

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 350 - Chapter 350: I Can Undress Myself (part three)

Chapter 350: Chapter 350: I Can Undress Myself (part three)

"Go ahead. I won't peep. But do you think there's any part of your body I haven't already seen?" Although Edward kept flirting with her, he turned around as she demanded. He knew Daisy was coy. If he pushed her too hard, she would really get angry with him. And Edward didn't plan to waste their night quarreling with her. He decided he'd better take a step back right now, so he could take things a step further after she finished her shower.

Daisy obviously didn't believe him. She wrapped herself with a sheet and hastily dashed toward the bathroom. Edward burst into snickers while hearing her hurried footsteps. 'Did she just say she didn't need my help? Didn't she notice that she didn't bring her pajamas in?' Edward beamed as he gazed at the closed door, 'Now, we'll just have to wait.'

He casually grabbed a towel to dry his wet hair, then he threw the towel on the floor. As he was about to turn, Edward suddenly remembered what he had promised Daisy. He stared at the towel for a while and sighed. He picked it up and placed it on the back of a nearby chair. Daisy was a soldier; she liked to see things in order, and she brought her habits into her daily life.

Edward turned around and saw the gorgeous and sexy dress Daisy wore that night. He could still recall how the other men drooled over his wife! He was so jealous that he really wanted to wrap Daisy up with his suit jacket to block other men's lustful gazes. Then he thought of the purpose of the party was to let the whole world know how beautiful and brilliant his wife was. No matter how jealous he got, he had to keep it to himself for the time being.

Daisy was definitely the focus of the whole party. She was the brightest diamond on the crown that outshone every woman present. She was stunning; she was Edward's wife, and she was a colonel! Edward believed that she would make the headlines tomorrow. Every newspaper and media outlet would be dying to write reports about her. Everyone would know who she was by then. Edward initially meant to sponsor the army base to back her up; but since some people didn't know she was Edward's wife and tried to mess with her, Edward had to do something else. Now he was sure no one would bully Daisy and get in the way of the promotion she deserved.

Edward knew Daisy was a decent and honorable soldier. She didn't like to get her career involved with his business; she'd rather fight for her own honors and medals. That was why Edward had put Rain in charge of the affairs relating to the army base. He wanted to do whatever he could to help Daisy without getting in her way. He wouldn't interfere in her job if that was what she wanted, but it didn't mean he would sit there and watch others bully his wife. They picked on Daisy because they thought she was just an ordinary female soldier without a strong background, and Edward intended to show them how wrong they were. Daisy wasn't just some woman; she had the whole of FX International Group to back her up.

As for the accusation of Daisy taking bribes, Edward didn't even worry. The party tonight would sink a lot of rumors. Any sensible person would understand that how ridiculous it would be for Daisy to dig her own grave by taking bribes. She was seen driving a luxurious Ferrari once, so what? It was her own car rather than a bribe, and it wouldn't match the wealth she had access to as Edward's wife.

While Edward was lost in thought, Daisy realized she had been trapped in an awkward situation. Edward was right; she really needed his help even after she thought she could take care of everything now that she got rid of the dress. She could either ask Edward to pass her the pajamas, or she could walk out with only a bath towel like Edward did. However, women were different from men! Daisy couldn't just wrap the towel around her waist, could she? But the towel was too short for her to cover her torso properly. She would be just as naked if she just wore a bath towel.

Daisy looked at herself in the mirror, her face as red as an apple. She made a funny face at the mirror and then took a deep breath to calm herself down. She discreetly pulled the door slightly open, and peeped from the crack, trying to find whether Edward was still in the bedroom. Daisy was mad at herself. She always acted like a fool in front of Edward, such as dashing into the bathroom without bringing her pajamas more than once. What happened to the decisive colonel she used to be?

"Honey, are you spying on some invisible enemy or trying to seduce me?" Although Edward was immersed in his thoughts, he kept an eye on the bathroom all the time. When he heard noise coming from the other side of the door, he strode forward and stopped in front of the door, waiting for Daisy to ask him to pass her the pajamas. But Edward hadn't expected that instead of asking him for help, Daisy would furtively check outside the door. She looked nothing like a colonel but only an innocent little woman right now.

