

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 500 - Chapter 500: Who Are You Calling Aunt (part one)

Chapter 500: Chapter 500: Who Are You Calling Aunt (part one)

Leena, don't forget who is running the business. Unless I intend to do so, do you think it's possible that I would let these negative reports appear on the newspaper? Don't underestimate me."

Edward smiled conceitedly. Did Leena really think that these ugly news were dug out by the paparazzi? Without his permission, they wouldn't have had the nerve to report any of these at all.

Yes, it seems so. Whoever upsets the FX International Group would pay for it with their life and career. No wonder Rain always claims that you're a vicious, greedy, and ruthless capitalist who always enslaves workers and watches them work themselves to the bone." Leena narrowed her eyes and pretended to look at him with disgust, as if Edward really worked his employees to death.

Leena, are you praising me? Or blaming me? Why do you sound so strange? Or do you really believe what Rain said about me? You know how Rain is, he likes to exaggerate things." Edward laid back against his seat like a lazy lion about to go out to hunt for prey. There was a gentle smile on his handsome face, resembling warm and hazy morning sunshine.

"Of course I'm praising you. But whom are we meeting with?" Leena was very clever, she quickly realized Edward's true intentions for inviting her out. If it hadn't been to ask her to meet with someone, he wouldn't have demanded her to dress like this for a simple meeting. Moreover, he put the antique necklace around her neck.

You'll find out when we arrive. Don't ask any questions when we get there and don't talk too much. Just follow my lead and do as I say." Edward was a fascinating man. Every movement he made looked graceful and dignified. Even when he reached out his hand to pinch Leena's cheeks, the charming smile he showed could take anyone's breath away.

Why are you treating me like a fool?" Leena gently waved his hand away. The more he spoke, the more she felt like she would need to act dumb later. She wasn't allowed to ask or say anything. Was she a fool in everyone else's eyes?

Haha! Yes, you're such a lovely fool." Edward smiled gently and continued to pinch her nose. It amused him when he occasionally teased Leena.

"Mr. Mu, we have arrived." Luke had been watching their exchange through the rear-view mirror. The scene looked very warm and harmonious. He didn't know much about Leena, but he knew how much Leena meant to Edward. Before Mrs. Mu, Leena was probably the first woman who Edward was willing to share his true feelings with. Even Edward's mother didn't have the chance to enjoy this privilege.

Okay. Leena, let's go." As soon as he spoke, Edward opened the door and got off the car first. Then he reached out his hand to gracefully help Leena out of the car. When Edward turned around and moved to walk into the restaurant, Leena stopped him.

Edward, wait a moment. I'll take off my coat." Leena took off the coat that Edward had asked her to wear. It was fine to wear it in the car, but she felt it was inappropriate to walk into the restaurant dressed like this.

Didn't you say that you feel cold? You can keep wearing the coat." Edward frowned. Although he thought that the coat might cover the necklace and prevent it from attracting attention, he felt that it was more important to protect Leena from cold.

Oh my god, don't you think I look awkward with this coat?" Leena felt annoyed and gently touched her forehead. As a fashion designer, the thing she despised the most was to see people ruin the value of every piece of clothing. It was impossible for her to compromise her aesthetic views. This would make her look very unprofessional.

I don't think so. You're a married woman, who would be interested in looking at you?" Despite Edward's harsh reply, he still took the coat from Leena's hand. The temperature in the car was cool, but now that they were standing under the sun, they felt very warm now.

"Huh! Do I look like a married woman? Can't you see that I look as young as a middle school student?" Leena refuted as she caught up with Edward's pace, her alluring red lips pouting. Edward's remark drove her crazy.

"Even if you compare yourself to a primary school student, you're still a married woman, it will never change." Like Duke, Edward couldn't understand Leena's sudden marriage either. So he occasionally brought it up to tease her.

