Chapter 276: Chapter 276: Not To Provoke Daisy (part two)

"Yes, Colonel." Mark said while saluting her. He looked at Jessica with a frown before he got into the military Humvee.

"Let me take you to dinner. Let's go." Edward was quite satisfied with Daisy's reaction, at least she wasn't running away from him. She remembered her promise to Edward that she would not leave because of any misunderstanding. She gave him a chance to explain everything and he was glad that he didn't need to drive around the city to look for her aimlessly.

Daisy squinted at Jessica who looked awful. She remembered the proverb, 'The poor person must be utterly detestable.' so she didn't have the slightest feeling of sympathy towards Jessica, who looked down and out. She wasn't so generous that she would share her husband with another woman.

Jessica stumbled. Feeling desperate, she looked at Edward who held Daisy's hand and stepped into his posh Lamborghini. She had never seen Edward act so considerately before. But now he was doing this for another woman before her eyes. 'Huh! Edward, you have become so gentle and soft for Daisy. It turns out that I was mistaken to think that you loved me. Compared to the love you are bestowing on Daisy, I suppose I was nothing to you.' Jessica thought.

"When did you come back? Why didn't you call me? I would have picked you up from the military base." Edward said while flicking strands of hair from her face to the back of her ears. He examined her closely to ensure that she didn't get injured anywhere.

"I planned to call you, but Jessica called me and asked for a meeting before I could make the call. I got angry and decided not to call you." Daisy was easily flustered. His sudden tender moves made her blush. But there was a trace of anger in her eyes.

"How did she get your phone number?" Edward questioned. Daisy's phone number was sort of a military secret. Only Edward and a few people who were close to her had her number. He wondered how Jessica got her number.

"Didn't you give her my phone number?" Daisy remembered that Jessica had sent her an intimate photo of Edward and her. So Daisy had assumed that Edward had shared her number with Jessica. She was carrying a grudge against him for this.

"Daisy, do you think I will do such a headless thing? Do you think I will deliberately seek trouble for myself? Am I so irresponsible in your eyes?" Edward asked. He didn't know whether she got the number from him trickily, but Daisy's question revealed her distrust towards him. Her lack of trust made Edward quite unhappy.

"Yes! You've always been an unreliable man. I have a picture to confirm this." Daisy got a little agitated when Edward felt annoyed with her distrust. She flipped through the messages on her phone and showed him the picture Jessica had sent to her. 'Am I wrong? You can see yourself in the picture,' Daisy thought.

"When did she send this to you?" Looking at the picture, Edward narrowed his eyes and thought, 'Jessica, you have a finger in every pie. I didn't expect that you will seize every opportunity to provoke me. If I'm not wrong, I suppose that Jessica must have secretly checked my phone which was placed on the desk when I went to the washroom the other day. If it was true, Jessica really got the number from me. Then Daisy wasn't at fault for accusing me of sharing her number. It is all my fault. I didn't know that a careless mishap would give her the opportunity to create so much trouble for me. Jessica is really detestable!' Edward thought.

"It was before the military exercises began. Do you still want to defend yourself?" Daisy got angrier when discussing this. He had promised her that he would not have an intimate involvement with another woman. But the picture showed them hugging each other. It was fine if she had not known it. But the picture was here. How could she remain calm now?

"Sorry, honey. I admit it was my fault that your number was disclosed to others. But things between me and Jessica aren't how the picture seems. On that day, her cousin Coco was also present. Coco was a star signed by the entertainment company under FX International Group. She caused some trouble, so she met me to discuss the matter. But I didn't expect that Jessica would also come. And she secretly checked my phone when I went to the washroom. More surprisingly, when I turned around and was about to leave, she suddenly held me from behind. This is what happened that day. Now I have told you the truth, It's up to you to decide how to judge me."

Edward looked at Daisy, apprehensively. He didn't know whether Daisy was satisfied with his explanation or she didn't believe him at all.

Haha! Edward, are you reciting a passage from a textbook like an elementary school student? You seem really cute. I didn't say I don't believe you. But why didn't you mention it when you came home later that day? In that case, I wouldn't have suspected that you still have feelings for her and that you did something behind my back." Daisy was not that kind of person who took everything seriously, or who liked to pester her spouse with his past mistakes. So she was quite satisfied with his explanation.

