

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 400 - Chapter 400: 100,000,001

Chapter 400: Chapter 400: 100,000,001

Edward said nothing and looked at her quietly. Finally, he sighed and embraced her. For a woman with a strong personality and identity like Daisy, he could do nothing about it.

"Is this important to you?" Edward murmured, keeping his eyes on the necklace that Daisy was looking at. He wondered what the necklace meant to Daisy.

"Yes. It belonged to my mother before. I have to get it back." Daisy had a determined look on her face. She had to get the necklace back at all costs.

"What? This was your mother's necklace? How did it end up at the auction?" Edward started to take the auction seriously, and his gaze becoming sharp.

"I don't know. It disappeared with my mother's death. I didn't expect to see it here. I've never thought I'd ever see it again."

Daisy's lips curled upward, but the smile didn't reach her eyes.

"Don't worry. I'm here." Since it was his mother-in-law's legacy, he would definitely get the necklace for Daisy. After all, it was the first time she asked him for something.

Well..." Daisy opened her mouth to thank him. But remembering Edward's anger, she swallowed back the words. When Edward said

I'm here, " Daisy was deeply touched. In many cases, the most touching words weren't "love you" or "together", but "I'm here."

"Ladies and gentlemen, we're now going to bid for a precious item from an imperial concubine in the Qing Dynasty. Look carefully, it has a high collection value that ordinary treasures do not compare with. It also has a sad but beautiful name, 'A Beauty's Tears of Blood.'"

The host deliberately paused to add suspense and arouse the audience's interest. Looking at the audience's excitement, the host continued,

This is the most precious item for the auction, so there's no need to mention how expensive it is. Its starting price will be much higher than the rest."

As soon as the host finished speaking, the guests immediately got excited. Everyone wanted to know how expensive the item was.

Alright, please calm down. Now, the hostess will show you the item." The host waved his hand, signalling for silence.

As the guzheng music slowly played, an extremely attractive hostess appeared onstage in an evening gown. The moment she came into view, everyone was fascinated by the necklace on her neck.

No words could be used to describe the beauty of the necklace. It was a string of bright tourmalines, with a blood-red transparent crystal in the shape of a teardrop at the bottom, which clung to the model's white skin like the tears of blood shed by a beauty. The blood-red jewel sparkled brightly like a beautiful sunset, giving the impression that your hand would be stained with blood if you touched it. It was so beautiful that it made you not able to take eyes off it and made you feel thrilled.

Illuminated by the lights, the sparkling teardrop crystal resembled flowing blood. The necklace was even more beautiful and striking in contrast to the model's white skin. The entire room collectively held their breaths, no one daring to make a sound. Everyone was captivated by the enchanting sight.

Seeing everyone's reaction, Daisy grasped Edward's sleeve tightly. She got anxious that the necklace would be purchased by someone else.

Frowning slightly, Edward took her hand quietly. He glanced at the audience with a wicked grin that was just as captivating as the necklace.

"All right, the auction will begin now. The starting price for the item is 10 million. Let's see who will get it." As soon as guzheng music stopped, the host's voice filled the room. What a high starting price!

20 million."

"25 million."

"27 million."

The temperature in the room rose, everyone eager to get the necklace. The price kept soaring as everyone made their bids on the rare treasure. Everyone wanted to know who would acquire the treasure in the end.

As the price continued to rise, Daisy started to get worried. She couldn't help but look at Edward, who looked relaxed throughout the whole process. "We're not bidding?"

"Don't worry. After everyone bids, we'll place a bid. It won't be too late." Edward gave her a reassuring smile, glancing at the bidders with a sneer in his eyes.

The price was already high, but people kept raising it. Either these guys were rich or they were coerced by their wives. Otherwise, why would they keep bidding? Perhaps they had made a lot of money from cooperating with the FX International Group. In that case, he would be happy to raise the price of the cooperation plan by one percent to see if they still had the extra money to purchase the luxury goods.

"The necklace is already very expensive. Why do they keep raising the price? This necklace is special to me, but it's just a luxury item to them."