Yes, I'm married. But what makes you think that I look like a married woman?" Leena lowered her head to examine her clothes. The dress was the latest style in fashion design. She thought it looked modern and stylish. But why would Edward speak as if she really looked distasteful?

You look like a married woman from head to toe." Edward glanced over the restaurant with his cold blue eyes. He came to a conclusion without even looking at Leena. They had arrived late, because most of the best seats were already taken. It would be optimal to carry out his plan in a good spot.

"Huh! You either have poor eyes or have a senile mind." Leena continued to argue with Edward, not noticing that they were attracting the attention of everyone in the restaurant. Edward was handsome and Leena was graceful, not to mention the gorgeous necklace that Leena wore on her neck. The patrons in the restaurant were so fascinated by the necklace that they couldn't take their eyes off it.

Let's find a table that will be easily noticed and sit down. Then we can take it easy and discuss this question." Edward led her to the table situated in the middle of the hall and near the entrance. Then he sat down with Leena on the same side, facing the entrance. The position put them in a good view for the public. Whenever customers entered, they would easily notice them.

Edward, do you think you're not striking enough? Why do you want us to sit here?" Leena drew back her neck. She regretted giving the coat back to Edward, because the glowing eyes boring into her from the crowd almost melted her. Their attention was focused on the sensitive spot under her neck. Although she wasn't that curvaceous and her breasts and hips weren't that sexy, she was a graceful lady with a slim and tall figure. They all gazed at general direction of her breasts. Even though Leena knew that they were intrigued with the necklace, she wasn't used to being under the spotlight like this.

This is exactly the effect I want. Just wait patiently. We'll watch a good show later. But before that, let's eat something. I'm afraid we won't feel like eating once the drama begins. Edward grinned playfully at her. On a regular occasion, he would have gone to a private box, instead of sitting out here and being watched like monkeys. But because they came here with a special purpose this time, he needed to keep a high profile.

Chapter 501: Chapter 501: Who Are You Calling Aunt (part two)

"Edward, why does it seem like I'm in the tiger's lair right now? Are you going to sell me here?" Leena wrinkled her nose, looking playful and lovely.

Yes, I had this idea earlier. Since you bring it up, I'll reconsider it now. I wonder if someone will offer a good price. I don't want to make a loss in doing business." Edward lifted the fragrant tea that the waiter had just served and took a sip, looking contemplative.

Never mind, forget it. I'm not angry. I really don't care about it. I'll go along with it as if I'm doing it for charity. I won't die for the sake of entertaining someone else anyway." Leena fiercely ate the snacks in front of her and bit them hard. She looked as if she were biting Edward's head instead of the snacks. Edward smiled gracefully at Leena's actions. There was deep fondness on his face. He occasionally glanced at the direction of the entrance with a carefree look on his face. Time passed by as they teased each other and enjoyed their delicious meal. They didn't look like they were waiting for someone. Instead, their intimate behavior made them look more like a couple in love. They caught the woman's attention as soon as she entered. Her eyes brightened at the sight. Then she grinned wickedly.

"Oh! Isn't it Mr. Mu? Wow! You have a different woman with you today. It wasn't long ago that you showed your love for Daisy in public. Things change so quickly. The true nature of men never changes." Yakira smirked. But as soon as she noticed the necklace, her smile froze and her face became pale.

Edward, it's you! What a coincidence to see you here! Where have you been lately? I haven't seen you around. I missed you so much!" Mary greeted with a flushed face. She didn't expect to see Edward here. The pleasant surprise excited her a lot. As soon as Mary finished talking, Leena couldn't hold back the urge to laugh and spit out the water she just drank.

"Oh! Please excuse my rudeness. You may continue." Leena's beautiful face turned red from choking on her drink. She was shocked by Mary's pretentious remarks and affected voice. She missed Edward? Who did she think she was? Had she looked in the mirror lately? Leena didn't find anything wrong with being a little pretentious and acting lovely. But this woman was too old to do that, and it was disgusting. No wonder Edward told her to eat something beforehand. It turned out he was right. How could Edward stomach such a disgusting woman? Wasn't he worried that he would throw up what he just ate?

