

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 926 - Chapter 925: Jessica (part two)

Chapter 926: Chapter 925: Jessica (part two)

"Stop lecturing me. Don't tell me that you still love Edward." Jessica glowered at the woman. She clearly knew what her cousin was thinking of.

Jessica, how'd you know that?" asked Coco. She was awed by how sharp and smart her cousin could be. Coco had been hiding her interest in Edward and thought that she'd done so well. However, her cousin's remarks suggested otherwise.

Well, hell. You can't hide any secret from me." Jessica smiled coldly. She didn't bother to tear the mask off Coco's face because she never thought of Coco as a threat against her for Edward's love. It was different now though. Everything had changed and she wouldn't pretend to be ignorant about Coco's affection for Edward, the hideous bastard.

"Why did you pretend to know nothing about this before?" asked Coco in disbelief and embarrassment. It was difficult for her to accept this. Had she been fooled, played, and used ruthlessly by Jessica all along? Did Jessica feel good as she watched her pretend and act as stupidly and naively as a kid? Jessica had been with Edward for a long long time before Daisy came between them. Thus, she had the right to laugh at any woman who tried to woo Edward.

"Could we talk peacefully and calmly if I had exposed your hilarious love for my lover? Could you still want to help me out of my troubles unconditionally if I had laughed at your foolishness? We would have hated each other already." Jessica stared at her cousin disdainfully and thought that Coco was nothing but an incurable romantic and an old fool.

"Even so, you couldn't pretend to be totally fine with this and think otherwise. Did you feel a sense of accomplishment by making a fool out of me this way?" It was a sudden turn. The two cousins who appeared to love each other just a few moments ago instantly turned hostile as they accused one another.

"I have never thought about that. If you really need to blame me for everything that ever occurred to you, then please feel free to do so. But, do you really think it's necessary? Don't forget that Edward doesn't belong to you or me. His wife is that bitch and slut, Daisy." Jessica emphasized Daisy's name. She always regarded Daisy as the root of all the disasters that happened to her.

"I always know that he won't love me. But you're the one in the dark, hoping against hope that you'll win his heart back one day. Don't be stubborn, Cousin. It's time for you to give up on him and move on. Try living a good life without any illusion. What benefit will you get from your revenge? Your father wouldn't come back to life. Would Edward choose you as his wife rather than Daisy? Don't be silly. None of these would happen." Coco stared at her cousin emotionally as she tried her best to change Jessica's false perceptions about love, future, and all else. She couldn't live the type of life she had if they went against Edward any longer. She couldn't take the agony and terror anymore!

"I will never give up on anything. Quit telling me bullshits. Now, please take me to my mother." Jessica knew that she would fight a losing battle if she carried on with that conversation. Therefore, she decided to drop the topic. It had been a long time but nevertheless, the scars of her embarrassment and experiences remained. On top of that, it was also a shame how she just couldn't forget about the charming and special Edward.

"Have you ever considered the consequences? Have you ever thought about what will happen to your mom when you get killed by Edward? Will your mother have to lose her beloved daughter after the death of her husband, and experience another disaster? Think about those pains she'll suffer because of your foolishness and stubbornness. It's unfair to her. Plus, can you guarantee that Edward won't try to destroy my family's company and threaten the safety of my family just to vent his grudges?" Coco didn't want her parents to experience what Jessica's parents had undergone. It was a miracle that Edward had shown mercy to her because he just ruined her acting career. Had he gotten worse, he could have just gone as far as destroying their family's company and threatening the safety of her parents. The fact that he didn't was more than enough to make her feel lucky.

I see. Are you afraid that I will get your Xue family into trouble?" said Jessica. Jessica scowled at Coco in pure rage. She wouldn't even mind breaking their relationship off.

"I didn't say that. But as you know, my parents are old and are too fragile to suffer from any unexpected tragedy. So, please reconsider your plan for the sake of yourself and my family. They're also your family. Besides, there's never an end to taking revenge. Coco sympathized with her cousin but then, she was also worried about her parents. The best that she could do was to talk some sense to Jessica and hope for her to change her mind.

"Don't worry. I'm the only one who will accept the consequences of my actions, for bad for good. You and your family will not be involved. If you don't trust me, I'm leaving here with my mom and she will have to stay in the mental ward. That will save you from a lot of dilemmas, right?" Jessica laughed scornfully. She had thought that Coco's house was her only shelter. Clearly, she was terribly wrong. All her efforts had come to zero. All people had chosen to betray her. Now she got nobody to watch her back. That was just both pathetic and desperate.