Daisy got increasingly nervous when the price reached 80 million. She told Edward that she would pay him back for the necklace, but her savings were less than a million. Who knows how she would pay him back?

"People can be very stubborn with the things they can't get. It's been like that since ancient times, it can't be changed. That's human nature."

As Edward spoke, he quickly tapped on the screen with his fingers, sending a string of numbers that Daisy couldn't understand. His strange behavior puzzled Daisy.

"Look up." Edward smiled gently, gesturing to the screen above the host.

"What do you mean?" Daisy got even more confused. She had no idea what the numbers on the screen meant.

Edward chuckled. "The host will understand." That was one of the privileges of being in a private room, your bid would be sent out with a mere tap of your finger.

Ladies and gentlemen, the price has reached 100 million already. Mr. Mu said that no matter what price you give, he will add one dollar to it."

As soon as the host finished speaking, everyone began to talk. Everyone who knew the rules here turned their eyes to the room. It turned out that Mr. Mu wanted to buy the necklace too, that meant he would definitely get it in the end. But no one knew for whom Edward would spend so much money on the necklace.

One dollar?" Daisy didn't comment any further but rolled her eyes. How could he say that? People would be upset at his words. No matter what the final price would be, he would win the auction for a single extra dollar, while everyone missed the opportunity due to this. This man was really wicked.

"Yes! One dollar. Silly girl, this is the best way to win. No one would dare to raise the price once they see my bid."

Edward drummed his slender fingers on his thigh, wearing a mocking sneer on his face. He wanted to see who didn't want to continue cooperating with the FX International Group in the future.

"Why?" Although Daisy knew that they couldn't be seen from the outside, she still felt uncomfortable to be under everyone's attention.

"It's a secret business strategy. If you want to know, pay me for lessons. I'll consider teaching you." Edward repeated Daisy's earlier words from this morning, not caring about the commotion he had caused.

I don't want to know. I just want to get my mother's necklace back. If you can't do that, you're sleeping in the study tonight." Daisy smiled smugly. Since Edward wanted her to exercise the privileges of being his wife, she didn't mind taking advantage of them.

"If that's what you want, I don't mind." Edward frowned at the host. 'Why hasn't he started the bid? It's been a long time.'

"100, 000, 001, going once. Does anyone want to raise the price?" The host was also shocked by Edward's unconventional move. He wanted to pretend that he didn't understand what the numbers sent by him meant. That way, the price would continue to rise, and he could get more commission. Now because of that extra dollar, no one was interested in the necklace anymore.

You really aren't worried about how that's gonna make you look?" Despite her words, Daisy felt very happy. After all, she would get back her mother's necklace that had been missing for years. This would be the first time she would possess something that belonged to her mother. How could she remain calm?

"Don't underestimate the power of one dollar. Even a single dollar in bids may reverse the whole situation." As a business genius, Edward knew this very well. This was why he won most cases. After all, no one could compare to him in wisdom and wealth.

"100, 000, 001, going twice. Ladies and gentlemen, does anyone want to raise the bid?" As the host spoke, he knew that the price wouldn't go up anymore. But he still hoped that there would be one or two people daring to set themselves against FX International Group, so the price might increase.

100, 000, 001, going thrice. Sold! 'A Beauty's Tears of Blood' now belongs to Mr. Edward Mu of the FX International Group." After the host's announcement, Daisy finally got her mother's heirloom back.

Honey, thank you!" Daisy couldn't help kissing Edward before turning to look at the beautiful necklace with a bright smile. It was evident how happy she was.

"You look so happy." Edward gently pinched her nose, his eyes full of tenderness.

Yes! After removing her identity as a female officer and taking off her military uniform, Daisy was easily moved like any other woman.

Jessica's face turned pale at the result. She clenched her fist so hard that her nails dug into her skin. But she didn't feel any pain. This must be love. Why did Edward spend 100 million to please Daisy? Didn't he know how much that would upset her?

When Edward bought the "Soul of Tears" necklace for her that cost him 20 million, Jessica thought it proved Edward's love for her. But today, he spend 100 million on Daisy, making her realize how ridiculous her previous thoughts were and how fragile her pride was.