"Be careful and drink slowly. Nobody is going to take away your drink." Edward ignored the newcomers and anxiously rubbed Leena's back with concern.

I know nobody will take it away. I just found something amusing, that's all." Leena took a sip of water and recovered from the small accident. She was taken aback by Mary's stunning remarks and choked on her drink. What an unlucky day.

Do you mind us sitting here?" Although Yakira was reluctant to sit with them at the same table, she was curious why the necklace would appear on Leena's neck. She clearly remembered giving it to Paul. Was it just a coincidence or was it possible that there was another similar necklace in existence?

Yes! Edward, all the other tables are occupied. We're acquaintances. How about sharing a table together?" Before Edward could reply, Mary helped herself and sat down. The suggestion was more of a statement than a request.

Whatever. We're finished eating our meal anyway, so we don't need to worry about losing our appetite at the sight of some unpleasant things." Edward sneered. He actually meant to let them sit down. But when he spoke, it sounded a little different.

Yakira frowned. If not for the necklace, she would have turned around and left at his words. But she really wanted to know where they got the necklace. She had no choice but to suppress her anger and sit down.

"Wow! What a beautiful necklace! But it doesn't seem to fit this young lady. The necklace has a luxurious and dignified look." Mary's compliment about the necklace was from the bottom of her heart. But remembering Edward's intimate actions with Leena, she got jealous and pouted. She tried to slander Leena's good temperament. She firmly believed that Leena was Edward's new girlfriend. Assuming that Leena did not come from a noble family because she looked very innocent, Mary insulted her without any scruples.

Oh! Aunt, I share the same view as you. I told Edward that my temperament is not suitable for such classic and graceful antique necklace. I don't know what's wrong with him today. He made me wear it and said that I look perfect with the necklace. Don't you think he was just bullshitting me?"

Leena smiled sweetly at Mary. She cleverly scorned Mary and blamed Edward in her response. She acted like the innocent girl that Mary thought to be, and pretended not to know anything.

Who are you calling aunt?" Mary was pissed off. She wondered where Edward had found this hateful woman. Leena indeed looked young, but she wasn't young enough to call Mary aunt! The only possibility was that Leena was playing a trick and pretending to be a weak pig luring the tiger to fall into a trap. Leena was not as innocent as she had thought. Otherwise, she wouldn't have implied that Mary was old.

Um... Sorry. Edward, did I say something wrong?" Leena stuck out her tongue and acted like an innocent child who made a mistake. In truth, she was very proud of herself. Mary dared to say that Leena's temperament was not fit for the necklace and even went as far as to say that Leena failed to show off the luxurious and dignified property of the jewelry. Although she found it to be true, it was really humiliating for her to have Mary say it in front of her face. According to Leena's personality, she would seize every chance to avenge herself. An eye for eye, a tooth for tooth. If she didn't upset Mary enough to make her explode today, she would be ashamed of herself.

For this question, it's better to confirm with Miss Ouyang herself. I'm not sure of her age. I don't know if it's more appropriate to call her big sister, or aunt." Edward smiled lightly. He knew it was impossible for Leena not to say anything. He decided to let nature take its course. There was nothing wrong with it. The process wasn't important, he only needed to reach his goals.

Edward, that's not fair. Why are you also mocking me? Mary acted coquettishly, looking at Edward's handsome face obsessively. Her obsession with Edward grew every time she saw him. She was more determined to win him over.

Chapter 502: Chapter 502: Making a Fool of Yourself (part one)

Leena burst into a fit of coughs. She couldn't help choking when she heard Mary's tone as she talked to Edward. She kept coughing and felt rather uncomfortable. She swore not to eat anything until Mary and Yarika left, including her favorite dessert that she had started enjoying just now.

