

Alpha's Blind Luna Online Free

Chapter 82

I sat on the floor of the bathroom, taking controlled breaths. The day had started much like every Sunday did. Walking up screaming; having a couple cups of coffee and a couple hours later, the emotions rushed me like a tidal wave. I was sorrowful that there was no piano to play in this house. I did sing softly until the coughing started. This time it had gotten bad enough I had to go to the bathroom. It felt like I was getting rid of important parts of my body but I needed to wait more time though. I had managed to go the whole week without waking up with nightmares.

Pipsqueak had called. More than once but I didn't want to get off the cool bathroom floor. I leaned my head back against the tub and sighed. That had a couple more coughs but I just spit out the blood. The front door suddenly slammed open and I lifted my head up, trying to listen.

"Auri!"

I groaned and leaned my head back. Logan stomped up the stairs and stood in the doorway of the bathroom.

"Does no one understand the meaning of leave me the fuck alone on Sundays?" I sighed.

"I got a very upset call from a Pipsqueak telling me you probably died somewhere."

I shook my head. "She knows not to bother me on Sunday. I'm just gonna stop answering my fucking phone."

"Auri ... " Logan stepped over me and turned on the water. "Fucking goddess."

I heard the toilet flush after and he bent down over me. A cool towel touched my neck and shoulders. He wiped my face gently as well.

"Where are they Auri?"

"Not enough time has passed."

He growled."Where are they?"

"There is a small bag on the nightstand in the bedroom."

Logan left my side and came back moments later. He pressed a tablet into my hand."Do you need something to drink?"

I shook my head.

"Auri, don't make me force you to take it."

I chuckled."You couldn't make me do anything. You'd fall on your ass and bare your neck to me before you even got close."

"Take it.Now."

Sighing, I put the tablet in my mouth and swallowed. As I did, I gasped as Logan picked me up.He carried me down the stairs and plopped me on the couch. He left me there and came back, placing a glass in my hand. Lifting it, it was some of the iced tea I made.I took a sip and the metallic taste in my mouth started to go away.

Logan sat down on the couch a little ways away from me and I could feel him staring at me.

Taking a deep breath, the snap of the Nova hit me and I blinked a couple times. The emotions gone but the silver started to burn slightly and I sighed in relief. I looked over to Logan, now able to see his form on the couch. He was hunched over, his head in his hands

"Logan?"

"You scared the shit out of me. Auri."

I took a sip of the iced tea. "It's not a big deal.

You don't need ... "

"I know you can handle this on your own! It doesn't mean you should!" He snapped at me.

We were quiet for a few moments, I was letting the full effect come into my body, careful not to hold my glass too tightly. I had broken a lot of things getting used to the extra strength. Logan sat at the edge of the couch looking almost like a statue except for his heart beat. It wasn't fast but it did illuminate his body. He was wearing a nice shirt and pants. I wondered what I had interrupted.

"Thank you." I said quietly. "Sorry if Pipsqueak interrupted anything."

Logan looked over at me. "Honestly, I'm not sure what to say to you at this point."

I furrowed my brow. "You don't need to say anything. You can just leave." I huffed, pulling up my knees to my chest and held the glass of tea in both hands. ①

"That's not what I meant." He got up and kneeled on the floor in front of me. "How do I fix this? How do I help you? What do I need to do?"

I took a sip. "Nothing. It is what it is."

"That can't be true."

"Logan, it doesn't matter. I'm not your problem. I'm my own problem. Go back. I'll call Pipsqueak, make sure she doesn't bother you again."

Standing up, I left him in living room. I opened up the fridge and pulled out some food. As I placed it on the counter, I heard the front door slam shut and I sighed. He was letting it bother him far too much. I had a feeling this wasn't going to be the last Sunday he would bother me.

Once I had breakfast, I headed outside to practice.

I still did Tai Chi, taking in the slow movements and feeling all my muscles move. I tried to do it longer and longer every day. Slow deliberate movements making sure every muscle and every movement is not wasted. By the second hour, I was sweating. Focused on each step, each move, I heard a car door slam shut in front of the house. Taking a deep breath, I continued through the movements turning my wrists and pulling them back. There was stomping around the house to the backyard where I was.

"I say leave me alone on a Sunday and no one fucking takes me seriously." I growled, turning slowly and transitioning into a new pose.

The footfalls stopped and the light illuminating from his sound stopped. Standing up straight, I turned to him. Aware that there was no heartbeat radiating out from the body.

"Does Alpha Logan know there is a vampire on his territory?"

"I thought he was joking. I thought maybe somehow there had been a mistake." Morgan's voice stabbed my heart . I felt it for a moment. The small dip into the pool of emotion that Nova held back. The hurt and betrayal and the anger. I could just feel there but they were minimal. I knew how I should been feeling though. Suddenly, I was grateful to Logan for making me take it when I did.

"What do you want Morgan?" I put my hands on my hips.

"I want your stash. I want you to get out of here. I want you to leave the states and stay the hell away from the Alpha King. Away from Micah."

I shook my head. "No. I don't think I will do any of that. What would make you think you have the right to say anything to me anymore?"

"I thought I made it perfectly clear that you were not to go near the guild, that you were not to be a part of that life anymore."

Suddenly I felt anger slowly bubble up. "Excuse me? You mean cutting me off, black listing me, and then never speaking to me again. That's your idea of making things perfectly clear?"

"I could have killed you, Auri!"