Chapter 401: Chapter 401: Suspicious Vehicles

One hundred million and one was a large sum of money to Daisy, but it was only a fraction to Edward. With an elegant stroke of his golden pen on the check, 'A Beauty's Tears of Blood' now belonged to Daisy.

As Daisy's slender fingers stroked the seemingly pulsing crystals of the necklace, she felt her mother's warmth. When her fingertips touched the bloody teardrop-shaped stone, she felt suffocated.

In Daisy's memory, her mother was a gentle beautiful woman with a delicate classical bearing that few modern women possessed. Eyes would follow her at the sight of her striking elegance. Daisy's heart trembled when she touched the sparkling stone. It felt as if she could feel her mother's tears and blood.

"What's wrong?" Seeing the melancholy on Daisy's face, Edward frowned and wondered what triggered her emotions.

This necklace used to belong to a royal family in the Qing Dynasty. In that case, my mother was the offspring of an aristocratic family. That's why she seemed so distinguished, "

Daisy replied offhandedly, without moving her eyes away from the necklace in her hands.

Then it sounds like I married a member of the royal family. My status seems to have been elevated. I'm related to an emperor now. You can't call me a sly businessman anymore."

Unable to see Daisy so sad, Edward made a joke every time she got upset to distract her.

Hey! You're haggling with me again. This is exactly why you're a sly businessman." Daisy laughed at Edward's quip, temporarily forgetting the painful memory about her mother.

"Let's get out of here. Time to go home, honey." Edward smiled affectionately. He didn't mind what she said, as long as she was happy. All businessmen had to be sly to succeed. Edward took Daisy's words as a compliment.

"Okay." Daisy carefully put the necklace back into the case before walking outside with Edward. Everyone around them cast envious looks at her when they passed by.

"Wait!" Jessica shouted behind them just as Edward and Daisy were about to enter the car.

"What can I do for you, Miss Lin?" Instead of the indifferent mask she usually wore, Daisy had a happy smile on her face. It seemed the necklace made her very happy. But in Jessica's eyes, Daisy's smile was mocking.

"Edward, the Lin Group's stocks keep dropping. Do you have anything to do with it?" Jessica ignored Daisy and fixed her eyes on Edward.

"Yes, I do," Edward said indifferently. Jessica was lucky that he hadn't gotten even with her yet. She was bold enough to come to Edward like this.

"Why?" Hearing Edward's response, Jessica staggered with shock. Reality was so cruel. Edward admitted it so easily, he didn't even care to deny it. Jessica was mortified, she felt like a clown in Daisy's presence.

"Think about what you did! Since you didn't take my warning seriously, prepare for the consequences!"

Edward retorted, ice flashing in his blue eyes. Jessica's last hope shattered.

"I... I don't know what you're talking about." Jessica averted her eyes nervously. What did Edward mean? Had he found out what she and Hank had done to Daisy? No. That was impossible. She had been so careful. Edward couldn't know. But something upset him. What was it?

"Hmph! You don't know? You'll find out soon." Edward smiled coldly. It wasn't time to alert his adversaries yet. Jessica would find out what she had done wrong after Edward dealt with Hank.

Daisy watched Edward and Jessica quietly. She didn't know what was going on between them, so she didn't engage in their conversation. But from Edward's ruthless words, she figured Jessica must've crossed the line. Otherwise, he wouldn't be so pissed.

"You... Do you have to destroy the Lin Group? What about me and the unborn baby?" Jessica thought her baby was her last weapon to change the situation. Even if Edward didn't care, the child was real.

"What about you? There's no connection between us. As for the baby, it has nothing to do with me. Luke, give her the medical examination report."

It was a mistake to try to fool Edward.

"Yes, Mr. Mu." Luke was waiting by the car. Edward had asked him to bring back the medical examination report from the hospital a couple of days ago, so he knew exactly which report Edward meant.

"Everything you want to know is in that report. Don't ever mention that your baby is mine again! Honey, let's go."

Edward gave Jessica a cold look and got into the car with Daisy. His indifference made Jessica's face deathly pale. What report? Did Edward have something against her? Jessica got flustered at the thought.