I didn't want to let this stuff to spoil your mood before the military exercises. But I didn't anticipate that I'd mess it up in the end. It seems that I am really an irresponsible man like you just said. And you're not to be blamed if you didn't believe me. What depressed Edward the most was what had happen today. He thought that he had protected Daisy from his affairs. But it seemed that Jessica had eventually found a chance to provoked Daisy. He was totally oblivious to this.

Chapter 277: Chapter 277: Why Did You Do That

"Okay! Good, now tell me about her unborn child, " asked Daisy seriously. She was amused by the sad look on Edward's face. He looked charming when he lowered his head as if he was a student who had made a mistake.

It has nothing to do with me. I had a contraceptive surgery soon after marriage. Therefore, I can't be the father, " explained Edward. He raised his head and firmly assured Daisy. He didn't plan to tell Daisy about the contraceptive surgery. But Jessica told Daisy that she was pregnant. He had to share it to prove that he wasn't the father.

"Why? Why did you do that?" asked Daisy. She frowned and pondered, 'Why did he have a contraceptive surgery? To have sex with other women without worrying about getting them pregnant? Or did he have some other reason? His lewd past tells me that he underwent the surgery for the former reason.'

Honey, I don't want to talk about it. I'm starved. Let's have dinner, " said Edward. There was a corner deep in his heart, which couldn't be touched by anyone, including Daisy. He didn't want to reveal all his unbearable memories to Daisy.

"You didn't have dinner before coming?" asked Daisy. She looked at him and stopped inquiring about that operation. She didn't know why he had changed the subject, but she wouldn't force him to share. Deep-down everyone had secrets which weren't supposed to be disclosed to anyone, including his/her partner. So did Daisy.

"I was working overtime and then I saw your car. So I came over to see if everything was all right. How was the military exercise?" asked Edward. He caressed her cheek and smiled sincerely. Having Daisy around was a great blessing for him. His heart was beating only for her since he fell in love with her. Without her company, he felt one day was like one year.

"Well. I didn't perform as well as I usually do. It ended in a draw, " replied Daisy. She was still upset for the stupid mistake she had made in the military exercise. Following the prescribed routine was inadvisable and fatal in battles. Kevin's unconventional action had distracted her, thus making the red army suffer a great loss. How to write the summary on the military exercise still remained a problem for her.

"Was that my fault?" asked Edward. They sat in the car and Edward was staring at Daisy affectionately. He had wanted to help her but instead, he became a hindrance for her.

"No, I made some mistakes. Aren't you hungry? Let's go home and have dinner! I miss Justin, " said Daisy. She looked tender every time she thought of Justin. Edward was slightly jealous because of that.

"What about me? Don't you miss me?" muttered Edward. He had missed her so much that he couldn't fall asleep in the night. And Daisy got angry with him as soon as she came back.

"You're sitting next to me! Why would I miss you, " teased Daisy. Daisy didn't give the reply he was expecting. Daisy would be happy if Jessica no longer came between them. She loved Edward, and would always do.

"Not now, I mean the time when we were apart, " asked Edward. With expectation and excitement written all over his face, Edward waited for her answer.

"I didn't get any time to miss you, " replied Daisy seriously. She had been combating with Kevin on the battlefield all the time. There had been no spare time for her to miss him!

Daisy, no matter what you say, I still miss you, "said Edward. He then held her closer and kissed her lips. He pondered, 'You had no time to miss me, huh. Wait and watch how I'll punish you.'

At first, Daisy was shocked but then she started to kiss him back. It seemed that his little trick worked. Daisy really enjoyed his persuasive style which made her feel both loved and valued.

Edward wanted to express his love and longing through a wild kiss. But when Daisy kissed him back, the wild kiss became gentle and warm. However, soon, kissing wasn't enough for him. He wanted more. As he was about to put his hands under her clothes, Daisy stopped him and pushed him away breathlessly. Her face was totally flushed.

Woman, if we weren't here right now, I would have made passionate love to you, " said Edward breathlessly. He threw a sensual stare at her red lips.