"Ahh! How long have you been standing here?" Surprised to see Edward's eyes when she opened the door, Daisy froze and stammered. She should have just closed the door directly! When she realized that she was practically naked, she wanted to slam the door, but Edward wouldn't let her. He stuck his feet into the crack and pressed his body against the door. Daisy could only get away if she just slammed the door without thinking whether Edward would get hurt; but she couldn't do that.

"When you finished your bath and didn't come out. I figured out what you were about to do," Edward replied with his eyebrows raised. He could feel that Daisy was pushing against the door from behind. From his angle, he could only see Daisy's head. He wondered how sexy it must be behind the door where Daisy only wore a bath towel, or was even naked! Her curves were more appealing as she pushed hard and tried to close the door.

"Honey, just back off and pass me my pajamas, will you?" Daisy gave up on the hard way and tried to play cute. It worked every time when she called Edward 'honey' softly. Would Edward concede this time? Absolutely not! He was pissed when Daisy called another man by his first name on the party, even though that man was her younger brother. Daisy usually called Edward by his full name, and she only address him as honey when she needed something. Edward wouldn't surrender easily this time.

Remember, you said you didn't need my help. Did you forget already? I can't help wondering whether you were washing your body or your brain for the past half hour.

Edward answered slowly with a smirk as if he had no intention to fetch her pajamas. Daisy on the other hand, was anxious to death! She didn't wear anything and she didn't want Edward to see her like that. Meanwhile, she was afraid Edward would catch her off-guard and barge in. She had no choice but to press herself against the door, but she couldn't push it too hard because it might hurt Edward's feet. Looking up at the culprit who had put her into such a miserable situation, Daisy found his smirk really annoying and she wanted to kick him so badly.

Chapter 351: Chapter 351: Honey, Are You Ready

"When did I reject your help? Honey, you must have misheard me. You will help gather my clothes, won't you? Please." Daisy's girlish tone gave even herself goose bumps. It was hard for her to imagine how some women could spit out these corny words of coquetry. They must have been immune to them thanks to frequent practice. Yet not her. She still felt uncomfortable doing that.

"Daisy, wow. Are you denying what you just said? Are you also a liar in front of your soldiers?" Edward looked at her, eyes widened in surprise. Daisy was not who she had been before. She was foxier and more mischievous now, unlike the noble and serious army officer she used to be. Hopefully, she wouldn't lead other soldiers to play rogue like her.

"No. Because no soldier would get in my way like you do. They know I'd beat them up and punish them with 50k of cross-country running." Daisy would like to have Edward be her subordinate. This way she was able to slam the door, or give him a suplex after putting on her clothes and train him for the whole day, without worrying about the consequences. Then Edward would be too exhausted to do anything, let alone block her.

Edward responded with hearty laughter. Meanwhile, a hint of foxiness rose from his eyes. At Daisy's careless moment, he pushed the door and nudged into the room. Daisy was shocked. She immediately covered her private parts. Yet she still remained naked before Edward. So she rushed into his arms and embraced him tightly, this way Edward would see fewer parts of her naked body. Her abrupt hug caught Edward by surprise.

"Honey, even though I'm delicious, you should keep your cool. Huh." Edward soon shook it off, and resumed teasing her. 'Doesn't she know that she just sent herself, the prey, to me, the predator? She is all naked, pressing herself against me. No man could ever resist such temptation.' Edward pondered.

Daisy didn't realize what she had done until she felt the warmth of Edward's body. But she had done it anyway. She was too embarrassed to jump out of his arms now. She only wished to bury all of her into Edward's arms. She dare not speak another word as she felt Edward's erect member. She had no choice but to cling onto him.

Edward's Adam's apple rolled as his desire rose. Next step he slightly bent down, held Daisy up, and walked to the soft bed.

"What..." Finding herself suddenly off the floor, Daisy hugged Edward's neck with fright, her cheeks growing rosier. Her shocked eyes greeted Edward's affectionate look.

With an evil smile, Edward nestled her on the bed, then pressed onto her red lips. His move was wild and eager. His French kiss was affectionate and sensual.

"Ah..." Daisy groaned while frowning. She felt that all her air was sucked up by Edward. The wine aroma from his mouth was particularly enchanting, making her body soft as a noodle.