"Miss Lin, this is Mr. Mu's medical examination report. I hope you can stop disturbing Mr. and Mrs. Mu's life. They're very happy together, and that's not going to change."

Luke handed Jessica the report and left indifferently. His responsibility was to protect Edward. He wasn't interested in seeing Jessica's embarrassed reaction.

Jessica had an idea what the report might say. Looking at the folded piece of paper, she felt her heart sink. She was afraid her worries would come true.

She opened the paper with trembling hands and felt devastated after reading its contents.

No! This couldn't be true! How could Edward have had this surgery? If this was true, where did that bastard Justin come from? Was this a fake report that Edward fabricated to deceive her?

It had to be. Edward was trying to get rid of her this way so he could live his happy life. But Jessica wasn't stupid enough to believe him.

But if the report was true, then who was the father of her baby?

Scenes from a few months ago flashed into Jessica's mind.

Her thoughts stopped at an extremely vulgar scene. Jessica became light-headed and her body swayed. Had it happened that night? Jessica had no idea about the identity of that man because she had been too wasted to see his face.

The sapphire blue Maybach drove slowly on the street. Its mysterious color seemed even dreamier and more delicate under the street lights.

Edward bit his lip, indifference written all over his face. Through the rear-view mirror, his sharp eyes kept looking at the black BMW that was following them closely.

A classical ringtone filled the car, and Edward picked up his phone immediately.

"Yes. What's wrong?"

"Mr. Mu, we have company, " Luke said urgently in a cold voice.

"Yes, I've noticed, " Edward said, turning to Daisy who was still absorbed in the necklace.

"Mr. Mu, speed up first. I'll stall them, " Luke said coolly.

"No. We don't know how many they are. It could be dangerous if you deal with them alone. Call in reinforcements."

Edward took off the bluetooth earpiece and threw it aside.

"Is something wrong?" Daisy asked. She put the necklace away and looked up at Edward.

Yes, somebody's shadowing us. But we don't know who or how many they are yet." Edward winced in worry. He wouldn't be worried if he were alone in the car. But with Daisy sitting next to him, he couldn't help showing his anxiety. Even though he knew that Daisy was tough, he had to protect her.

There seems to be two cars, one following closely and the other at a near distance." Daisy twitched her mouth. She was able to catch every move through the rear-view mirror. She had to figure out their target. Was it Edward's life or the necklace?

Excellent observation. You deserve the title of the best female colonel in the city. But don't be a hero, safety first." Edward gazed at her affectionately.

"Don't worry. I don't want to die yet. Besides, these jerks are too green to take my life. If they want to kill me, they should wait a few more years." Daisy smiled in self-satisfaction, absolutely arrogant and overbearing. At that moment, she displayed the true qualities of a military hero.

"Don't let your guard down. They're cold-blooded. Here, take this." Edward handed Daisy a gun.

This is a USP pistol produced by the HK Company. It has excellent precision and controllable recoil, better than the Glock in terms of direction and structure. Each magazine has 12 bullets, not many, but it's very powerful and expensive. Where did you get it?"

Daisy listed the weapon's assets as she explored the exquisite handgun. Her strong suit was the rifle, which she used a lot in military school.

"Wow, impressive. I see you learned a lot in military school. Let's see your performance later." Edward gave Daisy the thumbs-up in appreciation.

Don't change the subject. Where did you get the gun?" Daisy rolled her eyes and fixed Edward a look.

"Do you think I'll carry a gun illegally? Relax. I have a permit. Edward smiled. The people following were just a piece of cake in his eyes. Because he'd been in this kind of situation every now and then, he'd gotten used to it. Obscure hooligans had stalked him in the past. Would they encounter big bosses this time? He was actually looking forward to facing them.

Meanwhile in the garrison headquarters of S City, the warden stood in front of the furious commander and Kevin. He kept his head bowed down, too frightened to look at either of them.

When did this happen? Why did you wait so long to report it? This is outrageous! The commander rarely got mad, but he was now burning with anger. His sharp eyes glanced back and forth between the warden and the chief of the Public Security Bureau.

