing to be responsible for you."

Kevin said contemplatively. A hint of pain appeared behind his eyes. Although he couldn't promise that he could let Daisy go, he would make sure that he'd never hurt another woman. Once he got married, he would shove his love for Daisy aside. It wouldn't be a disavowal of love, but he simply couldn't afford to love her any more. As a soldier, he had to take responsibility for his actions.

Well... You really don't have to be responsible for me. Remember who flirted first. It's not your fault. As Leena spoke, she blushed a little. She kept going over it in her mind, but still couldn't believe how bold she was that night. Why she actively flirted with him?

Chapter 164: Chapter 164: Is There A Happy Ending For A Loveless Marriage

Chapter 164: Chapter 164: Is There A Happy Ending For A Loveless Marriage

"You don't have to answer now. Take time to think about it. But don't make me wait too long. Your reply will decide whether I stay or leave."

Kevin said. His voice sounded serious. He wasn't joking. He might have even let it go if they hadn't met today. Maybe it was fate that arranged this meeting.

"I don't understand. Why is my reply the deciding factor?" Leena tilted her head and stared at him. She was confused. They barely knew each other. It was too early to talk about stuff like this.

They slept together once, but it was just drunken sex. He was a complete stranger to her before today. It was a little weird for her to hear his sudden but serious proposal. "It doesn't matter. Do you want to marry me? That's all you need to worry about." Kevin's eyes watched hers. He didn't know a lot about this girl. Maybe this was a bad decision.

She wore designer clothes and accessories -- obviously she was from a wealthy family. His father would be happy about that. But she was very young. Could such a young girl endure the dull life of a soldier's wife? To be honest, he wasn't sure.

"Why should I consider it? Do you really think there is a happy ending for a loveless marriage?" Leena said and wrinkled her little nose. Although joking and laughing all the time, she was very serious when it came to the important stuff.

"Look, give it some thought, okay? This matters a lot to me. Is there a happy ending for us? We can always figure that out after we spend enough time together, right?" Kevin had ulterior motives for this, though. If he and Leena got married, he'd have a good reason to stay in the city. His father would have to abandon his plan of recalling Kevin back to the capital city. And the capital city was far away from Daisy.

"OK. I'll think about it. By the way, what do I get out of this?" Leena joked deliberately, trying to break the tense atmosphere.

"What do you get? A lot. You get freedom. No one watching you like a hawk every second, no one making sure you behave yourself, no one forcing you to do something you don't want to. And I promise I will never divorce you." Kevin said with a smile. His smile was sad, heartbreaking but beautiful, which intrigued Leena greatly.

"Really? No one telling me what I can or can't do anymore?" Leena was tempted by the idea. Freedom was highly important to a fashion designer. She needed enough time and space for her work and loads of well-known fashion shows. He made the idea of marrying him sound really attractive. She would have total control of her time.

"Yes. But you'll be lonely. I'm always busy and won't have much time for you. I might be away for months at a time, for military exercises or missions. Is that cool with you?"

Kevin didn't try to hide this from her. It would be better for her to get a clear picture of her future before she made the choice.

"Wow! Really? I get that much freedom? OK, Kevin. When I get back home I will think it over." Leena's eyes sparkled wickedly. She could get herself a handsome hubby, and shrug off the watchful eyes of Mr. Cold. It sounded like a good deal to her. What's more, she always put soldiers on a pedestal. If she married Kevin, she would be an honorable army wife.

"Well, remember what we talked about. I'll be waiting for your answer. And I really hope it's what I expect." Kevin was relieved. He was hoping she'd say yes. It was her first time after all, and as a soldier he felt responsible. It takes two to tango. What's done was done, he would face it head-on.

"That's a lot of pressure. But I'll give you a good answer." Typical Leena. She always had her head in the clouds and lived in a fool's paradise. So she easily fell for the dreamy picture of married life Kevin painted.

"Well, tell me, when will I know? Tomorrow?" Kevin liked to strike while the iron was hot. If she thought it over too long she might back out. He wasn't going to leave things to a girlish whim.

"Well... What's the rush? Tomorrow? Isn't that too fast?" Leena laughed drily. Was she really going to marry him in secret? Mr. Cold would have her skinned alive when he found out.

"Isn't one night long enough for you? Or do you want to let me know right now?" Like all other outstanding men, Kevin could be strong-willed and aggressive sometimes. "Er... How about the day after tomorrow?" The man had a talent for manipulation, Leena realized. He was even more cunning than her. She only just agreed to consider it, and then he set a deadline without her consent.

"OK, the day after tomorrow. But when I get your answer, we marry at City Hall. Agreed?" Kevin asked, smiling wickedly. He was good at the cat and mouse game. Anyway, they would get married in the end.

Leena was instantly petrified at how things had developed so far. This man was a fox! And she had been outfoxed by a fox. In such a short time! One moment she said she would think about it, the next moment he was going to register their marriage. Seriously?

"So, have you decided? What's it gonna be?" Kevin looked down at her face with a lazy smile.

"Is it ok if I choose the later date?" Leena was just stalling for time. At worst if she backed out, he couldn't bother her at home, right?

"All right, I'll be waiting at City Hall that day. Remember to bring all necessary documents with you and If you don't show up, there is no second chance." Kevin deliberately tried to appear decisive and ruthless, cutting off her retreat. He was afraid Leena would get cold feet at the last minute. He would get what he wanted.