"Silly, keep breathing." Edward bit her lips romantically, then kissed her all the way down her collarbone. The fact that they were both naked saved him quite a lot of trouble. Soon his lips moved to her plump breasts.

Daisy rolled her eyes, but still gave up struggling and lay under his body willingly. She had to stop preaching gender equality to her soldiers. In terms of sex, there was no such thing as gender equality. Women were always at a disadvantage.

"Ah! Be gentle." Edward's nibble pulled Daisy out of her thoughts. Edward really liked nibbling during their lovemaking.

"Are you trying to challenge me? Huh? How can you zone out at this moment?" Then Edward began squeezing her firm boobs while nibbling her ear lobe. His move made Daisy quiver with pleasure. She looked at Edward with sensual eyes.

"I... I didn't zone out, " Daisy answered, her tone implying a lack of confidence. She relished his big hands drifting around her body. The waves of pleasure gradually built into a sea of euphoria. Soon she began reacting to his flirtation.

"Honey, you are so charming tonight." As eager as Edward was, he focused on the foreplay rather than just got in-and-out. He believed that if you truly loved a woman, you had to treat her like a queen on bed. Only in doing so would a woman's hidden passion and all her love unleash. That was exactly what he desired----Daisy's life-long love, not one-night pleasure.

"Just tonight? I wasn't charming before? Huh..." Daisy's mouth was filled with Edward's tongue again before she finished her words. He accelerated his moves. With a violent pull, he threw the towel wrapped on his waist aside. Then he shoved his member between her legs, making Daisy a bit afraid and want to retreat.

"Honey, are you ready?" Edward's forehead wore a film of sweat. He nuzzled against her nose and stared at her affectionately. The air smelled of lust and pleasure.

Daisy didn't answer but hugged his neck and pressed her lips onto his. Edward smiled tacitly, then pierced her softness. It was so tight that he grunted with exertion. He had slept with plenty of women, but only Daisy was the most wanted.

Daisy seldom hid her love for Edward in private. Maybe she had been a bit shy at the beginning, but now she had come out of her shell. She crossed his well-built waist with her legs, helping move him deeper. Her face turned crimson and luscious from the pleasure.

"Ah..." As Edward quickened his movements, Daisy couldn't help groaning. With love and satisfaction, she looked at him and wiped away the sweat on his forehead with her fair hands. She couldn't be happier. She was with him, her body and her heart. Like the other times before, she enjoyed their sexy time fully.

Honey... I love you." Daisy whispered beside his ear after Edward's final robust penetration. Her words made him grow more ecstatic.

Honey, I love you as well, more than any time." His tone was so seductive and mesmerizing that Daisy couldn't help moving with his thrusts to release her stored passion.

Maybe because of the alcohol, Edward was quite sentimental and enchanting tonight. He conquered Daisy completely. Even the Moon hanging on the sky now hid in the clouds coyly.

At the other corner of the city, Kevin looked helplessly at Leena. She was sound asleep, probably from jet lag. She was so tired that she fell asleep before he finished showering. Had he seen it coming, he would have let her shower first. Now he didn't know what to do.

"Leena, can you catch a shower first before you sleep?" Kevin sat on the bed sill and shook Leena gently, trying to wake her up. Yet what he got in return was just murmuring. That left Kevin with no other choice. With a long sigh, he stood up and began to help change her burden of the evening dress.

But he didn't realize the difficulty of his task until he set his hands on it. He hadn't had as many women as Edward had, so naturally he didn't know much about how to take off their clothes. He took off her clothes only to the waist after a long while of hustle. And that had used quite a lot of his energy. On the one hand, he had to fight with the tricky dress; on the other hand, he had to resist the temptation of her curvy figure. Indeed, it was no easy job.

Normally, Kevin's clumsy movements would have awakened Leena. Well, not tonight--- she drank too much alcohol to flee her bad mood. So she had no reaction, except some occasional frowns indicating that she was disrupted. She had no idea that Kevin was struggling with her evening gown.

"Alas! What a little trouble-maker." Kevin said gently. After a string of strenuous efforts, he finally changed her dress into comfortable pajamas. Changing her clothes was even more tiring than a long day of military training. He had planned to wake her up and let her shower. But he gave up the idea after seeing her sleeping like a log.