It happened three days ago. We plan to catch them by ourselves, but we failed to track them and had to call in support.

The Chief answered timidly, his head kept low.

How did he break out? Kevin asked with knitted brows. He wasn't afraid that they couldn't find the escaped prisoner, but that he might take revenge on Daisy. After all, she was the reason the prisoner had been caught. With Daisy's recent appearance at the anniversary ceremony of the FX International Group, news about her was everywhere. She could easily become their target.

Chapter 402: Chapter 402: Sniper Rifle AS50 (part one)

"We were negligent. He intentionally went out looking for a fight, and was mauled by a group of gangsters. He was seriously injured by the beating, and later sent to the hospital for treatment. But he was secretly taken away by someone at the hospital."

The warden felt a shiver down his spine when he received Kevin's cold and ruthless stare. It seemed that Major General was more intimidating than the Commander, the warden thought.

"Obviously, he is a dangerous man, you should have known that, why weren't there any precautions to prevent his escape? Do you know how much effort we put into catching him?"

Kevin raised his eyebrows, the cold and intimidating stare swept over their faces, making them tremble.

"Sorry! This is our blunder. We will write a report for self-reflection." The Chief of Public Security immediately admitted their mistake. He was quite responsive now.

"Okay, it's not the right time to find out who is to blame. General Major, you'll handle this task from now on. You must catch them all this time."

The Commander was a veteran who had been in thousands of battles, he soon resumed his cool and quickly gave the orders.

"Yes, sir, I guarantee I will complete this mission, " Kevin said, saluting sharply.

"Okay, go then. Don't forget to notify Daisy about this situation and remind her to be prepared." The Commander's words echoed Kevin's thoughts precisely. Daisy's identity as a Colonel and her title as the wife of the CEO of FX International Group made her an obvious target of the criminal.

"I'll get going right now." As soon as he finished his words, he turned around to leave. When he saw the two officers standing there with their eyes looking at their toes, he paused and said, "You'd better pray that nothing bad happened, otherwise, besides the garrison headquarter, the FX International Group alone will skin you, and make you into shoes."

What Kevin said was not just a threat. Anyone who knew anything about Edward knew he could be very cruel and heartless when someone crossed the line. If anyone offended him, they were surely doomed.

At the mention of FX International Group, the two raised their heads and looked at Kevin doubtfully. They wondered how this case had anything to do with the FX International Group. But Kevin had no time to explain his reasons, he was eager to inform Daisy of the case and remind her to be cautious. The enemies she would face this time were not common gangsters, they were cunning and vicious arms dealers.

As soon as Kevin walked out the office, he took out his phone and quickly dialed Daisy's number. He listened carefully and waited Daisy to pick up the phone. But the phone rang and no one answered. This was unusual for Daisy. Because of her special occupation, she was supposed to answer the phone at any moment. What happened to her? Kevin wondered.

"Aren't you going to answer that?" Edward glanced at Daisy. She was busy looking behind them. The car behind them still seemed to be following their car. There was great concern in Edward's handsome face.

Change lanes, these guys are tricky, they are not easy to deal with." Daisy continued to analyze the situation, as if she hadn't heard Edward's question. But she still reached out to pick up the phone.

"Hello! This is Daisy, " Daisy answered politely. Her good bringing-up told her to remain calm and polite at any time, even in such a dangerous situation.

It's me, Kevin. The arms dealer broke out of jail. You'd better pay special attention and be careful, " Kevin said eagerly. He even spoke in a louder volume to make sure that Daisy could hear him clearly. It was important she heard every word.

"What? When did this happen?" Hearing this, Daisy immediately looked back and then turned to Edward, "Honey, lead them into the suburbs. Kevin said they might be the arms dealers."

"What happened? Have you already been spotted?" Tell me where you are. I'll take off immediately." Hearing what Daisy said to Edward over the phone, Kevin instantly became very nervous. He hurriedly quickened his steps and rushed to the base where the Falcon was staying. The special contingent had been exhaustively trained by Kevin and Daisy to cope with difficult tasks.