Are you okay, Leena? Even if you lose your appetite from someone's way of speaking, you still need to make sure you don't hurt yourself." Edward was also extremely shocked by Mary's words and tone. But he kept his expression calm and didn't show any emotion on his face.

"I was just caught off guard. I promise I'll pay attention and not be so careless next time." As a matter of fact, Leena knew Yakira Mo. But she didn't know that she was Daisy's stepmother. As for Mary, she didn't know her at all.

Edward, who is she? Are you not going to introduce us?" Mary glared at Leena coldly. She was resentful that Edward and Leena were so close. But when she turned to face Edward, she revealed a sweet and gentle smile. Despite how much his words hurt her, she just couldn't help being attracted to him. She chose to ignore his taunt about her and smiled brightly.

Oh, yes! Mr. Mu, who is this pretty and elegant girl?" Yakira was a well-informed and shrewd woman. She wasn't as shallow as her young daughter who mistakenly thought that Leena was a girl of humble birth. Yakira immediately realized that Leena was born and raised in a prominent family at the first sight of her. Moreover, she confirmed that Leena wasn't a sophisticated girl for her innocent personality. Yarika could tell clearly that Leena was well-protected by her family for her to keep up her innocent act.

Mom, are you trying to embarrass Edward? This woman isn't pretty or elegant at all. Who knows where this bumpkin came from? She looks really tacky."

Mary pursed her lips for an instant. Yes, the dress that woman was wearing was the latest Chanel, but Edward must have bought it for her. Looking at her almost nude make-up, Mary further confirmed that there was no way she was born in a rich family. Nowadays, almost every rich girl from a prominent family would have elaborate make-up on a date. Only a vulgar woman like Daisy always appeared in public without any make-up. She had no idea about the basic social etiquette of using make-up at all.

Yes, I'm just a bumpkin. Don't even try and ask me who I am. A bumpkin doesn't deserve your attention." Leena didn't mind her scathing remarks at all. Instead, she smiled sweetly in response. Besides, actions speak louder than words. She wasn't stupid enough to forget her task today. She was supposed to work hard and act with Edward. As for irrelevant people and their remarks, she turned a deaf ear to them and didn't bother herself with them.

Mary, apologize to this lady right now! Behave yourself!" Yakira's eyes turned cold, giving Mary a look of bitter reproach. She was trying her best to gain some information, but her daughter kept dragging her heels.

Mom, why should I apologize to her? She's definitely a bumpkin! I didn't say anything wrong." Mary pouted and rolled her eyes. She couldn't figure out what's wrong with her mother. She was always on her side and used to readily agree with her in the past. Why was she changing her tune today? She kept going against her.

A bumpkin? Let me check. Oh! Yes, definitely a bumpkin," Edward replied as if he actually agreed with Mary. But he cast a cold sidelong glance at Yakira. The woman had been paying attention to the "A Beauty's Tears of Blood" necklace since the moment they arrived. Edward confirmed from her actions that she must be directly involved with the theft of the necklace.

Yes, you're right, Edward. We share the same view!" Mary was immediately delighted to hear Edward agree with her. She got it right! How could this old-fashioned woman be born in a prominent family? She didn't behave like a rich girl at all. There was no need for her mother to worry about anything. And she didn't need to apologize to this woman either. She would demean herself by doing so. Her mother was talking nonsense.

"Mrs. Ouyang, you seem to be quite interested in Leena's necklace. Have you seen it before?" Edward said with a wicked smile. He didn't want to talk to irrelevant people. It would be a waste of time. He turned a deaf ear to Mary who was full of herself.

"Oh, no! I just find it very beautiful, so I can't help looking at it. I wonder where Mr. Mu bought it from? It must be very expensive." Yakira shifted her eyes to avoid eye contact with Edward. The more she looked at it, the more she felt that it was the same necklace she had given to Paul. But why did Edward have it? Did Paul sell it for money? But that didn't make sense! She'd been sending him a large amount money every year. That would be enough for him to live a luxurious life abroad. He didn't need to sell the necklace to earn money for a comfortable life.