He caressed her smooth face with mixed feelings. He knew that he neglected her tonight. But she didn't complain about him, but defended him in front of Rain and Tom. Was it because she didn't love or care about him at all? Or was she just trying to play it cool? Anyway he felt that she was upset, or she wouldn't have gulped down so much alcohol tonight. He wondered, how he could make things better.

Chapter 352: Chapter 352: You Win (part one)

Kevin walked to the balcony and looked into the sky. His handsome face seemed concerned. He smiled with self-mockery and wondered, what had happened to him. He had told himself repeatedly that he should not hope for the love which didn't belong to him. So why was he still feeling sad when he saw their public display of affection?

He lit a cigarette. The peculiar smell of nicotine gagged him. He coughed lightly. The smell faded with the emission of smoke. He rarely smoked. Usually, he only smoked one or two cigarettes when he felt bored and lonely in the army base. He smoked tonight because his heart was overwhelmed.

He didn't deny the fact that he got married to Leena for selfish reasons. He wanted his father to give up on the idea of an arranged marriage, so he took advantage of Leena to reach his purpose. He used to consider such behavior as despicable. He was ashamed to admit that he had reduced to such an immoral level, just to be able to see Daisy regularly.

In fact, he didn't know why he was so persistent. He got used to watching the woman he loved and waiting. He got lost in his fantasies and didn't know what he really wanted. If he was a stubborn man who only wanted Daisy and who'd never consider another woman, why didn't he think about winning over Daisy?

Or was his feeling for Daisy some sort of spiritual sustenance that had accumulated over the years. Perhaps, it wasn't the deep love he had thought it to be.

Kevin never considered himself as a sentimental person. But such annoying thoughts kept coming to him recently; he couldn't escape them. His mind was deeply troubled by these complex thoughts. He had thought that Leena was from an ordinary family when she married him, and that she became superior by marrying a high-ranking official. He didn't expect that she was the daughter of the owner of Leng Group. In that instant, he felt guilty for marrying the princess-like Leena who was the apple of her family's eye. If it weren't for him, she would find a far better match. At least then she wouldn't have to live such a lonely and dull life.

Kevin had no complaints about Leena. On the contrary, she made him feel that he should look at her in a new light. He had assumed that such a noblewoman from an affluent family would be arrogant and overbearing. But her behavior and manner changed his prejudice towards the heirs of wealthy and influential families. Or perhaps, he only changed his prejudice against Leena.

Although sometimes she seemed slightly tipsy, she still looked lovely and adorable. Besides, she had unusual views on everything. She looked innocent, posing no threat to anyone. But she also had a sharp mind. This was all that Kevin knew about Leena as of now. He wasn't sure if he would change these views with time. But the future was still very distant, wasn't it?

He breathed out a swirl of cigarette smoke and nipped the cigarette in the ashtray. He looked at the black sky dotted with the bright stars one more time and silently turned back to enter the room. He inadvertently smiled while looking at Leena who was in sound sleep on the bed. .

Mornings at FX International Group were always busy, this was especially true today. Telephones in the office were constantly ringing, calls were flooding to confirm the authenticity of today's reports. The youngest female Colonel Daisy Ouyang turned out to be the wife of the CEO of FX International Group, and also the mother of their love child as per the newspapers and magazines. This big news became the blockbuster of the day. It stirred great commotion in every corner of S City. People marveled at this powerful alliance.

"Edward, you look horny so early in the morning. And your obscene smile is disgusting. Is it because you were not satisfied yesterday night and you want to proceed with your lewd fancy with the beautiful woman in the newspaper?" Rain ridiculed Edward while leaning against the door and smiling mischievously.

"Do you think that I'm like you, who has no one to love? Forget about those rubbish fancies, that's your thing." Edward put aside the newspaper he had been reading carefully for a while. The picture on the cover of the newspaper was an enlarged photo of Daisy.

"Oh, no! Don't say that. I don't fancy other women." Rain walked towards the table and picked up the newspaper with curiosity. When he saw the beautiful woman on the cover, he showed a understanding smile and teased, Huh! I was wondering who this woman might be. It's Daisy.

No wonder you were smiling so obscenely. I'm surprised to see that Daisy looks so fascinating even when she's not wearing her uniform."

Dish it out! What do you want to say? Don't blabber." Edward knew Rain's personality very well. If it weren't for something important, he would be slacking at his office instead of visiting Edward's office so early in the morning.