"We're heading to the national highway. We're going to lure them to the outskirts of the West Mountain area which is far enough from downtown to avoid any civilian casualties." Daisy's eyes darkened. 'Damn it! He was supposed to stay in jail. Why suddenly pop up here?' she thought.

"Okay. I'll be there soon with the Falcon detachment. Sit tight -- and be careful." Kevin hung up right way. He was very worried. Those people were not ones to mess around with.

Do you have a sniper rifle in the car?" Daisy put the phone aside and asked. If the followers were really arms dealers, the USP wouldn't work for them. So they must be equipped with more powerful weapons.

Yeah, I actually have one here. I watched you studying weapons the other day. You seemed to be very interested in the sniper rifles, so I asked Luke to get one for me. He put it in the car this afternoon. Lucky thing, huh?"

Arms dealers? Edward had never tangled with arms dealers before. He needed to let Luke know. He might need his help. At this thought, he immediately took up his phone and dialed.

Mr. Mu." Luke's cold voice immediately came through.

Luke, pay attention. They are arms dealers. You must be careful." Edward sped up and drove to the national highway, the direction Daisy had given to Kevin.

Okay, Mr. Mu, you be careful too. I've got my men on this. Luke frowned. Damn it. As nothing special happened recently, he didn't pay any special attention to safeguards. And some bodyguards were sent to watch the asshole Paul, so he didn't have any other bodyguards with them today. He didn't expect that they would encounter the arms dealer. But he remembered they had no connection with such people, why would they be after his boss? Luke wondered.

Okay. Edward looked at the black BMW coming up on them, he narrowed his dangerous eyes.

Luke, make way for them, don't intentionally block them, Daisy interrupted. She turned around to grab the Sniper Rifle Edward had mentioned.

Luke, Daisy said you need to make way for them. Although Edward didn't know Daisy's intentions, he passed the message on to Luke.

Chapter 403: Chapter 403: Sniper Rifle AS50 (part two)

"No, I can't. It's too dangerous. Let me handle them." Luke would never let Edward step directly in the path of danger.

"We'll be okay, just follow Mrs. Mu's instructions." Once Edward ordered something like that, Luke knew there was no room for negotiation.

"Okay, Mr. Mu. Should I notify Mr. Jonathan?" Luke pursed his lips. He knew his young master's temper. He had to follow orders, as much as he didn't want to.

"No. Kevin has a troop detachment heading our way." Edward remembered he hadn't mentioned Jonathan's secret identity to Daisy before. He thought it was not the right time for her to know about it now. So he decided to tell her later.

They were two kinds of action-oriented people in the world, and they were opposite sides of the coin. One was the shady figure from the underworld, another was the righteous army soldier. He couldn't imagine how they could get along if Jonathan's true identity was revealed.

"Okay." Luke slowed down. Since he knew the army would step in, he wasn't as nervous as before. But it was still a long way from the army base. Would they get here in time? Luke wondered.

"Sniper rifle AS50, 14.1 kg unloaded, magazine holds fifty 12.7 mm bullets, floating muzzle design, long range, fast ejection with little backlash, high rate of fire, high lethality, anti-materiel. Can penetrate armor and deal with tanks and armored vehicles. You do know how to get a girl the sweetest gift."

Daisy smiled charmingly. She felt excited whenever it came to the things that interested her. So she couldn't help blurting out more details about the sniper rifle.

"Of course. I'm Edward Mu. I can get all the nice things in the world." Edward was happy to accept the praise. He was easy to please. As long as Daisy gave him a little appreciation, he would feel like walking in the air.

"Pay attention. They're gaining on us. Don't give them the chance to touch our car." Daisy raised her head and looked at the byway which led to the rural area. She sneered and quickly assembled the rifle.

"Okay!" Edward smiled conceitedly and floored the pedal. The car whirred by like the wind, picking up the leaves and making them swirling down. They left that scene behind in a second. His woman was indeed extraordinary. She was beautiful as she pieced the rifle together, and she did it blindingly fast.