"I can't do anything for you anymore if that's how you think of me. I will not allow you to leave Auntie in a mental ward. I talk with you in this way because I need you to think carefully and calmly. I have never intended to break away from you or your mom. We're still family. Do you understand?" Coco frowned. She still loved Edward but then, she also knew that Edward felt nothing for her. Therefore, she decided to take no action and start to forget him. Most times you just couldn't own the man you loved.

"I'm sorry. I was being emotional and unreasonable," answered Jessica apologetically. Jessica also understood that a strange and new environment would harm her mom's health further. However, the way her cousin strongly reprimanded her had embarrassed her. So, to save her face, Jessica said such ungrateful and emotional remarks which she had regretted almost as instantly as she said them.

Chapter 927: Chapter 926: A Deal Offered by Jessica (part one)

"Well, suit yourself! I hope you will not regret it." Coco took a look at her with a thoughtful expression. Hadn't she already claimed that she wouldn't be obsessed with Edward Mu anymore? Well, that wasn't how she saw it. Jessica's action seemed to be the complete opposite of what she claimed. She even seemed to drift deeper and deeper into her obsession with Edward. Jessica's eyes dimmed slightly. She'd already been in such a terrible situation. Was there still any way out for her? She'd already lost the most precious thing a woman could possess. What else was there to care about? It was already hopeless for her.

"Do you think there is still any chance for me to repent? I've already done so many unforgivable things. I came this far. There's no turning back anymore. I don't have the options for that." Sadness was on Jessica's voice. She touched her face slightly and smiled. The face she wore wasn't her original face no matter how beautiful it was. It was the same with her life that went off-tracked from her original plans. She could have lived a better life.

"But you may end up even more miserable than that if you continue with your plan. Is that what you really want? Jessica, don't be so stubborn. I'm worried about you." Emptiness was in Coco's eyes as she shifted her stare from her cousin. She wondered about what went wrong. No one was wrong or should be blamed if she would consider how all their emotions got tangled up. It would only leave love to be blamed. Loving the wrong man was the saddest thing a woman could ever do. Edward would never belong to either her or Jessica. She was luckier to realize that fact as early compared to Jessica who was still struggling. She had not let go of her feelings for him yet. That was the reason why she ended up with such a tragic situation.

"I don't know. What if I say that it's not what I want? Will there be a different result? Don't be stupid, Coco. There isn't any choice for me now. I have to continue my plan. I'm too proud to give it up. I am going to take my everything back from them. That's my only purpose for now." Jessica's eyes were filled with hatred as she talked. She did not blame her cousin for having her raped. Instead, she vented her anger on Daisy since her cousin did it to her as revenge for Daisy.

"I know I am not qualified to discourage you from continuing with your plan, Jessica. But you know what? You could have felt better if you hadn't cared about your pride too much. You will be the only one to get stuck with it if you take everything too seriously. You will continue to be miserable. Yes, I agree that Edward Mu is an excellent man. It doesn't mean that he belongs to you though. Regardless of how perfect he is, the point is he is not yours.

Coco felt so much better these days. She had pondered on everything she had done and realized that it was time for her to move on. There was once a devil in her heart that was making her hate and jealous of Daisy. She had that devil removed. Now what was left of her was her broader and peaceful mind.

"Who said that I still have feelings for him? I don't. I hate him so much that I am desperate to cut him into pieces with my own hands." Hate was dripping from every word Jessica spat between gritted teeth. She would never admit that her heart still beat for him. They had been together for several years after all. It was not easy for her to let go of her old feelings.

"It will never be better if you continue to think like that. I'm just afraid that you are deceiving yourself and some others too." Coco walked towards the bedroom where Jessica's mother was. Then she stopped for a second and gazed at her cousin in a questioning way. If that so, then why was she still insisting on her plan? She clearly said it. She didn't love Edward any longer. Was she lying when she claimed that she already let him go?

"I don't know what you are talking about. Do I look like a woman without self-esteem? He broke my family and made me lose everything. How could it be possible that I am still loving him and would like to do everything for him? That would be too absurd and funny," teased Jessica. Swinging her big-waved hair back, she put her slim wrist against the door and prepared to walk inside.

"Well, only you know your real thoughts. I'm not going to make any comments. Aunt is in the room. You can go inside to have a look at her. I'm going to the kitchen to check her medicine." Just then, Coco turned around and walked away, the white hemline of her dress raised slightly. She seemed to be quite light-hearted. She was an aloof beauty and not a bad woman originally. She had figured out everything and knew that her passion for Edward would never get any response. She decided to let it go and freed herself from her illusions about Edward. A kind heart would make a woman look more beautiful and charming.

