

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 570 - Chapter 570: I Will Pull The Trigger (part one)

Chapter 570: Chapter 570: I Will Pull The Trigger (part one)

"Daisy, we can talk this through. Let's put down the gun, okay? This is getting really dangerous." After all, Leo was a seasoned man, so he immediately reacted to this situation. He looked at Daisy with concern. His uncontrollable anger against Yakira turned into soothing tenderness for Daisy, but Daisy did not budge at all.

"Ha! Dangerous? So Mr. Ouyang does know what danger means in this world. Then how come it eluded you when you were having an affair before? How come you didn't see the danger when your acts were leading to my mother's death?"

Daisy instantly shifted her target to Leo. Although he wasn't the one who killed her mother, he was undeniably responsible. If he had ignored Yakira, no one could have had the chance to set him up. If he had been firm, then how could she have been able to exploit his weakness? So in the end, he was the person who needed to answer for his crime.

"I... So you know about it as well. Alright, I've never hoped to somehow exonerate myself. If you still consider my petty life worthy of anything, then kill me and allow me to use my own life to atone for the sin!" Leo closed his eyes, gravely saddened. He was wondering earlier why Daisy suddenly came over. It turned out she was here for revenge. If that was the case, then he had nothing to complain. After all, he owed her that much.

"Nonsense. Every injustice has its own perpetrator. Why would I take your life? Yakira, how long are you going to keep hiding? Do you think you can get out of this?" Right now, Daisy was acting extremely cavalier. She didn't even care to scoff at Leo's suggestion. Instead, she simply chided him unemotionally.

Daisy, calm down. I think we should sit down and talk about this." Brian was shielding Yakira with his back. He couldn't understand what everyone was talking about, or what was so serious that her parents had to pay with their lives. He was protecting Yakira from Daisy not because he loved and respected Yakira, but because he didn't want his dear sister to make such a mistake. Although he was not sure what mistake his mother did that could anger Daisy enough for her to commit murder. Given the circumstance, he still tried to make sure that no one got hurt.

Step away, Brian. Or are you going to lecture me as well? Do you want to protect that evil woman over me? And do you really think she's worthy of your protection?" Daisy squinted her eyes and stared at him with provocation. If he had to stand in front of that woman, then Daisy was fine to let a brother like this perish. Even though she might be a little hurt, it wouldn't be as painful as the agony she was enduring now.

"No, I just don't want you to do something that you'll regret later. So, excuse me, even if you have to treat me as a stranger, I will not step away no matter what happens today." Brian's eyes turned red. His bright and handsome face was occupied by the look of anguish. As a son, no matter how awful the parent was, he had to do his duty as a child. As a brother, no matter how much he loved Daisy, he had to make the decision and take up the responsibility like a man.

Yeah? It seems like you've made your choice. Then don't blame me for being blunt." As she spoke, Daisy quickly turned to her side and bent down, her high-knotted hair drafted a pretty curve. She easily slid past Brian from under his arm. Her all movements were clean, smooth, and cool as ever. It seemed that Daisy's tough words couldn't conceal her actual concern for Brian. She didn't intend to hurt him at all.

Ah! Daisy, what are you doing? Don't come close." If it were Yakira of the past, she would never grovel like this in front of Daisy. But in the face of a horrible gun, her usual imperiousness dissipated without a trace.

"Tsk! Yakira, you do feel afraid! I thought your heart was made of steel. It turns out you're still just flesh and blood! Then can you feel my mother's terror while she was facing her death? Do you know how helpless she was at that moment? No, you can't empathize, because you never have a heart. Otherwise how could you be so ruthless that you couldn't even spare a pregnant woman?"

The muzzle of the gun was stuck right in the middle of Yakira's forehead. Daisy looked down at her with cold disdain. This woman unflinchingly destroyed her mother's young life. This woman also brutalised the other life that never had the chance to face this world. And now she lived in a luxurious mansion with her conscience buried. She robbed everything that was supposed to be Daisy's, and then live her happy life in fine clothes and was served delicacies every day.

No, I didn't do that. Brian help me. Yakira stepped back in panic, but Daisy closely followed and kept the pressure up step by step. She was not giving Yakira any chance for escape.

You didn't do it? You really didn't? Daisy abruptly burst into laughter which seemed so imposing yet so tragic. One couldn't help but feel heartbroken at the scene.