I bought it from a middle-aged man whose last name was Du. He said he just returned to the country and was in need of money, so he decided to sell his heirloom. I bought it from him when I met him. I also heard that it used to belong to some imperial concubine from the Qing dynasty, but I'm not sure if that's true or not."

Edward observed Yakira's reaction as he spoke. He bet that she had given the necklace to Paul Du. Otherwise, she wouldn't have turned white as soon as she saw it. The purpose of having Leena wear the necklace was to try and sound out Yakira with it. But after seeing her noticeable reaction, he decided to change his original plan and strike from the sidelines.

Who? A middle-aged man called Du?" Yakira immediately grew anxious. But sensing her improper reaction, she forced herself to calm down and pretended to cough. She looked away to avoid Edward's scrutinizing gaze.

Yes, a Du. Do you know him, Mrs. Ouyang?" The corners of Edward's mouth turned up slightly. He raised his eyebrows and looked at her intently. He was curious how Yakira would respond. Would she leave anxiously? Or would she stay here and act nonchalant? No matter how she responded, it didn't matter to Edward. He'd already gotten what he came here for.

Chapter 503: Chapter 503: Making a Fool of Yourself (part two)

"No, I don't know any Du." Had Paul returned to the country? Why was she completely unaware? Oh, god! How could he sell the necklace to Edward? What a devil! Did Daisy remember it? If she recognized it, she might look into it. That would cause a lot of trouble! Yakira hated Paul for not keeping his promise. He had promised her that he would never return to the country. But why did he break his word? Wasn't he afraid that people would find out what he had done to Daisy's mother?

Oh, you don't know him! I thought you knew each other from your reaction just now." Edward didn't expose her lie. He had decided to wait for her in the restaurant today only to see her reaction. He hadn't expected her to admit it so easily. He'd gotten what he wanted and didn't waste any more of his time.

"Are you making fun of me? How could I know some middle-aged Du? Excuse me, but we won't be able to stay any longer. Mary, let's go!"

Yarika stood up as soon as she finished talking. She had to confirm one thing as soon as possible. Did Paul Du come back? Or was the man Edward talked about another person who happened to have the same necklace? But this kind of coincidence was a million to one! Yakira got increasingly anxious at the thought.

But aren't we going to eat something? Why can't we stay a bit longer? We don't have anything to do now." Mary frowned. She didn't want to leave with Yakira at all. She stubbornly kept looking at Edward with her eager eyes. She didn't have many opportunities to see him. Now that she finally bumped into him here, she didn't want to leave at all.

"Just do as I say and leave with me! Don't stay here anymore. You won't die without this meal." Yakira felt helpless with her daughter's obsessive behavior. She had warned her many times before that she couldn't handle an excellent man such as Edward Mu. But her daughter kept turning a deaf ear to her words. Well, let her suffer by herself! Even as her mother, she couldn't stand to look at her embarrassing actions towards Edward.

Fine! I'll go with you. Why are you so angry? Bye, Edward. I'll talk to you next time." Mary thought Edward would at least pretend to ask her to stay. But Edward didn't look at her at all, let alone talk to her mother and urge her to stay.

"Hurry up. Stop making a fool of yourself!" Regarding Edward's arrogance, Yakira could do nothing but complain in her mind despite being angry with him. He was one of the most powerful people in the city. No matter how upset she was, she couldn't offend him in any way despite her immense anger. Besides, she had something more important to do now.

"Mom, what's wrong with you today? Why are you so moody? We came here for meal, why can't we stay any longer? You didn't answer any phone call." Mary pursed her lips. She was unhappy that Edward didn't want to talk to her. And now, even her mother was berating her like this. She got more and more upset. "

You can't keep acting like some shameless groupie! Didn't you notice that he didn't want to talk to you at all? Let alone stay with you! Stop thinking about him! There are so many good men in the world, Edward Mu is only one of them! Besides, he has a wife! Don't you know that you will be charged for a crime if you harm a soldier's marriage?"