The excitement was inevitable for Jessica as she saw her mother again. It was the first time for her to come there since her surgery. She was happy to see her mother but at the same time anxious. She had her face changed completely and it scared her that she might not recognize her.

"Sorry, Mom. I'm sorry I didn't come here until today." She choked with a sob. Sorrow instantly ate her upon seeing her mother's empty and emotionless eyes.

Chapter 928: Chapter 927: A Deal Offered by Jessica (part two)

"Who are you? Do I know you?" The aged woman turned to her. Most of the times, Jessica's mother was in a confused state. She was rarely conscious too. Although she didn't recognize Jessica, her condition was much better than how she usually was. Probably that was because she felt her daughter close to her. A mother could always feel her daughter.

Jessica, it's Jessica! Mom, can't you recognize me? Come and touch me, it's me, Jessica!" Jessica reached out to hold her mother's hand and then pressed the old woman's hand on her face. The feeling of being unrecognized by her own mother overwhelmed her too much that her tears poured down her face.

"Jessica? No, you are not Jessica. You look different from my daughter. I'm not your mother. I'm afraid you are mistaken." Jessica's mother took a look at her with a pitiful expression. Then the old woman took her eyes off her and stared at the family portrait sitting on the bedside table. Her mother stopped reacting after that.

"Mom, I am your daughter! Take a closer look at me, please! I've just had surgery on my face. There is always something that won't change, right? Mom, please. Try it, try to recognize me," explained Jessica with a choking voice. She turned her mother around to face her and tried to wake her up in a hurry. Everything she did appeared to be in vain though as her mother remained blank and caught in her own world. It looked like she wasn't coming back soon no matter how hard Jessica tried. She wasn't responding to her at all! Not even a blink nor a look.

"Why? Mom, can't you recognize your daughter? Why? What happened to you?" Jessica was desperate. All hell broke loose inside her chest as she began to shake her mother violently. Nevertheless, her mother remained unconscious and sluggish. The old woman didn't even bat an eyelash as her daughter's action went crazier.

That was the scene that welcomed Coco when she came into the room with Jessica's mother's decoction. "What are you doing, Jessica? Let go of her," Coco shouted to stop Jessica. She put the decoction on a side table and then walked to her cousin to stop her from shaking her mother heavily. Did she just go insane to treat a patient like that?

"What happened to my mom, Coco? Why can't she even recognize me? She is not supposed to be this sick," Jessica choked. She let go of her mother and then turned to Coco. She grabbed her cousin by her shoulders and started shaking her instead.

"That's enough, Jessica. I told you just now that she was rarely conscious. You are not the only person she doesn't remember. She has forgotten all of us. So don't be mad at her anymore, okay?" Coco explained and pushed her off forcefully. She felt dizzy because of her violent shaking. What a crazy woman!

"No, things are not supposed to be like this. She should recover from her illness. Coco, we still have some hope, don't we?" Jessica asked in a hurry as she expected a positive reply from Coco. She could feel her anger for Daisy burning even more. She couldn't accept the truth that her mother would be ending up in a hospital all because of Daisy.

Well, I don't know. It will all depend on her efforts. The doctor said that her will to be okay would be the most critical factor." Coco took the decoction she placed on the desk and put a clean kerchief around Jessica's mother's neck. She then started giving the old woman medicine by spoon. She seemed to be quite familiar with the procedure.

"Let me do this!" Jessica sniffed and offered for the job. She might not have the best character but she was nonetheless a loving daughter. Everyone had their weakness anyway.

"No, no need. You are not familiar with it. I'll take care of this! She may flap it away." Taking care of Jessica's mother wasn't an easy job for Coco when she started. Her Auntie wasn't that cooperative at all. The situation in which she flapped the medicine away happened a lot in the past. It took a while for Coco to get used to it. She learned to tell when was the right time to give her the medicine from her tiny behaviors or expressions.

"Thank you, Coco!" Jessica sniffed. She felt sorry for Coco for the first time when she saw her take care of her mother so carefully. Should she not have persuaded her with sweet words, she would not have been banned by FX International Group. In that case, she could have still been the superstar under the camera and on the screen. She could have still remained as the perfect woman in men's hearts. However, her sorry wouldn't get her cousin back to where she had been anymore.

Hey, it's nothing. We are still family no matter what happens, aren't we?" Coco smiled faintly. Gone was the proud and arrogant Coco that everyone remembered. She became much milder in both mind and behaviors. She realized many things after what she had gone through. She clearly figured out how to keep herself from hatred. Thus, she stopped fighting for things that did not belong to her. She accepted whatever life offered her such as her cousin. It was the reason why she decided to take care of her cousin's mother.