Chapter 571: Chapter 571: I Will Pull the Trigger (part two)

"Do you think you can fool me so easily? Let's be clear, I am Daisy Ouyang, not Leo Ouyang." Daisy abruptly stopped laughing. She bent down and stared directly into Yakira's eyes. A starkly chilling atmosphere wildly encroached on the space around Yakira. She realized how terrifying and unrelenting the soldier before her was. Compared with Leo who just now tried to kill her, Daisy instilled in Yakira an intense fear of death.

"Daisy Ouyang, don't think I'll be afraid of you with a gun pointing to my head. Don't you forget that murder is against the law. Even though you are a colonel, you aren't above the law." Yakira was talking tough, but her trembling voice betrayed her pretense of fearlessness. As a result, her words sounded somewhat ridiculous.

"Against the law? Not exactly! You've killed someone too, right? Then why weren't you punished by the law? So the law is not omnipotent. So tell me, is it easier for me to simply shoot you here? Or should I send you to prison to spend the rest of your life?"

A dark intrigue arose in Daisy's eyes. She kept moving the gun gently against Yakira's forehead, challenging the limits of her mental capacity. Yakira was filled with horrid guesses of where she would be shot today. Meanwhile, Edward raced all the way to the Ouyangs' house. He saw the familiar car parked outside and was finally relieved that Daisy had arrived here safely. This was more important to him than anything. He was hoping that he got here in time, so he exited the car before even parking it properly. He darted through the open doors which were probably left that way because of Daisy's fury. The whole mess did buy Edward some time. Luckily, the Ouyangs' house was not tightly guarded as his own. Otherwise, he wouldn't be able to barge in so easily.

"Sister, please calm yourself down. Think about Justin. Think about Edward. Do you really want to leave them behind?" Brian was already covered in cold sweat at this moment, fearing that Daisy might lose control and allow the gun to go off. So he tried to get her back to her senses by bringing up the people she cared about the most.

"Their future will be fine even without me in it, but my mother's future had already been destroyed. If I don't seek justice for her, then who will pay back her pain?" Daisy closed her starry eyes in distress. In fact, she could never leave those two men behind. Deep in her heart, they were her coziest anchor, the only healing refuge that she would need if she was hurt. But her mother's undeserved death was too much for her to remain rational. She turned incredibly obsessed and committed, as if killing Yakira was the only thing on her mind. Daisy couldn't bear thinking about not getting rid of her.

"No, without you, our lives will be plunged into darkness. Knowing that, are you still going to abandon us? Is a woman like that really worth for you to let go of all of us who love you so deeply?" Edward hurried in, staring at her with the utmost conviction. Although it was already late autumn, he was still sweating a little bit, either because of the weather or because of his sincere concern for Daisy.

Edward, even you are forcing me to choose. Can't you see my pain? Why are you putting me in this dilemma?" Daisy screamed hysterically. She knew that he would catch up, but she didn't expect him to be so fast. But it was exactly his appearance that could disintegrate the defense she built around herself.

"What about my pain? Daisy, you can't be so selfish like this. Even if you don't feel sorry for me, be it, but what about Justin? Are you going to let him go through all the pain that you have felt before? Let me tell you, if you really dare to fire this shot, I swear I'm going to find a stepmother even more devious than Yakira for him. I will let him have a childhood much more miserable than yours. So you'd better weigh these two options."

Edward approached her step by step. On his beautifully chiseled face there was only worry. Through his eyes, he begged and pitied her. As long as there was a chance, he would never let her do something stupid. He would not want to live a life that didn't have Daisy in it.

"Edward, don't come forward. I'm really going to pull the trigger." Because of Edward's increasing proximity, Daisy suddenly grabbed Yakira and even more forcefully stuck her gun against her head.

She tried to deter Edward's incessant steps. Why couldn't he arrive just a little late? Daisy had driven the car as fast as possible, yet she still didn't buy herself enough time.

Don't be afraid. No matter how this ends, I will be there with you. Edward kept walking towards her without hesitation. It turned out that the most romantic line in world was not "I Love You" but be with you. No one could notice its moving power, but he dropped it at such a crucial moment. He truly loved her just as much as she could imagine. It was an earnest affection that would dwarf millions of simple "I Love You".

Chapter 572: Chapter 572: I Don't Want to Die (part one)

Daisy's lips trembled, but she didn't seem to have the slightest intention to release Yakira. She winked at Edward with her intelligent and artful eyes, indicating him not to force her to make a choice between Yakira and him. Because what she needed the most now was not his company, but his cooperation.

Daisy, keep your hands off my Mom. Is it because of the drink? You don't need to make a fuss about it and get everyone annoyed. As a soldier, you're being too mean to hold a grudge on such a trifling thing."