"When we hit a deserted area, I'll use the rifle to blow out their tires. Judging from their flashlights, they are speeding to keep up with us. Seems we've fallen into their trap, and they had this planned out. Apparently, they're using a lift kit, otherwise they wouldn't be able to follow so closely, "

Daisy analyzed calmly. She observed the black BMW which had nearly touched their car several times.

"Got it! You be careful.. Although our car is equipped with bullet-proof armor, they are arms dealers. We can't rule out the possibility that they have more advanced weapons." Edward also noticed the opponent's movement. He agreed with what Daisy had said. But he felt a little worried about Luke who was following behind. He might be affected by their plan.

"I know. So tell Luke to keep a certain distance from them to avoid being involved once their car loses control." The flashing lights of the car seemed hauntingly weird in the middle of the night, while Daisy still remained calm and showed her wisdom at such a critical moment. She was a well-trained soldier.

"Mr. Mu, what should I do? It is a trap. They have reinforcements. And our support team is still on the way." As soon as Edward picked up the phone, Luke spilled everything anxiously.

"Don't panic. Keep your distance. Daisy has this under control." As long as he was with the woman he loved most, he handled things with ease, no matter how dangerous the situation was.

"Okay, I'll bring up the rear." He knew the arms dealers would be targeting Edward's car. They showed no interest in Luke's vehicle, because they didn't try to keep him in check. So it was easy for Luke to keep his distance from them.

Speeding up. Be careful and evade." Daisy's face became stern as soon as she saw Edward finish the call. She opened the door of the car with her right hand and swiftly grabbed the USP pistol with her left hand. She pulled the bolt and unlocked the safety. She lowered her head and leaned out, holding the door of the car with her right hand for balance. At the same time, the gun in her hand was aimed at the closest car which followed them. She saw clearly that there were four people in the car, two in the front seats and another two in the backseat.

At this moment, Daisy's eyes flashed a sinister smile, she squeezed the trigger, and the shot fired. The high-energy bullet flew in the direction of the car behind them like lightning, trailing sparks. With the sound of the gunshot, the target car wobbled when the wheel was shot. She wasn't sure what was louder -- the pistol or the blown tire. The racing BMW immediately lost control and began to swing. With the screeching of tires breaking the silence of the dark night, the target car violently collided with the car that followed it. The cars crashed with the sound like roaring thunder, followed by the flames of the crash which lit up the dark sky. What a grand scene with the dazzling fire burning furiously and leaping into the sky.

But Daisy wasn't going to stop here. As soon as the arms dealers' cars lost control, a sneer climbed to the corner of her mouth, and a sinister smile crossed her face, this made her cool and beautiful face all the more fascinating. And she looked wildly arrogant and aggressive with that expression. She was a battle maiden, and she was in her element.

Chapter 404: Chapter 404: This Woman Is So Cool. I Like Her (part one)

"Nice shot. Be careful." Edward admired Daisy's boldness. He helped Daisy by paying close attention to what was going on behind their car.

"OK! Drive safely. They're firing back." Daisy squinted her eyes and aimed at one car behind them. Before the pursuers were able to squeeze their triggers, Daisy shot their car. Since Edward was driving too fast, Daisy missed the shot. "Clank", the bullet hit the steel hood of the car with a spark.

Daisy reacted quickly to her mistake. She turned around fast and sat in the car before she closed the door. She did it rapidly, unconcerned about the shot she missed. She was as cool as ice.

"Clank!" The pursuers took their shot. The bullet hit the door as soon as Daisy closed it. It all happened so fast that Edward's heart almost stopped. That was too close. If anything happened to her...

The brakes screeched as the pursuers' car stopped. With a massive sound of cars crashing into each other, Daisy was sure that the shot she had taken again hit the target.

Drift. Don't drive in a straight line, or they'll easily shoot our tires."

Coldness reflected in Daisy's eyes. She frowned as she saw the situation behind them through the rear-view mirror. There were many more cars than Daisy had expected. This was why Daisy and Edward found it hard to get rid of the pursuers.

"Yes, my love." Edward was confident in his driving skills. Even though he couldn't drive as good as Daisy did, he still drove so much better than most drivers.