"Go! Let's go home, now!" said Daisy. She tried to avoid his sensual eyes. Luckily she wasn't wearing her military uniform. Or else, the pedestrians would have started judging her. He touched her nose gently. And as he was about to start the car, he heard her phone ringing. Daisy answered the phone instantly. He wondered if there was an emergency. She had just returned from the military exercise.

"Hello! This is Daisy. Kevin, what's up?" asked Daisy. She assumed Kevin would be at his home already. What happened?

"Well! Daisy, has Leena contacted you? She is not at home. I tried to call her but I couldn't get through, " replied Kevin. He stroked his hair, feeling remorseful and angry. He thought, 'I can't get through to her. I was hoping to see her at home. But there is no sign of Leena or her laptop in the apartment. She must have left. Where has she gone? Before I figure out what has happened, I will feel embarrassed to call the Leng's for her whereabouts.' That was why he called Daisy first. Perhaps she knew something through Edward.

"Leena? No, I haven't seen her! Perhaps she went to the Leng's?" replied Daisy. Daisy realized Kevin's anxiousness because generally, he didn't call her.

"I don't know. Well! I'm going to the Leng's, " replied Kevin. He grabbed the car keys and walked towards outside. He pondered, 'My wife is gone. In any case, I have to go and see if she is at the Leng's. I hope she is there, or else how will I tell her family that she is missing. After all, Duke always has a problem with me.'

"Okay! Don't worry. She is an adult and I think she can take care of herself!" replied Daisy. But, she also got worried about Leena. And she wondered, 'Leena must be having her phone with her when she left! Why can't Kevin get through to her?'

"Alright, thank you! Call me if you know something. Bye!" Kevin strode to his Humvee as he hung up the phone. He was worried about Leena. What if Leena wasn't at the Leng's, where could she be? And where to find her? Speaking of this, Kevin suddenly realized he knew nothing about her, except her name and family. He never bothered to ask what she majored in. He was a bad husband.

"Has Leena contacted you?" Daisy asked Edward as she hung up the phone. For past couple of days she had been involved with the military exercise, so she wasn't sure if Leena had come to the Mu's.

"No! What happened?" asked Edward. He thought that Daisy was asking if he had seen Leena today. It didn't occur to him that Kevin didn't know about Leena being in France.

"Well! Nothing. Kevin didn't find her at home. Did I tell you that Leena and Kevin are married?" asked Daisy. She had been really occupied with the military exercise and thinking about the photo sent from Jessica. She didn't get the chance to tell Edward about Leena's marriage.

"You know that? Alright. Apparently, Rain and I are the last ones to know it, " complained Edward. 'Humph! Kevin had been busy with the military exercise, so he doesn't know that Leena has gone to France. I won't tell him about it! I need to teach him a lesson. How dare he marry Leena secretly. I know what Duke will be thinking. He won't tell him her whereabouts either. Let's thank Leena for giving us the opportunity to play tricks on Kevin, ' thought Edward.

"I'm sorry! I was too busy to tell you and I assumed that Duke might have told you already. Let's go! Perhaps she is at the Leng's now, " replied Daisy. Daisy was quite sure that Leena was smart enough to protect herself. Therefore, she wasn't too worried about Leena.

Then Edward started the car and revealed a meaningful smile. He thought, 'Kevin, this little trick is a wedding gift for you. We hope you'll like it. This isn't over yet. Just wait and watch our next move, humph! This is the price you pay for your secret marriage with Leena.' The poor Kevin knew nothing about their tricks. He was rushing to the Leng's now. It turned out Edward was right about Duke.

Without a second thought, Duke said he didn't know where Leena was. His father wasn't at home and therefore nobody caught him telling a lie. God knows how mad he was at Kevin. Now he used this opportunity to get back at Kevin.

Chapter 278: Chapter 278: What's Wrong With Me Hugging Daisy

When Daisy went back to the mansion, she couldn't believe what she saw in the house. She was stunned to see the couple who were having fun playing with Justin. They didn't look as old as they were. The man was young and handsome, while the woman was beautiful and cheerful like a young lady. Daisy winked and couldn't believe her eyes. She knew Cynthia and Jonathan. But they hadn't changed one bit since she met them at her wedding ceremony, and that was six years ago. She still remembered how surprised she was when she saw them that day. She had thought they were Edward's sister and brother.