Mary narrowed her eyes and looked at Daisy with derision. The jealous feeling got the better of her, Mary forgot the terror she felt when the gun was pointed at her before. She only saw the affection in Edward's eyes when he looked at Daisy. This got her insanely jealous. Why did Edward only care for that bitch Daisy? Mary also crazily loved him, but he seemed to have completely ignored her.

"Shut up! Are you trying to make more trouble for yourself?" Brian stared at Mary. He was angry that Mary didn't realize how dangerous the situation was. She didn't do anything to diffuse the tension. On the contrary, she was fueling the flames. He really didn't know what was on her mind.

"Didn't you see? It's she who started all this. Why are you angry at me?" Mary said while raising her chin. She was fed up with the different attitude people showed to her and Daisy. She was like a hateful tumor in their eyes. On the other hand, Daisy didn't look wrong to them even when she held a gun and pointed it at anyone she wanted. Mary thought that she was only complaining about it. But why was Brian so angry at her? It was unfair. How could she be calm when she felt she was being ill treated?

"You all shut up!" Edward suddenly turned his head at them and shouted with fury. His eyes reflected intimidating coldness. He looked ferocious like the evil god Sura from Hell, making everyone in the house become silent in an instant. Even Daisy was frightened. She trembled at the sight of his horrible expression. She had never seen him look so cold and stern. He had always been noble and graceful in her eyes, and she was surprised to see him so aggressive and intimidating.

Colonel Ouyang? What about you? Are you going to wilfully do what you want?' Don't forget that you're a soldier, not a judge. You're a mother, not a killer. Have you forgotten all this? Look at the uniform you are wearing and look at me. I believe you are not a foolish woman."

If possible, Edward would rather shoot the gun for her. Then the whole thing would not be so torturing. But he knew he couldn't. Because if she lost him, her life would be worse than death. Therefore, they could enjoy their beautiful life only when both of them were alive and together.

I..." Daisy bit her lip and tipped him a wink furtively. Didn't he see that she was only making a show?

"Mrs. Ouyang, do you want her to shoot you or do you want to turn yourself in? I think you are very clear about the stake of the two choices." Edward smiled wryly in his heart. It seemed that Daisy was not only good at playing the gun but she was also good at acting. If he hadn't caught the hint in her eyes, he would have thought that she really had lost the cool and spirit of a soldier. He realized that he thought too much. It was impossible that such an intelligent and wise woman like Daisy would do such a stupid thing. Probably it was because the more he was concerned of her, the more he was confused.

"I will turn myself in. Mr. Mu, but you'd better take this crazy woman away. I don't want to die." Yakira's body trembled because of fear. She was a cunning woman, she would certainly choose the side that was to her advantage. If she was shot to death by Daisy, everything would be over for her. But if she turned herself in, probably she would have the chance to live. It happened many years ago, even if the judge wanted to declare her guilty, it would take some time to investigate the case and make the final verdict. As the saying went, "A living dog is better than a dead lion." She surely knew what was more important to her.

"Turn yourself in? Yakira, do you think it's so easy to solve everything? Do you really think that I don't know what's on your mind? I am telling you, no way. You're dead today." Seeing that Edward stopped forcing her to make decisions, she breathed a sigh of relief. But she still looked intimidating with her menacing face.

"But didn't Mr. Mu just say I have two choices? You can't eat your words." Yakira felt the silver lining that had just come to her went up in smoke at Daisy's cold voice. But she was now kidnapped by Daisy, so she didn't dare to show the slightest disrespect. She was worried that if Daisy got irritated by her, she might shoot her in the head. As the saying went, "The man who recognizes the facts of a situation is a paragon of men." She understood what it meant.

He said that to you, but that doesn't mean I agree to it," Daisy said. How could it be possible for her to not know Edward's concern? But it was impossible for her to stay put nonchalantly after she knew the truth. At least she needed to find someone to vent her anger on. And that person had to be Yakira. She would not let it end so easily.

Chapter 573: Chapter 573: I Don't Want to Die (part two)

She could not kill her, but she could at least frighten her. It was impossible that she would risk her whole life and career for such an unworthy woman. She was not that stupid. Although in the beginning, she really wanted to kill Yakira but as a soldier, she was clear what would come to her if she did so. No matter how painful and furious she felt in her heart, she tried her best to get through this.

Brian, call the police now, I don't want to die. I will confess to the police that I'm guilty." Yakira was so clever. What she said was only a tactic to gain some more time. When the alert was averted, she would tell the police that she was threatened by Daisy. In this case, she would overcome the fate of dying a miserable death.