"I could kill you right now!" I roared back. "You want fuck with me, Morgan? You think you still have the right to be dictating my life?" Morgan stripped off his jacket and unbuttoned his cuffs. I already was dressed for exercise. He stepped forward and tried to grab me. Smiling, I avoided it and instead, grabbed his arm. Using the strength I had through Nova, I pulled him off balance and past me, letting him stumble

"I'm not the girl you tried to train for, what was it? Oh yeah, self defense. I've done nothing but kill, Morgan. Kill vampires. Kill werewolves. Even kill Fey. I've done nothing but fight my way through life once you didn't even bother to check

if Thad died or not."

He came up and tried to swipe at me again, he was faster than Hector, Logan, and Bryan combined but I could see each movement with his loud steps. I could see his entire body lunge and move. Defecting, avoiding, and even attacking faster than he was. I wouldn't let him win. Not this time.

"I did check. I did make sure you were alive.)

"Oh yeah? Just that my heart was beating or that I was alive?"

Silence fell over us except for the hits and kicks, the steps into the ground as we twisted and moved. Taking a deep breath, I slipped under his defense and slapped him across the face; hard. He stumbled back for a second. I could have done a hook but I wanted it to sting.

"You left me alone. You didn't even think that maybe I needed you more than I ever had. That maybe I didn't get away alive. That I continued to lose pieces of myself."

"I wasn't about to hurt you again. I lost control. It wouldn't happen again."

"So what. I already had told you I forgave you. For everything that night. I told you."

Morgan stepped forward and tried to grab my shirt but I grabbed his hand and pulled him close. I was looking up at him, my neck pretty much all the way back.

"You abandoned me."

"Auri, I did not."

I pulled his body down to me, so now we were eye to eye. "You didn't call. Calling wouldn't kill me. You literally left me in a destroyed house after I nearly bled out. In pain after the man I loved just traded his freedom for my life after you nearly killed him. The man who had cared enough to fucking listen to me when I said something." I threw Morgan away.

Another car door slammed shut but I didn't care.

For the first time on Nova, I was actually angry. 1 was feeling an emotion. This time I stepped to check on me! I stayed in that house for weeks. No one came back for me. I'm blind! I was scared and alone and no one gave a single shit about how I felt about the whole damn situation. So you're damn right I took the Nova Micah gave me. And you know what? I would wouldn't change a single thing. So fuck off your high horse, Morgan. You mean NOTHING to me." I yelled at him, even from the arms of Bryan and Hector. I spit onto the ground and looked away. I took a few shaky breaths to calm myself down.

"Calm down, Astra." Bryan whispered.

Using my full strength, I pulled myself out of his grip. I fumbled into Hector as Bryan's grip was torn away and Hector let go as well.

"You have a vampire on your territory Alpha Logan, you should take care of that." I growled and turned. I brushed past Logan who was standing about ten feet behind Bryan and Hector. I went inside the house and slammed the door. I didn't care what the hell they did with him. I was done with Morgan. Absolutely done.

None of the guys showed on Monday for training. I just continued through my day, training, and then going over some information

Pipsqueak had sent me. Apparently, Micah was already at the castle of the Alpha King. His teams were trickling in from the different places but the Alpha King was already set up and ready to go. She would ask me every time if I was sure that Micah was on the right side. I could never answer her. I didn't know, honestly. Either way, it didn't change the fact that it didn't matter whose side was on whose when I came to my own agenda.

The first one to show was Bryan, Wednesday afternoon. It wasn't to train though. He knocked on the door and I opened it. He didn't look at me.

"What's up, Bryan?"

"Sorry we haven't shown up for training. It's been a crazy couple of days."

I opened the door to let him in and he walked in. Closing the door behind him, I walked past him into the kitchen, pulling out a chair for him at the island. I pulled out some leftovers and a piece of cake I had baked after yesterday of them not showing up. Placing them in front of him, I passed him a fork and then a glass of water.

"It doesn't matter. I was only doing it to help."

I leaned against the counter, looking in the direction of Bryan. He was hunched over, slowly taking bites of food.

"Bryan, what's going on?"

He looked up at me for the first time. "Did you really love him?"

I cocked my head to the side. "What?"

"You said you fell in love with Max. Well, you screamed it at Morgan really.”

"I did. Max confessed and we dated. He was kind and patient with me. He loved me, far before I knew but I started to love him as well. At the time, I needed someone who loved me after all the things I had been through. What I had become after it. Max had seen me at my worse and still somehow managed to love me. Love me without a bond."

"But Micah tore him away.

"After Morgan tried to kill him and nearly killed me, yes."

Bryan took a bite of the cake."Morgan was really messed up. I had to drive him into the city to his bodyguards. They took him from there."

"He won't die. So it's fine" I grumbled.

"Logan was pissed but he also.."

I rolled my eyes and sighed."Did he think I wouldn't have moved on after he left me? Is he upset that I said I loved someone else?"

Bryan nodded."He never loved Leandra.Never even tried to really."

"That was his choice." I put both hands behind me, clasping them together. "Max literally picked me up off the ground when Logan left."

"Auri ... "

I shook my head. "It doesn't matter if any of them come back Bryan, you didn't even need to. I'm not here to justify my actions after being left on my own. I lived. I kept stepping forward. Whether or not someone wants to judge me for that is on them, not me ."

Bryan finished his cake and set the fork down.

"We have a lot of work coming up and I don't think we will come by for training."

I shrugged. "Whatever you guys want. I'll be here. I will say though, there will be no apology waiting." I walked over to the mountain of paper and handed it to Bryan. "This is some intel on what's going on in the castle. You can take it. I've already gone through it all."

"Thanks," He took the paperwork and I walked him out the door. Bryan stood on the pouch for a moment before turning around again. "I'm sorry, Auri."

"Astra, Bryan. It's Astra now."