It was until she heard the emcee announce that the new couple would bow to the parents, that she realized they were Edward's parents. She was flustered at that time and imagined what age they were in when they had Edward. They looked too young to have such a big son as Edward. Daisy didn't expect them to look as young, lively and beautiful as they were six years ago. Daisy almost dropped her jaw when she saw them again.

"Are you Daisy?" Cynthia looked at Daisy who was flabbergasted and asked. She frowned with doubt. Because the bride she saw on the wedding ceremony six years ago wore bridal makeup. So she wasn't sure if the woman in front of her was Daisy, she wasn't wearing any makeup today. Cynthia assumed it must be Daisy. But she had heard that Daisy had been away for the military exercises. She was here now, had she finished the military exercises already? But why wasn't she wearing her uniform? Cynthia really wanted to see how she looked in her uniform.

"Mom? You are back. Are the military exercises over?" Before Daisy could reply, Justin ran into her arms and that cleared Cynthia's doubts.

"I'm Daisy. Mom. dad, I'm glad to see you here. " Daisy kissed Justin's face and smiled gently. She nodded politely to Cynthia while cursing Edward bitterly in her heart. 'Why didn't he tell me that they have been back. I am embarrassed to be dumbstruck upon seeing them here.'

"Yes, we are back. So nice! You are growing more and more beautiful. Come here, let me give you a hug." Cynthia's beautiful face became more radiant after she saw Daisy. Although they had been traveling around for years, they kept abreast of everything happening in S City. This also attributed to Jonathan's another identity. They knew that Edward had been leading a wild life and playing around with his life for the past few years. They were worried about his ways, so they forced him to get married. But they could only sigh with helplessness on his rebellion after the marriage. They felt sorry for Daisy who was chosen by them as their daughter-in-law.

Jonathan nodded at Daisy, looking cool and handsome. Except for Cynthia, he remained cold towards everyone. His gentleness was only reserved for his dear wife.

"Mom, you and dad are as young as ever. You are still very beautiful." A lump formed in Daisy's throat. It had been a while since she called someone 'mom'. She had lost the chance since her mother passed away in an accident. She felt very emotional when she uttered that word.

"Sorry. I know your life has been very hard for the past few years. We are responsible for this. We were too rash about our decision." Although Cynthia didn't know Daisy very well, she liked her graceful and relaxed manner. It intrigued and intimidated people at the same time. But this was not the case with Cynthia.

"No, I'm okay. This has nothing to do with you. You don't have to feel guilty, " Daisy shook her head and said. In fact, she felt she should thank them for giving her the opportunity to marry Edward. Otherwise, she and Edward wouldn't have met, let alone have Edward fall in love with her.

"Huh! Ms. Cynthia, don't you think you're holding the wrong person? You should be hugging the man standing behind you, not someone's wife." Edward said while leaning against the door. He raised his eyebrows and looked at his father who still wore a cold expression. There was a trace of self-mockery in Edward's cunning smile.

"You brat! What's wrong with me hugging Daisy? Are you feeling jealous? You are so mean!" Cynthia teased Edward and released Daisy from her embrace. Her eyes were a little red. She didn't know how to make Edward happy when he was with them. She felt it was very difficult to satisfy him. They had been back a few days, but Edward preferred to be alone and was reluctant to spend time with them.

"I am not the jealous one. You accuse me of being mean, but compared to someone, I am actually quite generous." Edward said with a playful smile. He walked briskly to Daisy's side and gathered her into his arms. He squinted at Jonathan with a cold look, his expression was like that of a child who was angry with his parents. 'Huh! Do you think only your wife is worthy of love? I also have a spouse to love. And I don't care if you keep my mother only to yourself, ' Edward thought.

Daisy was embarrassed by Edward's sudden action. She was annoyed and she pinched hard on Edward's waist. Edward took a deep breath to suppress the urge of letting out a cry with her pinch. And Daisy took this chance to free herself from his arms. She blushed with shyness and wondered, 'Is he crazy? What was he thinking? He was hugging me in front of his parents. And what does he mean by saying that?' Daisy felt uneasy when she heard Edward's words.