"No need anymore. We're already here." While they were speaking, several policemen came in. One of them was special in his demeanor. He didn't seem like a common policeman.

"Ah! Sir! Help! This crazy woman is going to kill me!" Yakira was overjoyed at the sight of the chief of Public Security Bureau who took her away yesterday. 'Daisy, I will see how you end this drama today. Mr. Yi, the chief, has seen you kidnap me with the gun. I will accuse you of crime of intentional injury later,' Yakira thought.

Sorry, Colonel Ouyang, we arrived a little late. Please let us handle the suspect." Yakira was surprised to see that Mr. Yi completely ignored her. Moreover, he behaved respectfully towards Daisy. She was dumbfounded and didn't know what the situation was now.

"Thank you, Mr. Yi, you came here just in time. I'm so sorry to trouble you to come here." Daisy skillfully took back the gun. If she had known that she had to go through the trouble to call the chief here, she would not have let Yakira out this afternoon.

"You're welcome. It's our responsibility to catch the suspect." The chief of Public Security Bureau showed great respect to Daisy. He nodded at Edward as a greeting. Although he knew the relationship between Daisy and Edward, he didn't want to behave too enthusiastic to him in Daisy's presence. Colonel Ouyang was more powerful and aggressive in his eyes.

"Oh! Dear chief, you are mistaken, she is a criminal. Didn't you see that she was pointing a gun to me and threatened to kill me?" Yakira was confused why the whole thing had turned to the opposite side. She was the one who had been threatened, but how did she suddenly become the guilty one?

Colonel Ouyang is the criminal? You're joking. She was just preventing you from escaping by scaring you with the gun." He was lying through the teeth. This was how the situation went now. Besides Yakira, everyone here was completely taken aback by the sudden change of events. They had seen with their eyes that Daisy took the gun and threatened to kill Yakira. But why did she become the righteous one who helped the police catch the criminal?

Edward smiled gently while standing beside Daisy. He realized that Daisy was playing the tactic of a thief shouting "stop thief." It was sad that Daisy didn't tell him anything beforehand. He had been worried about her all this time and that was indeed a torturing process. But Daisy ingeniously carried out the whole plan all by herself. If it was not for the wink she intentionally shot towards him, he really wouldn't know how the show would end finally.

"No, Mr. Chief, this woman was trying to kill me. It's real. All the people here can testify for me. If you don't believe me, you can ask them." Yakira panicked. It was not like what happened yesterday. If she was taken away this time, she would be treated differently. So she was determined that in no way would she let the police take her back to the Police Office today.

"I didn't see anything. I only received a call from Colonel Ouyang to take a suspect away. As for what really happened, we will investigate it later. You can be rest assured. Justice stands behind the law, it's true to everyone, including criminals."

Although Mr. Yi had seen that Daisy pointed her gun at Yakira, as a clever man, he knew how to talk to his advantage. Daisy was a Colonel, it was not possible that she would do anything against the law. So he completely ignored Yakira's accusation.

Say something for me! Brian, tell the police what happened. It was really Daisy who threatened to kill me with her gun. Yakira looked at her family for help. But no one pitied her or said anything in her favour. How poor she was as the hostess of the house.

Can you tell me what really happened with all this? Dad you know everything, right? Brian closed his eyes, trying to pull himself together. He was completely confused with the scene before his eyes. He didn't know what unforgivable crime his mother had committed, that it had made such a scene and even invited the police.

Yakira, do you want me to state what you did one by one? Leo narrowed his eyes and looked at Yakira with coldness. In fact, he didn't want Brian to know what a vicious woman his mother was. He didn't expect that Daisy would suddenly appear and create such a frightening scene. He had no reason to hide it anymore.

Chapter 574: Chapter 574: Frustrated Daisy (part one)

"OK, fine. No need to do that. Police, I'll go with you." Yakira gave Edward an angry look. It was definitely all his fault to push her in such a bad situation. Why did he have to bother himself with such matters? Why did he have to investigate the things that happened 20 years ago? What did he gain out of all this? Could the dead come back to life by doing so?

You two, come and take her back to the police station. Take note to put her through a thorough interrogation." Mr Yi, the chief of police, commanded this to the policemen beside him. It was improper for them to get involved in that kind of family affairs.

