

In a Love Nest with the Aloof CEO Chapter 575 - 576

Before Skylar left the house, Claudia instructed a housekeeper to hand her a package of health checkups.

Skylar was left in total puzzlement. "Is this necessary? I am in good health."

She scanned through the checkup list, including items like a premarital checkup and recessive gene screening.

Seeing that Tobias was not around, the housekeeper spoke frankly, "This is Mrs. Ford's order. She wants to make sure your body is healthy."

Even though it appeared to be an act of care, Skylar felt humiliated.

Needless to say, after she completed the checkup, she would be required to hand the result back to Claudia. Who is she to expect that I'll do everything she says?

Eventually, Skylar handed the package back to the housekeeper.

"Thank you, but I've just completed the annual body checkup conducted by the company.

Anyway, please thank Mrs. Ford for me."

The housekeeper advised, "If you don't take it, I'm afraid Mrs. Ford will not be happy."

However, Skylar had made up her mind that she would bow down to anyone for whatever reason.

She replied with a smile. "Please explain to her for me then. I have anemia, so I cannot conduct checkups too frequently. It can wait till the time if we've decided to get married. I think she'll understand."

Tobias, who was waiting in the car, was confused about what was taking Skylar so long. The next moment, he impatiently honked twice.

Upon hearing that, Skylar turned and walked out of the house, ignoring the housekeeper.

“Why didn’t you wait for me in there?” Skylar complained the second she got into the car.

Tobias gazed at Skylar innocently. He came out earlier to start the car engine to warm the car. It has been raining the entire night, so the inside of the car was freezing.

“Why? What’s there to be afraid of?”

Skylar almost cursed. Your mom suspects that I’m not clean and asks me to go for a checkup.

She swallowed back her anger and had second thoughts about discussing the matter with Tobias.

If Claudia finds out that I mention it to Tobias, she will think that I’m petty and trying to ruin their relationship.

With that in mind, Skylar decided to drop the issue. She took out her phone and key in the location of Kevin’s school. “Could you drop me off there? I can’t wait until he gets off school.”

“Do you really think he’ll be in school after all this?”

Skylar furrowed her brows. “Where else can he go? I’m sure he won’t be at home.”

“Cybercafé or underground casino. Let me ask someone to check it out, and I’ll accompany you there. You should not go to such places alone.”

Skylar’s lips curled into a smile. “Don’t underestimate me. Do you know what my nickname used to be? I’ve been called the Cyber Princess.”

“Is it something to be proud of? Being addicted to playing computer games with your boyfriend and getting intimate in cybercafés.”

Skylar’s face blushed from embarrassment as Tobias’ prediction could not be less accurate.

Everyone has a past.

However, in Skylar's understanding, Tobias was hardly a man with a past. Surely he would not accompany his girlfriend to a cybercafé, would he? He would see that as a waste of time.

Tobias led his life like an older man, as he did not even know how to use a smartphone properly.

Skylar found it hard to believe that the founder of an online game company did not have any game app on his phone.

As expected, Tobias' men found Kevin inside one of the cybercafés.

Tobias was worried about letting Skylar go alone. Hence, he canceled his morning meeting and accompanied her there.

576

Pegasus Cybercafé was near Kevin's school. This cybercafé had been in existence for quite some years. Skylar had been there when she was still a student.

Back then, she used to spend the whole night at the cybercafé with Jeremy. Skylar still remembered the price. The fee was fifteen—all night unlimited use.

That time, Jeremy liked to play CrossFire. He wore a headset and cursed at the computer a lot.

He was really good at gaming. At that time, Skylar thought that was love.

However, it felt terribly uncomfortable especially during the morning hours at cybercafé. The pungent odor, dust in the air, hunger for food, and a face covered in sebum.

What came up next was the voice of the boss.

Wake up. It's morning now.

Skylar was lost in thought. She was never a delicate girl who had the best time of youth, but an ordinary person who lived a plain life. If it wasn't for Tobias, she would just kept on muddling through her life as she used to day in and day out. There was an empty instant noodles bowl on the table when Skylar finally found Kevin. He was wearing a headset and commanding his teammates in the game. "Can someone give me a Kar98k? F*ck! I can't find any vehicles!" "Who the f*ck is aiming at me?" "I haven't won a game tonight..."

Skylar found it hard to believe that Kevin used to be an excellent student with good manners and top results when she saw him there. Kevin's grades had always been good. He even won first place in National French Contest during his first year of high school. How did he end up like this in such a short time? Could it be the peer pressure from growing up? Skylar had been standing behind him for quite a while. If Tobias didn't remove the headset from behind Kevin, he wouldn't even notice her existence. He immersed himself completely in the game. Kevin couldn't recognize Skylar at first because she was wearing a baseball cap and face mask. He was about to curse but quickly swallowed the words on the tip of his tongue. Lauren, Kevin's girlfriend was there too. She put down her computer mouse and got up from the sofa. Tobias looked at Kevin's girlfriend. She was about Kevin's age. She had her hair in colorful dreadlocks, wearing a goth makeup with smoky eyes. One of her arms was full of colorful tattoo. These roguish hooligans were such an eyesore to Tobias.

Then, Skylar took the two kids to a restaurant nearby with private rooms where they could have their privacy. She had covered herself well from head to toe, but many people were still looking at her direction.

She wasn't sure if they had recognized her, or they were actually looking at Tobias. She just couldn't tell.

It was time to eat. Kevin was still hungry as the noodles he ate earlier had already been digested.

Lauren looked rather nervous and cautious as compared to Kevin. She sat beside him, biting her lips.

Skylar ordered some food. As soon as the first dish was served, Kevin couldn't hold himself and began to stuff his mouth with food.

Meanwhile, Lauren hadn't started eating. Skylar looked at her and asked, "Kevin is your boyfriend, isn't he?"

Lauren nodded.

Skylar somehow felt that that girl didn't deserve Kevin.

This time, Skylar went straight to the point, "Why did you do that? Why must you push me into the corner? What could you possibly gain from doing this?"

Kevin didn't dare to tell Skylar that the idea was actually instigated by Eva. He had no choice but to bear the consequences. "Because I have no money, and you're not helping me either.

That money means nothing to you at all. You even endorse Gucci.

Besides, you're also one of the A-list celebrities. You get paid well for every single show. Do you really have the heart to see me end up in the ditch?"

His tone was devoid of any guilt or shame. Tobias thought he was probably influenced by his family upbringing. They tended to take others for granted as if they deserved it.

Skylar was infuriated. "How could you be so shameless to say these words? Did I force you to gamble? You're still a student. Aren't you supposed to study hard?"

Tobias poured a cup of tea for Skylar. None of Skylar's words were on point. Still, she was too weak. She was giving Kevin a chance to seek sympathy.