Jonathan wasn't agitated by Edward's provocation. He exhibited a charismatic smile and then sneered. Like father, like son. Although he hadn't lived with Edward for a very long time, he understood what Edward was trying to say. He felt that Edward's reaction was too childish, and this made him sad. He realized that he had really cared little about him. Because it suddenly occurred to him that he was so unfamiliar to Edward's childish side.

"Dad, do you come back from the military base? Why do you come back so late today?" Justin interrupted in. He didn't like to be ignored by them. He pouted to express his discontentment.

"No, I ran into her. Hey, you don't look handsome when you are sulking." Edward didn't mind when Daisy left his arms. He knew she was shy, so he would not force her to do a public display of affection.

"Haha! Mom. How was your military exercise? Was the opponent the weirdo Uncle Kevin again?" Justin asked. He knew his mother's strength. As long as the opponent wasn't Kevin, it was highly likely that she would win. But if it was Kevin then it would be a different story altogether. Because Kevin was even more resourceful than the Commander. That was also why he went up in his career so smoothly. Of course, besides his good strength in military, resourcefulness and strategy were also required to climb up to such a high position.

"Justin, watch your words when you talk about others. You're not allowed to defame others. Although, he was indeed a weirdo this time by using really unusual strategies during the battle. And that caused me a great loss. But no matter what, you can't judge others." Thinking of how Kevin tricked her during the military exercise, Daisy inadvertently repeated Justin's words about Kevin. And that made everyone at the place flabbergasted. 'Isn't she scolding Justin? But why is she saying the same thing that Justin did?' They thought.

Haha! Honey, are you sure that you're giving a lesson to our son, not pampering him?" As soon as Edward realized her mistake, he couldn't help but laugh. He didn't expect that his aloof wife would have such an unexpected side when she was muddled. It seemed that her many hidden traits occasionally surfaced when the right time came to reveal them.

Hum... Well... I..." Daisy stammered at Edward's tease. Her pink face blushed, making her look more attractive. Thinking of what slipped from her mouth, she wished there had been a hole where she could bury herself.

"Haha! "Daisy, don't mind. I like your straightforward character. Don't be embarrassed, just say what you want to say. Take it easy." Cynthia was worried that Daisy would be very boring, she looked cold and stern. It surprised her that Daisy could be so amusing.

Jonathan had never looked at any other women in the eyes except for his wife. But after he heard Daisy's unwise words, he took a glance at Daisy. A feeling of admiration rose in him. 'She has the quality of a soldier, calm and magnanimous,' Jonathan thought.

While the mansion was full of joy and laughter, at another place, Kevin's heart was filled with helplessness. He couldn't find Leena. But when he saw that Duke seemed calm when he asked him about Leena, he became less worried. He was certain that Duke knew where Leena was. As to the reason why Duke didn't yell him, he figured it out by himself. It was because he didn't ask for his permission before getting married to Leena. Base on the fact that Duke loved his sister immensely, it was easy for Kevin to know Duke's real intention. It was no more than revenge on him.

Kevin came back to his flat, distressed. He felt tired. He slipped on the side of the bed and looked around mechanically. It was so quiet in his flat. And he suddenly felt uneasy about this silence. Although when Leena was here, they were busy with their own stuff, he could still feel her existence by her smell in the air. But now she was nowhere to be seen.

Kevin narrowed his eyes slightly. He found himself become more emotional recently. He stood up slowly and looked at her accessories on the dresser, he then realized that he really knew little about her. He didn't know that she was like a little girl who liked to display many beautiful and interesting things on the dresser.

Chapter 279: Chapter 279: I'll Make You Beg For Mercy Tonight (part one)

Kevin suddenly thought of something and hurried to the study to open his laptop. He remembered that he sent a friend request to Leena's QQ the other day. If she wouldn't answer his calls, maybe she would see his QQ message! Luckily, he memorized her QQ account and opened a new account to add her as friend. He hoped that she had confirmed his friend request while turning on his laptop. He didn't have a QQ account before; the only reason he signed up for it was because of Leena.

Leena had confirmed his request, and she was the only friend on his list. But she was offline. Kevin froze as he saw the grey profile picture. He couldn't reach her through here either. Where on earth had she gone? Maybe she went shopping, but then why was she bringing her laptop with her? And she should have been back at this hour of the night.