Yakira paused for a moment. She turned around and rolled her eyes at Mary. She was a clever woman, why was her daughter such a fool? Edward acted and spoke so affectionately to Leena while he treated Mary so lowly. Was Mary blind?

There are definitely a lot of good men, but Edward is a special man. You don't understand because you've never loved someone from the bottom of your heart. You love no one but yourself! Why else would you keep 5 million for yourself in secret?"

Mary didn't care about harming a soldier's marriage at all She didn't care about anything as long as she could have the man of her dreams. She firmly believed that Edward would become hers as long as she didn't stop trying.

Smack! A distinct slap sounded loudly. Mary clutched her face with her hand, staring at Yakira with wide eyes. She couldn't believe that her mother had just slapped her.

Mary Ouyang, I don't care if other people consider me a selfish woman. But I never expected you to say such words to me. I've sacrificed so much for you in all these years. But what about you? What do you do to repay me? Now, you even consider a man who keeps dismissing you more important than your own mother! This really hurts my heart."

Yakira never wanted to hit her own daughter. But she couldn't help slapping Mary's face just now. If she hadn't gotten anxious because of Edward's words a few moments earlier, she wouldn't have hit Mary.

Don't make up some acceptable excuse for your selfishness. That's the way you want to live. I'm only following your lead. After all, like mother, like daughter. If you didn't divorce my father and insist on marrying Leo Ouyang, I wouldn't be a stepdaughter! And I wouldn't turn out to become such a selfish person either! Besides, Edward is not dismissive towards me. He has the same attitude towards all women."

Mary got slapped in the face. She had already been feeling inferior because of her miserable experience and now, her mother rubbing salt on her wounds. Because of this her tone got more and more agitated. She shouted so loudly that every passer-by looked at her with an odd expression on their face. But she didn't care about them. She also ignored how her might words hurt Yakira badly.

Then are you saying that I did a bad thing to you? Do you think that I wanted to take you with me to the Ouyang Family? Yakira's lips couldn't help trembling. She didn't mean what she said, but she got so angry at Mary that she spoke without thinking.

Chapter 504: Chapter 504: Are You In Love With Him (part one)

"See? I knew it! I know everything you have done serves a purpose. You've been using me in your own plans, even when you were driving Daisy away from the Ouyang Family, you used me to achieve your goal. No wonder Brian has been hostile to you the whole time. He must have learned about your malicious nature!" Said Mary with hatred, every word cold as ice. She hated it when Brian ignored her. If it weren't for Yakira, Brian would treat her as good as he did to Daisy. But now he was indifferent to Mary, but behaved lovingly to Daisy. The difference between them drove her crazy.

"How dare you! How can you talk to your own mother like this? Where are your manners?" Yakira was both ashamed and angered. She raised her hand and yelled at Mary, threatening to slap her again. Brian's indifference had wounded her deeply, thus she couldn't bear to hear Mary to mention that again. Why would a son treat his own mother as aloof as a stranger? And why would a daughter yell at her mother in disgust?

"What? Do you want to hit me again? Do it then! But don't you mention manners to me again, because you have none! If you knew what decency was, you wouldn't be Leo Ouyang's wife. And the CEO of Ouyang Foreign Trade's wife would be someone else." Eyes wide open, Mary glowered back at her mother. They glared at each other with hatred, as if their opponent was their mortal enemy. Mary always hated her mother for the original family she was born to, and even more for making her a stepdaughter of a successful entrepreneur. For that, the young ladies of wealthy families never thought much of her.