"Bingo. You're right. The Army Group called today." Rain paused intentionally and cunningly looked at Edward with raised eyebrows. He was wondering how much this topic would interest Edward.

"Oh! What did they say?" He always paid attention to any news concerning Daisy. Edward also knew that Rain was intentionally keeping him in suspense, he was inclined to fall into his trap.

Boss, don't you think that we have made a fortune this time?" Rain continued to talk in circles. Seeing Edward's keenness, he tried to torment him some more. Generally, Rain was the one on the receiving end of torture. Today he wanted to turn the tide and enjoy the pleasure of torturing Edward.

I'll give a minute to spit out the relevant information. Otherwise, get out of here immediately! Edward narrowed his eyes and coldly looked at Rain who was smiling smugly. Huh, how dare he play these childish games with me. Does he think that I'm weak and helpless today? Edward thought.

I know you're impatient. You know what, you're extremely mean to me, and you can't stand the happiness of others. You should know that while we have spent a fortune on the army project, we also gotten good returns. Rain was testing Edward's limits. Edward wanted to punch him after hearing his reply because he didn't say anything useful.

Chapter 353: Chapter 353: You Win (part two)

Edward frowned. It appeared that he needed to teach Rain a good lesson after this topic was finished. He was disappointed because Rain hadn't given him any important information yet.

"Have you heard it? The Army Group was planning to invite bids for the construction of a modernized information building and new residential buildings for soldiers and their families. But now they've given up the plan and handed over the case directly to the construction company of FX International Group." Enduring Edward's threatening looks, Rain finally spat out the key points. After Edward heard them, he really wanted to beat Rain to death. Because Rain had tormented him for so long, but the content was not what he wanted to hear. It was a total waste of time.

"You seem overjoyed by such a small project worthy of a small amount. Don't forget that the money we've financed them on the military equipment is several times larger than the money we will profit from this project." Edward stared at Rain. He regretted that he had chosen Rain to be the vice president of the company. He felt that Rain was just a sandwich short of a picnic. Especially after Annie left him abruptly.

"I knew you'd react like this. But what if I have more news? Would you still say that I'm deliberately casting a mist on your eyes?" Rain said with ease. He was determined to tease Edward this time. He was sure that Edward would stop staring at him with such a sullen look when he heard what he had to say.

More news? Does it have anything to do with Daisy's displacement?"

This topic instantly cheered up Edward. As this concerned Daisy, he suddenly became relaxed and everything seemed negotiable.

"Yes, exactly. They said they wouldn't record Daisy's matter into the file to show the appreciation for our support. And they specially asked her to take two days off to make up for everything she has suffered. What do you think? Are you satisfied now?" Rain showed a charming smile with his head shaking slightly. The royal blue ear studs sparkled beautifully with his movement, making him look all the more fascinating. If Edward hadn't mentioned Daisy's trouble to him yesterday night, he would have been surprised by the call this morning.

"That should be the case. I thought that they would continue to be stubborn about it. Have you found the person behind the plot?" Although the Army Commander had given his word to Edward yesterday, Edward wasn't able to relax before everything finally settled down. Now that he had heard the news, he felt relieved.

"No, I don't have a clue. Can you think of someone?" Rain didn't believe that Edward had no idea about who might have done it. It was too obvious. Rain considered that Edward probably lacked the evidence to prove his doubt.

"Yes! If she is responsible for everything that happened to Daisy, I think soon you'll be busy again." Edward sneered, 'Jessica, I hope you remember what I said to you earlier. Don't provoke Daisy, or even God won't be able to help you this time, ' Edward thought.

"Why is it me again? Can't you ask someone else to do it?" Rain got upset as soon as he heard Edward's words. Last time, Edward asked him to punish the Lin Group. He had sex with Annie after he got drunk. And now, Annie had disappeared. If this time Edward asked him to obliterate the Lin Group, he couldn't imagine what would happen.

"You know how to handle such things. You're the most suitable person to manage this. No one looks as idle as you do!" Edward ignored Rain's dramatic look. Speaking of social skills, Rain was no worse than Edward. It mostly depended on whether he was willing to deal with someone or not.