Dad! Help Mom, please, help Mom! It was Daisy who rushed into our house armed with a gun. How could we let them take mom to the police station without any clear reason?" Mary helplessly pulled Leo's sleeves and murmured to him. Her mother was her only shelter in this family. It was certain that if Yakira really had anything to do with some unknown crime, Mary would never be able to live the luxurious life as a rich man's daughter. She even could not stay here comfortably.

No one has wronged her in this, She always knows what she has done before. It is all her own fault. And she deserves it. Speaking of which, she must thank the police for taking her away from here. Otherwise, I am not sure what I will do to her in the future." Leo was reluctant to let Mary hold him tightly. As things had come to a point like this today, the situation was not something he wanted to see. But this was the consequence of her own evils that she had committed in the past. She had to swallow what she had reaped. No one would pay for her wrong doing.

As soon as Edward saw Daisy handing Yakira over to the hands of the police, he immediately stepped forward and held her tightly in his arms. Irrespective of what she just did was acting or real, he was frightened by her irrational behavior all this while. Hence he wanted to comfort Daisy and himself.

"I am sorry, dear." He heard Daisy gently murmur in his ears. Daisy knew what she had done. And to some extent, it was just too extreme. When she was on the way to Yakira's place, she really wanted to shoot Yakira and get rid of her immediately. But she successfully calmed herself down just few minutes before arrival. Moreover, as Edward said, she was a soldier, not a murderer. She pacified after making a call to Chief Yi with a car phone. Daisy explained him all that was going on, and let him come and arrest Yakira formally. However, she was still not willing to let her go so easily and wanted to do something to sooth her anger. Hence she decided to pull out this act.

"Never, never say sorry to me, honey. Your safety is the greatest consolation to me. I don't need anything else." After a deep and affectionate kiss on her forehead, Edward firmly hugged her, with both his hands holding onto her waist. He was still consumed with fear and was afraid that she might just disappear in thin air any second.

Daisy, What kind of hatred do you have for my mother? Why do you want to send her to the police station again and again? What the hell is going on?" Mary suddenly ran up to Daisy and shouted. She wanted to angrily pull Daisy from Edward's arms.

But this was in vain. Edward quickly turn around to protect Daisy and keep her safe in his arms.

I think you can go up to your mother and ask her what happened. Maybe she will be willing to tell you everything. And for you, Mary Ouyang, do not challenge me and test my patience again and again. No one will tolerate your unreasonable conducts forever." Daisy struggled and came off the embrace of Edward, looking askance at her. She didn't get the chance to settle things with Mary on what she did yesterday. 'She really has got no shame! How dare she come up to me and question me?' Daisy thought.

"Colonel Ouyang, Mr. Mu, it is almost time for us to go back to the office. We shall leave now." Chief Yi coughed a little and said. He had long wanted to leave. However, he hesitated to disturb the intimacy between the two of them. Now that the two of them temporary separated from each other, he finally got a chance to say it out.

"Fine, Let us go out with you! It is time for us to go back too." Daisy walked out first after saying that. Everything in this house was so fascinating for her, for they reminded her of that period of happy times when her mother was still alive and lived with her in this house. However, what's gone was gone, and it was no longer possible to restore it back. In that case, why should she be reluctant to leave?

"Daisy, wait! Let's talk for a while!" Leo chased forward, trying to stop her.

"Do you think it is still necessary to have a talk between us? Mr. Ouyang, do you still remember how my mother died? Tell me, what have you done in all these years? Tonight I didn't come after you but it was not because you are my father. Instead, it was because you were the only man my mother loved. I wouldn't give you a chance to make up for what you have done. I am just feeling sorry for my mom. She would feel sad if I did anything bad to you. I hope you can see that I spare you only for my mother's sake."

Daisy said, with her footsteps stagnating a bit. However, all this while, she did not look at Leo, even once. She no longer intended to call him her father. Moreover, she did not even wish to have a relationship with him. If they were not related by blood, she wouldn't mind beating him up. But she knew she could not do that. Because her moral philosophy and professional ethics did not allow her to take such a step. Even if she had so much resentment and anger for him, she could only hold back it to the bottom of her heart.

I know that you hate me now, but I still have the audacity to hope that you can consider talking to me, for the sake of all the love that I gave you while you were little. Leo said imploringly, with his mouth twitching slightly. His senile face looked much older.

What? How dare he say that? If you didn't mention this to me, I might still have a bit respect for you. But how could you think that you can still have any relation with me, after all that happened? Never say such things in the future? It is absolutely impossible for me to forget those things and forgive you. Daisy replied coldly, without filtering her words. She did not give any chance to Leo to speak further and walked out of the house quickly.