"Alright! Whatever! You're too young and stupid to know what is right and what is wrong. And you are too self-centered to heed my advice. Whatever I say or do, you would think it is an excuse. But just wait and see! One day...one day, you'll understand everything I've done is for your own good." That said, without looking at Mary, Yakira got in the car and drove away. Her daughter's every word had wounded her badly, making her heart cramp in pain. She wondered whether this was her retribution. Perhaps, because of her sins, she was punished by heaven. To win Leo's heart, she had framed Grace and cast Daisy away. And that was why she was doomed to be despised by her own children. Mary and Brian had never treated her as their mother, but an enemy.

Mary bit her lower lip as she watched her mother's car drive away. She never thought that her mother would heartlessly leave her behind. Her car was not there, thus she had to call a cab to get back. Though she always hated taxis, she had to endure it for the moment. Gathering her wits and emotions, Mary walked to the curbside, and hailed a taxi. For the first time ever she had a quarrel with her mother. But she didn't look deep inside herself and think of her own faults, but attributed the whole mess to Daisy. In her opinion, Daisy was the root cause of Brian's indifference to her and her mother's anger. She wondered why Daisy had all the good things she had yearned for?

Edward, what's going on here? Did they just fight with each other?" Having watched the whole drama, Leena giggled delightfully at the scene. When she smiled, she radiated a youthful charm of her age, shining like a peach blossom from a February garden.

"I think so. Anyway, let's go. I'll drive you home." Edward sneered disdainfully. He had no interest to settle the dispute between Yakira and Mary. Even if they were going to fight to the death, he would stand by and watch, if not help them gut each other. Thinking that through, he raised his head and looked up to the bright sky. The midday sun hung suspended in cloudless space, like a blazing disc of fire. Edward slightly frowned in the sweltering weather.

"No, thank you, Edward. I'll hang out here a little longer. You've just recovered from a gun shot wound. You should go back home and rest," said Leena. Since the newly-married passion faded away, the true nature of marriage had been revealed to her. Marrying a man didn't feel so good; not half as good as she had imagined it to be. For a time, she had always wanted some personal space, and her wishes came true. Since her marriage with Kevin, she had spent many nights waiting alone in the house for his return. She found that the house was so empty, and time passed so slowly when silence reigned over everything. She craved connection.

"No, I'm okay. If you don't want to go home, I can also hang out with you for a while. I have a lot of free time now, and can accompany you for even the whole day." Right now, Edward was no longer burdened by his heavy workload. Since he had plenty of time, he felt like hanging out with Leena and relaxing.

Oh, that's very kind of you, Edward! But I have to decline the honor. If I kept you out too late and exhausted you, Daisy would beat me up. You can just help me remove this necklace. I want to spend some time alone." Out of nowhere, Leena was overwhelmed by a feeling of loneliness. She didn't want to go back to her cold house, nor did she want the feeble Edward to accompany her. She just wanted to feel the lively atmosphere in the crowded place.

However, Edward resisted. "It doesn't matter. I always like a brisk walk. But let's remove that necklace. I don't want you to get robbed," he said. Edward sensed that there was something wrong with her. Or else, she could never be so depressed.

But you are never interested in going shopping with women, Edward. What's gotten into you? Normally, when the subject is brought up, I invite you all the time, and you just say no," said Leena with a smirk. She was happy to be hanging out with Edward. But she looked up to the sky and paused for a while, as if she was considering whether she liked the idea or not.

"I am not keen on shopping. But since I'm married to Daisy, I am used to it." Edward smiled fondly, as the topic reminded him of Daisy. Then he reached out and removed the necklace from Leena's neck. He missed the happy hours when Daisy and he were wandering on the snack street and eating, even if a lot of it was foreign to him. And he was lost in his thoughts as he was thinking of the three of them living happily together.

That's right. The conqueror is now conquered. Let's go and have fun then. To me, having a handsome guy as company is fun enough, however much fun we're going to have," Leena giggled. She shouldn't refuse him again. Thus she delightfully accepted his offer.

Mr. Mu, would you me to drive you home? aske Luke curiously, as he saw that Leena and Edward weren't walking back to the car.