Jessica did not come back to Kate Hotel as soon as she left Coco's home. She drove to FX International Group instead. She decided to take her plan into action after seeing what her mother was like. Edward had already known her real identity anyway. There was no need to hide.

Chapter 929: Chapter 928: A Deal Offered by Jessica (part three)

"Miss, wait for a second, please. You are not allowed to enter the building because you are not working here." A security guard stopped Jessica as soon as she entered. A grand company like FX International Group was always equipped with a mature security system.

"I'm here to see your CEO. Are you sure to stop me here?" Jessica said arrogantly as she raised her eyebrow. She looked at the guard talking to her scornfully. She was indeed Jessica Lin, the arrogant and proud woman.

"Yes, I see. But may I know if you have an appointment with him?" questioned the guard patiently. It was his responsibility to check every guest visiting FX International Group. He was not sure whether she was a key account to his CEO or not since the clothes she was wearing were all world-famous brands.

"No. Please tell your CEO that Melissa Xue wants to talk to him. I'm sure that he will definitely say yes." Jessica dared not tell her real name out. She had often come there in the past thus, many people knew her. They knew her name and original face of course. However, she had a new face. No one would believe that she was Jessica Lin. They would probably consider her crazy if she told them her real name. She had no plan of losing her chance to meet Edward that way. Plus, that would be a huge humiliation.

"I'm sorry, miss! I'm afraid that I can't tell our CEO about your visit without an appointment." The guard rejected her request decisively when he heard that she had no appointment.

"Are you rejecting me? Are you sure you can take the responsibility if you mess up the business between me and your CEO?" Jessica warned with a cold smile. She was sure that Edward would meet her as soon as he heard the name, Melissa Xue. She had something he wanted after all.

"Ur! Well! Wait a moment, please. Let us call his secretary." The guard signaled his colleague to consult the CEO's secretary. He did not move an inch and remained standing before her to stop her from entering.

"Mr. Mu, there is a Melissa Xue who wants to see you. She is waiting at the front desk. Are you meeting her or not?" Anna asked in hesitation. A Melissa Xue? Who was she? Why didn't she hear that name before? Why did she want to talk to Mr. Mu? She was puzzled.

"Is there any appointment?" Edward asked indifferently without even raising his head up from what he was reading on his computer screen.

"No. But she insists that you will definitely meet her." Anna frowned slightly after seeing Edward's response. It seemed like he did not know someone named Melissa Xue at all!

No." Edward declined without thinking twice as he remained looking at the numbers on his monitor. Even his voice sounded like a business.

"Ok, I see. Then I'll reject her." The secretary replied and turned around. She did not want to disturb him at work.

"Wait. What's the name you just said?" Edward finally raised up his head. He was stoic as he looked at Anna indifferently.

"Melissa Xue! Is there anything wrong?" repeated Anna as the corner of her lips twisted a bit. Didn't he hear her earlier?

"Let her in." The CEO suddenly smiled interestedly. He knew who Melissa Xue was of course. Why did she come to him now? What was her purpose? Curiosity started reeling inside Edward's head. Wasn't she keeping her secret anymore?

"Yes. I see." The secretary grew more puzzled but she refrained her curiosity and did not ask anything. She just replied and walked out of the office to tell their security about his answer. Complex feelings were all mixed inside Jessica's chest as she walked through the halls of that company. Everything seemed to be the same. Everyone was still living their ordinary life and doing their ordinary job. It wasn't the case on her end though; everything had changed and she wouldn't go back anymore.

"Miss Xue, this way, please." Anna carefully looked at the beautiful woman before her. The woman was oozing with an unexplainable familiarity. They probably might have met before somewhere. She tried to search her mind but then came out negative.

Jessica merely nodded and walked directly into the president's office without a word. She couldn't afford for her voice to betray her. Her heart started beating fast as soon as she set her eyes on Edward who was looking at her with interest.

"Miss Xue, why did you insist on talking to me? May I know the reason?" A faint smile was on Edward's face when he talked, nevertheless his whole expression was still distant. He looked quite comfortable though and spoke politely as if he was talking to a real guest.

"Stop pretending, Edward Mu. I know that you already know who I am. It's not interesting should you continue talking with me like that." Fist clenched, Jessica kept warning herself that she shouldn't be obsessed with him anymore. She came here to make a deal with him and not to beg for forgiveness. Scorn her though for she couldn't resist his charm.

"Who you are? What? Miss Xue, do you have another hidden identity? Well, why don't you show me?" teased Edward with a sly smile. 'Jessica, Jessica. Do you know why you are always in a passive state? You are not patient enough despite all the hardship you've been through,' Edward thought.