"What? Do I look idle? Boss, why don't you go to my office and look on my table how many pending plans that need to be finished? I think I won't be able to finish them by next month." 'Huh, Edward is indeed a heinous businessman. He knows how to use different ways to enslave me. I'm just a poor bread earner. I wish I had four hands. Otherwise, I won't finish all the work and the chances of taking a holiday are faint now. Then when can I find time to look for Annie?' Rain grumbled in his heart.

"This is all because you are so inefficient with your work. You should blame it on yourself." Edward didn't doubt what Rain had said about his workload because Edward gave him all the work. He did it intentionally so Rain wouldn't have time to think about Annie. Why search for someone who didn't want to be found, Edward thought.

It would be better for Rain to get busy with work and forget the things that troubled him. If Annie really loved him and didn't want to leave him, she would come back to Rain one day.

"Huh! You mean it's all my fault. Can you explain why the files which should be handled by you are sitting on my table?" Rain stared at Edward, feeling speechless. 'Edward is so shameless to say such words. Obviously, he transferred his work to me. And he is so brazen to put all the blame on me, ' Rain thought.

"The reason is simple. I rarely get a chance to go out with Daisy. You need to help me manage all the work when I'm out. Otherwise, why am I paying you such a high monthly salary?" Edward didn't have the slightest feeling of shame when he said this. Because in his eyes, the vice president was supposed to work for him passionately. No one else was more suitable for this job than Rain.

You Win, okay? I will wait to see your miserable face when Daisy gets angry with you. You're so cunning. I hope you screw up your date and get a trashing from Daisy. Rain cursed and turn around to leave, his face was flaming with fury. As soon as he opened the door, he bumped into Luke who was about to come inside.

Chapter 354: Chapter 354: You Used Me

"What the hell? Luke, sweetie, I know I'm handsome, but you can't just throw yourself at me so eagerly. I'm very reserved, " Rain said, touching his high nose which hurt like hell after having been crushed by Luke. Luke was not a small man, and it felt as if his body were made of iron.

"I'm not that horny yet. And don't call me sweetie." Luke moved quickly around Rain with a cool expression and walked in the CEO's office. Rain's affectation was totally ignored.

"Sweetie, what do you mean? Do you despise me? Am I not good enough for you?" Hearing Luke's words, Rain turned around to step into the room. His feelings were hurt. 'Unbelievable!' he thought. 'How could he indicate that an extremely handsome man like me was not good enough?'

"I don't despise you. I just don't like you, " Luke answered, looking at Rain without a hint of smile on his face.

"Come on! That's the same thing." Rain rolled his eyes and then realized that it was pointless to talk about like or dislike with Luke, because in Luke's world only Edward mattered, and nobody else concerned him. He would be stupid to continue the topic.

Edward was amused by Rain and Luke's banter. Rain was always talking, yet Luke was not much of a talker. It was funny when they were together.

"Mr. Mu, you've got to watch this video." If Luke disliked someone, he wouldn't even look at him. It was who he was. At this moment, no matter what Rain said, he just ignored him and then calmly put his phone in front of Edward.

"What is it?" Luke sounded serious. Edward looked at him, confused and nervous about what he was to see. Somehow, he sensed it was related to Daisy.

"Play it and you'll know." Luke sighed inwardly. Someone screwed up. He wondered how Edward would deal with this matter.

"Er, maybe I should excuse myself, " Rain asked cautiously. He stopped fooling around, sensing it was serious, "No, you don't have to,

Luke said simply. He didn't ignore Rain this time. He just didn't like him playing around. When it came to serious business, he could be easygoing.

Edward took a deep breath and pressed the 'play' button. After some rustling noise, a man and a woman were seen standing together. Since the woman was standing with her back against the camera in the dim light, it was uncertain who she was. But Edward had seen the man at the cocktail party the night before, the one who had been at the Commander's side the whole time, hard to ignore.

"Miss Lin, you used me. Colonel Ouyang was the wife of the CEO of FX International Group. Why did you deceive me into reporting Colonel Ouyang by telling me that you are the CEO's wife?" The man sounded furious. His face was full of anger.

"Hank, you knew all along that I was using you. What's more, you wouldn't have cooperated with me if you didn't have a problem with Daisy, right?" Edward was familiar with the woman's voice. His hands coiled into fists in anger. 'Jessica, it's you. I know you aren't as simple as you pretend to be. I'm impressed you found someone in the military to use so quickly.

