

Chapter 4

"I called you out here to ask you actually to tell you that am joint to make you my mate and as my friend already told you I don't take no for an answer." Gemini found herself being surprised, she knew eventually that he make her his mate but she didn't think he would demand her.

"Okay." She said it's not like she had any choice anyway even though he was attracted to her it didn't mean he wouldn't hurt her. He smirked again and later walked Gemini back to the building and to her surprise, there were still a lot of people.

"You wouldn't mind staying here for a while, I have to meet with someone," Layton said as he took her to a nearby table.

"No. I'll be okay." The girl smiled and Layton couldn't help but smile back then disappeared. She waited a little longer.

"What are you doing here?" A familiar voice said and Gemini couldn't believe her eyes.

"Jacob how?" Her old friend. Jacob and Gemini had known each other since they were kids as he was her playmate and the strange thing is that she never knew he was like her.

"Is your mom aware of this?" He asked as he took a seat next to her. Jacob knew Gemini's mother would never let her daughter visit a place like this and after she just turned eighteen.

"No she's not but please don't tell her anything." She pleaded knowing her mother would trace her. He smiled.

"Why would I tell her after all she hates me, she's the reason I stopped visiting." He laughed. " She promised to break my legs if I ever came close to you." Gemini giggled.

"Am going to miss her." She bit her lip.

"She'll understand someday." She nodded.

"I never knew you were a wolf too." She changed the subject.

"Neither did I. Took me a while to nd out you send pretty weak signs?" Gemini stared at him confused.

"What do you mean?" She asked confused.

"Forget about it." He stared deep into her eyes and Gemini felt a bit uncomfortable.

"I see you taken." He stared away.

"How did you know." There were a lot of things Gemini didn't know about werewolves even though she was one.

"Gem it's not important, tell me who it is."

"I don't really know, I think his name starts with a Lay something." Jacob frowned and hissed silently.

"Layton?! Wow, you've really let yourself down Gem." He broadly said.

"Why?."

"You've just sold your soul to the devil just pray this one doesn't take you down with him." Before Gemini could ask any question a girl walked towards them and stared at Jacob then lastly at Gemini.

"Hey, names Dakota and well Layton sent me to accompany you." She stared sharply back at Jacob and he did the same.

"Well I am with Jacob and why did he actually send someone," Gemini said.

"Guess he didn't want you talking to the wrong crowd." The girl said and turned to Jacob.

"Anyway Gem I'll be on my way I have work to do." Jacob got up and later left providing a space for Dakota to sit.

"Gemini right?" Dakota asked as she sipped on her drink.

"Yeah."

"Sorry I would have gotten you a drink but Layton told me you are not a fan of alcohol." She said Gemini was impressed with how fast Layton read her.

"It's okay, I wasn't thirsty anyway."

"Since you'll be our leader I better introduce myself properly. As I said am Dakota and am the leader of the hunting or the defense pack so feel comfortable around me." Gemini chuckled, she saw what Layton was doing and through what Strider told her about him she was able to see right through his plan.

"So you're the one he trusts. I have to admit he can be a pretty insecure guy. Already suspecting me and we're not even married." She tried not to laugh but it was really silly.

"Can't say it's not true but he's also doing it for your protection." As Dakota and Gemini talked Jacob found his way to the exit when he met up with Layton.

"Sir." Jacob jokingly said as he bowed which was really insulting to Layton. Layton grabbed Jacob by his collar and pinned him on the wall.

"Do I look like a joke to you!!" Layton yelled as Jacob had no respect for him at all.

"Am sorry, I didn't mean to make you feel offended," Jacob said as he didn't expect the alpha to react in this manner. Just before Layton could charge Strider ran in.

"Layton, please committing such an action would draw and wanted attention. I'll deal with him as soon as we leave this place." Strider advised Layton had to admit he was right and just like that he took his hands off Jacobs's shirt.

"I heard you had a little chat with Gemini," Layton said dusting his shirt. Jacob shrugged.

"Well, it's been long since I saw her. We just shared some memories and nothing else."

"And I heard you said something about me. What was the word?" Layton thought then gasped. "Devil?" He lastly said.

"I didn't say any of that." Jacob lied.