"Do you think you are funny to conceal the fact that you already know who I am? For God's sake, stop it please. And don't forget this, I have the thing you want the most." Jessica felt upset since Edward seemed to be unaffected by her. He remained distant and indifferent. She felt like a clown who was performing in front of him. She felt ashamed.

Chapter 930: Chapter 929: A Deal Offered by Jessica (part four)

"I'm just acting with you as you expected. What? Have you decided to stop acting?" The CEO was as steady as a rock. All he did was just to turn to Jessica with an interested look.

I'm not here to talk about my identity today. I'm here to negotiate with you. Don't get confused." The calmer Edward was, the more she became upset. She wasn't like him who was born with a business talent for negotiations.

"Negotiation? What negotiation? I don't know that. Do we have any business venture together?" Edward felt more and more interested. Was she telling a joke? Should he remember it right, there was no business between her and himself, let alone any negotiation.

Don't you know it? I have 60 percent of the MY Mall shares in my hands. What about now? Do you really think that we don't need to talk about something? I'm offering you a chance you may be interested in." Jessica could not help growing proud at the thought of MY Mall's shares. She looked at Edward and scanned his face for any desperation. She wanted to see him frustrated. Unfortunately though, she failed.

"Oh? Are you qualified to speak on behalf of Kompass Group?" The smile on Edward's face deepened. He wondered what Jessica wanted from him.

"What do you mean? I don't understand." Jessica narrowed her eyes and glared at CEO. Her expression became dangerous. 'Oh, Edward, Edward. Why can't I just resist your charm and excellence?' sighed her heart as it got flooded with feelings that could almost drown her.

"Am I not clear enough? Obviously, it is Kompass Group that purchased the shares of MY Mall. Why do you claim that you have the shares? I seriously doubt your words. You are not convincing at all." Edward said in a cold tone. Since when did this woman become so bold? Who did she think she was? Her arrogance and boldness might cost her something really important.

Well, trust me or not? That's your choice. I won't make you believe me. But this is the fact. I have them. How about we make a deal. I'd like to exchange Lin Group's shares with MY Mall' shares, in the same scale. How do you like my proposal?" Her father was dead because she lost Lin Group. It was her fault. Thus, she would do everything to purchase the Lin Group back. She would still want to get the company regardless that it was small. Shaun Gao was nothing but a stepping stone in her original plan.

"Ha-ha! Jessica, do you think I'm a three-year-old child who you can fool that easy? Come on, you are not Kompass Group's CEO. Okay, let's pretend that you are, still, you don't and cannot just sell the MY Mall's shares at your will. You know what? I have always known what you have been doing. Do you think I am that stupid to allow you purchase the shares without me doing anything about it?" He thought she had become much smarter. What a shame that she hadn't. She was still as stupid as she had been before. An empty vase would worth nothing without anything in it.

What did you say? You mean you let us buy the shares on purpose? But why did you do that? You would have nothing beneficial for your company from doing it. Why?" Jessica was anxious now. She was so confused. She had no clue about Edward's purpose at all. If she guessed it wrong, she would have no chip in the negotiation table. What was more, Shaun Gao would be a big concern as well. He would kill her!

Why? You tell me. What? Don't you always think you are quite smart about everything? How come you didn't expect it? Why didn't you make a plan B?" Edward looked at her with an extremely cold expression that was enough to make her freeze.

"Did we buy the wrong shares? But they are not supposed to be false shares." Jessica was alarmed and bewildered. If Kompass Group had bought the wrong shares, what could they do to have their money back? They had invested a large amount of money to purchase MY Mall's shares.

I didn't say that. But if you want to trade the shares of MY Mall for the Lin Group, I'm sorry but I have to reject it. I won't do that." He would be the most stupid businessman should he agree on her suggestion. It would be a piece of cake for him to retrieve the shares of MY Mall back even without dealing with Jessica.

Why? You are not interested in Lin Group, aren't you? Well, I want to have it. Isn't it a win-win deal for both of us? You can throw away Lin Group to me and I can sell MY Mall to you. We both can have benefits." Jessica looked at him in a puzzle. Her proposal would do good for both of them. It would get them the best of both worlds. Why did he refuse her?

Yes, you are right. Indeed, I'm not interested in Lin Group. But it doesn't mean that my men are not interested in it. Some of them may be. So I'm thinking of leaving it to someone who wants to take care of it. I'm always a kind-hearted boss. A small company like Lin Group doesn't deserve my management in person." Was she really innocent or whimsical? Edward had difficulty choosing between the two. There were so many businesses in FX International Group. Did he need to take care of everything in person out of interest? Come on! Only those which were highly profitable could call his attention and interest.