"Oh no. Luke's surrounded by those thugs. Slow down. Let Luke keep up with us. Or tell him to change lanes at the next crossing. We need to keep him away from the gunfight. Since I'm the main target, the pursuers won't chase Luke."

Then Daisy rolled down the window. Without hesitation, she pulled the trigger at the person who kept shooting at them in a Passat. After a clear clank, the bullet went through the car window. The shot was true, and the driver of the Passat had a hole in his head. His brains and blood splattered the insides of the car. The man was killed on the spot.

The Passat lost control with its driver dead. It started drifting around like there was a drunk driver at the wheel. After seeing what had happened minutes ago, other cars didn't dare to get close to this obviously dangerous car, for fear that they would be hit by it and explode with it. They all drove past the Passat and accelerated to Edward's car before firing on it.

"Woman, be careful. Watch out for yourself." Edward was busy driving while dialing Luke's number and paying attention to Daisy at the same time. 'She is so arrogant. But she has every right to be that way. She is excellent at everything, apparently even marksmanship.' Edward thought to himself.

"I know. Don't worry about me. Look out for yourself." Daisy smiled confidently to Edward. Different from her usual expression, Daisy looked excited as she was experiencing something thrilling. The sparks in her eyes made her look so charming.

"Mr. Mu, what Mrs. Mu did was really awesome." Luke admired Daisy so much that he could bow to her in admiration. Edward was driving crazy fast, but she still managed to open the door and shot the pursuers with the heavy sniper rifle. Her shooting was so accurate that she hardly missed a single shot. This was something hard for Luke to achieve even in the daylight, but Daisy did it in the dark of night. For a moment, Luke thought he was watching a movie. He almost couldn't believe his eyes.

Yeah! She's perfect. Luke, you need to change lanes now. Don't follow us too closely. Wait for the rest of our people to catch up. Then we can fight these bastards from both sides." Edward looked proud when he heard Luke's compliment. 'Daisy is my wife. Of course she is cool.'

No, I can't do that. You'll make yourselves easy targets." Luke disagreed with Edward and Daisy's plan as he noticed the crack on his car window. It was made of bulletproof glass, but the window still slightly cracked when it was shot.

Luke, this is an order. They have surrounded your car. You are putting yourself in danger." Edward frowned and said in a low voice. He looked serious when he gave the order.

"This is nothing. I can easily get rid of them and keep up with you." Luke disobeyed Edward's order as he sped up the car and flashed his headlights to distract the enemies.

Whatever!" Edward sighed. Since the gunfight had turned fierce and bullets were being shot everywhere, it was hard to stop Luke. Edward could only respect Luke's choice. After all, Daisy offered two options for Luke. If Luke didn't want to change lanes, it was OK for him to keep up and fight together with them. Edward didn't mind either option.

"Shit! What the fuck do they drive so fast for? Are they seeking death?" This was not the first time that Daisy swore before Edward, but Edward was still shocked at what Daisy had spoken. 'Who says she's elegant? She is a bandit!'

Luke is keeping up with us." Edward said to Daisy. He noticed from the rear-view mirror that Luke was trying his best to avoid the gunshot and drive close to them.

"OK! I saw his car. I can help him get rid of the pursuers. Edward, Help me." Daisy exchanged a look with Edward. Edward knew what she wanted to do. He quickly spun the car around for Daisy to open the door. Daisy grabbed the door with her right hand to support her body and stuck her top half out of the car to shoot the cars chasing after Luke. "Blam! Blam!" After a few shots, Daisy successfully diverted the pursuers' attention from Luke to her.

Holy shit, this woman is so cool. I like her." In a Rolls-Royce Phantom that was chasing after Luke, the person who led and started the chase saw Daisy and drooled over her beauty. He began to fantasize how Daisy would look in bed with him.

Boss, well catch her and throw her into your bed. One of the minions knew that their boss was interested in the arrogant and skillful woman in the car in front of them. He quickly offered something to flatter the boss.

Well, then you'll have to try hard. That woman is like a wildcat. She can not be easily dealt with. The arms dealers was not old and even looked a little bit handsome. But the dirty smile on his face ruined his appearance and made him look terrible. He left the impression of a morally corrupt person.