I thought Daisy was suspended because her superiors thought she had taken a bribe. It turns out it was a conspiracy by these two. Jessica, you think you deserve to be my wife? Don't taint that title!

"Miss Lin, I wasn't your partner. I was used by you when I was unaware of the truth. I hope you can shut your mouth during the following investigations, or I will be very angry." Hank glared at Jessica with wide eyes, looking grim and vicious.

"Haha, Hank, do you really think you can get off scot free? Don't you forget that you took my check! Do you really think I don't know why you were willing to conspire against that bitch Daisy with me? If I'm not wrong, it's because her rank is higher than yours, isn't it?" On hearing this, Edward, Luke and Rain looked at each other. They never thought Hank was a good person. But they couldn't believe Hank had taken a bribe, because it was an especially severe crime for a serviceman. Didn't he know that?

"I'll return the check to you right now. We've never met. Remember that. Don't assume you know other people's thoughts. It's not good for you." Hank took out something out of his pocket and threw it at Jessica. Then he marched off. The video ended here. Edward's face was flushed with rage -- the scene angered Edward enormously.

"Mr. Mu, what do we do?" Luke took his phone back. He had recorded the video by accident. Hank and Jessica had been bold enough to talk about their dirty business inside Kate Hotel. Luke had put the entire hotel under surveillance for FX International Group's anniversary ceremony.

Rain, take action to wipe out Lin Group right now. Luke, find someone to keep an eye on Mrs. Ouyang. I'll find something against her." Edward squinted his eyes grimly. Since Hank and Jessica were trying everything to ruin his woman's life, he would mercilessly make their lives a living hell.

"Ah, so soon? I'm still taking a break from my last assignment." Rain thought it would be some time before he got a new workload. Edward had just mentioned it several minutes ago. In this case, he would be too busy to eat, let alone think about Annie.

"Don't you know you should strike while the iron is hot? Since Jessica's so eager to die, why don't I redeem her wish? I'll wait and see what dirty tricks she can play without Lin Group's protection, " Edward said, but he didn't know that Jessica could still stir things up even without Lin Group's backing.

"Boss, do you want it done fast or effectively?" Rain put his elbows on the desk and looked at Edward with his hands under his jaw. He hoped Edward could promise him some benefit for doing this task, because he would be exhausted from all this work. It had been awhile since he had a break.

"What's the difference?" Edward looked at Rain indifferently, sensing that he was up to something.

"If you want it done fast, you have to reduce the quantity of the files on my desk by half and if you want it done effectively, you have to give me time." Rain put forward his terms leisurely. To get what he wanted, he had to withstand the killer look his boss was casting at him. Otherwise, he would not have the slightest second of personal time left.

"I want both. But I won't reduce the quantity of the files on your desk at all. I want the result in three days. As to how to do it, that's your job." Obviously, Edward was a better game player than Rain. Exploiting Rain was his entertainment. Otherwise, how would he have time to accompany Daisy? She hardly ever had a vacation.

Edward's response was a heavy blow to Rain. He pressed his face against the desk. Instead of benefits, he got a pressing deadline. He felt desperate.

"What? Boss, you can't do this to me. I'll die from exhaustion. What about assigning Anna as my assistant?"

"You go ask Anna yourself. I have no problem with it if she agrees." Edward smiled mischievously. Anna had never engaged in major decisions-making and approvals, so she would only be able to help Rain with some simple files. Edward had intended to assign Aaron to assist Rain. Now that he asked for Anna, so be it. In this case, Aaron would be able to assist Edward with his work again and Edward would have more time for Daisy. Hearing Edward's words, Luke twitched his mouth violently and thought Edward couldn't be more evil, because even if Anna agreed to assist Rain, as a secretary to the CEO, she would be concerned with the CEO's office all the time and in return, she would have less time to help Rain, which meant she wouldn't be of much help at all.

"OK. then as of now, Anna's main task is to assist me, so she won't be your secretary, temporarily of course." Rain wasn't stupid. He had chosen Anna for a reason, which he'd like to keep secret for now.

"No problem. I'll find somebody else to replace her. Edward gave an evil smile. He had thought Rain was sloppy, but today he was impressed with how shrewd Rain really was.