

Carrying the Alpha's Heir Chapter 10 –

Chapter 10: Carrying a Child

I stayed inside the house for more than a month now. Vigor just keeps messaging me or even visiting me and my parents are cool with that. They knew that it was Vigor alone who makes me forget every painful memory that I had. The homeschool is very boring that I wanted to just sleep. I don't know because I never felt this bored all my life about learning, and the only idea that keeps me going is the fact that I am a heiress and I am bound to carry the company that my parents have worked hard through the years.

Waking up every morning gives me a lot of problem. Especially that my stomach felt like it was going to swirl everything I intake and throw it away up on my mouth. It was horrible, it was like I am puking all the insides of my body.

I researched about it and the internet said that maybe I ate something weird, so from then on, I avoid eating a lot of food.

Every time Vigor visits, I couldn't stop him if he wanted to make love. And I don't understand also but it felt like I wanted it so much too. I am even overthinking that maybe I turned into a maniac because of that.

The teacher keeps discussing and I am just listening to her, when he asked me to stand up and write something on the board, I think my world is turning around. I am so dizzy.

"Are you okay, Miss Canda?" My teacher asked.

I didn't had time to talk for an answer when I saw nothing and passed out. The last thing that I remember is the door opened and a man suddenly caught me from falling on my chair.

I woke up and I feel like I want to throw up. But seeing my man seriously looking at me, I frown in surprise. Why is he here?

"What are you doing here?" I asked.

He took a deep breath and held my hand. "Let's go somewhere." He just whispered.

Although I am confused, upon looking at his shiny gold eyes, I just knew I nodded like a good pet.

...

Vigor is driving a long way. I don't want to ask him because I want him to focus on the road. When I saw the road signs that we are going to Saint Lawrence, I finally had an idea where we are off to go.

He once took me here, I guess we are still a year in our relationship when he introduced me to the Vista's. At first, I was shocked upon looking of how gorgeous the clan was! The only thing that I couldn't understand is the reason why they chose to live in such a remote area.

"We're going to the Vista's?" I asked.

He nodded and glanced at me, our eyes locked and I can see a glint of fear in there.

"Yeah,"

It took us another 30 minutes to arrive on one of the little islands, when we arrived, I immediately saw Liria, the wife of Lex Vista- the youngest of the three Vista brothers. She's holding a child on her arms while smiling at me.

"Nice to see you again, Pyress." She said and gave me a warm smile.

I smiled at her and we talked a bit. I also played with her son. The baby's so cute, and I couldn't help to pinch the cheeks. Ghod! I am having fetish with that chubby tight cheeks!

I didn't even mind of someone's looking, I just wake up and went back to reality when I felt someone hugged me from the back and caressed my stomach. Vigor's breath was hitting a skin on my neck making me gasp and shiver.

"Let's go?" He whispered softly.

I pouted and just nodded.

He was holding my waist as we walk to the doctor's office. Leo immediately hugged me, and I laughed giggly.

We both stopped when we felt that someone is going to murder us with his sharp looks. We just sillily looked at Vigor and laughed again.

When we are done playing, the real deal is to talk about something, and I don't understand anything.

When Leo said that I have to lay down and he would ultrasound my stomach, I'm a bit shocked.

"For what?" I asked.

"To see if the baby's healthy?" Leo said that made my mouth drop open.

"A b-baby?" I asked confusedly.

He didn't answer me, and he started to do the thing.

"I thought Leo is a vet doctor? Am I a pregnant cat or something?" I asked pouty.

Vigor chuckled and just kissed my pouted lips. "He's still a doctor."

I didn't talk anything but when I saw a little burb on the screen, my eyes widen.

"A fetus?" I asked again.

Leo nodded with a big wide smile.

My heartbeat faster and I feel like I'm going to burst into tears in so much happiness.

"You're 5 weeks pregnant," Leo stated.

My mind went blank in so much happiness and hugged Vigor who is beside me. It's the actual date the moment we first did it.

A lot of things happened to me, but this was the best.

...

Before anything else happened, Vigor already told Leo that he would inform Pyress that she's pregnant to the date they made it, not the date of the full moon.

Guilt is creeping him, but he must endure it. I guess that is the best revenge an innocent woman can cast upon him- unending guilt.

Seeing her happy right now gives flutter to his heart and wished that this would never end. One thing that he must face again is the fact that werewolves are born after 6 full moons.

The people might not understand it- and would expect a premature baby, but if they see that the baby is entirely healthy. He can't risk anything when it comes to his family.

Never ever. Especially that this baby is the one he's been waiting for, for 300 years.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-