Kevin was puzzled. He sighed deeply, and thought no matter where she was, she must be somewhere safe. If anything happened to Leena, Duke would have punched him in his face the moment he saw him. However, given Duke's simple sarcastic words, he must know where Leena was. Kevin felt at ease when he thought of that. There was nothing he could do, he might as well wait for Leena to come back home. He knew although Leena was young and innocent, she was an independent girl with her own mind.

Daisy took a long hot bath after dinner; she was aching all over. The days of intense training had taken their toll. Also, she wanted to ponder Edward's parents' attitude towards her; she had no idea whether they liked her or not. Edward was the picture of insolence at dinner, poking at his father at every turn. But Jonathan didn't seem angry. He merely narrowed his eyes and gazed at his son with a ghost of smile on the corner of his lips.

Daisy realized that she had married into a family where every member seemed to have unique methods of communicating with each other, and she was completely dumbfounded by the new situation. Apart from Edward's rudeness to his father, Daisy was surprised to see how his father cared about his mother. Only then did Daisy finally realize why they were calm when Edward pulled her into his arms in front of them. It turned out that this kind of intimacy was nothing to them. Jonathan must love Cynthia deeply. He saw no one but his wife. His eyes followed her wherever she went, and everyone else in the room was invisible to him. It was difficult for Daisy to imagine that so strong and dominating a man like Jonathan would become so gentle in front of his wife until she saw it with her own eyes. Daisy believed they were madly in love with each other.

She smiled and shook her head, her face all rosy like fresh peaches because of the steam. She looked at herself in the mirror and changed into white pajamas. As soon as she emerged from the bathroom, someone grabbed her hand and pulled her forward. She was in his arms and kissing him before she even realized it. Edward's kiss was so passionate that she almost forgot to breathe.

Umm..." Daisy widened her watery eyes in surprise. Edward's handsome face was so close that her heart skipped a beat. She forgot about everything all of a sudden, including breathing.

"I told you, you need to breathe, " Edward whispered in her ear. Panting heavily, Daisy was out of breath.

"You caught me off-guard!" Daisy muttered, hitting his powerful chest in remorse. She always acted like a fool in front of him.

"I thought Colonel Ouyang would be capable of handling a sudden attack like this." Eyes fixed on Daisy, Edward wanted to keep her in his arms forever the moment he knew that she loved him.

"You mean like this?" Daisy kicked him before she finished speaking. While Edward howled in pain, she broke free from his grip and raised her eyebrows, smirking.

"Ow! Woman! You kicked me again? I swear I'll make you beg for mercy tonight!" Edward didn't see it coming. Daisy kicked him hard in the calf this time. Judging by the sharp pain, Edward knew Daisy was not as fragile as she looked.

"I thought Mr. Mu would be capable of handling a sudden attack like this." Daisy was smirking, with her eyes fixed on Edward and a naughty smile on her face.

"Great! You want to play games? You'll find that I'm a superb sportsman!" Edward narrowed his eyes, his lips curled into a dangerous smile. 'Very well, Daisy. Since you're the one started this, you'd better prepare yourself for what comes next.' Edward thought to himself.

"No, don't! Edward, I was only joking!" As soon as Daisy saw the look on Edward's face, she knew exactly what he was up to. 'I forgot! When he is annoyed he's a devil!' Daisy cried out in her mind, 'I bet he is figuring out how to tear me apart!'

"What? Quitting your own game? Isn't it too late? You've got me so turned on, " Edward said, slowly cornering Daisy, with a devilish smile on his face. He was the tiger, cornering his prey.

No, honey, please. Its all my fault. I shouldn't have kicked you. It worked every time to call Edward honey when Daisy had done something wrong. However, it didn't seem to work this time.

You mean, you plan to do more than just kick me? Edward stopped and watched her stagger backward. She had nowhere else to run.

Yes! I should have just knocked you out. It would have been easier, Daisy blurted out without thinking what kind of consequences her carelessness would bring. She enjoyed bickering with Edward. Although she was a powerful Colonel in the army, she was only an innocent little woman in front of Edward.
