

Chapter 35 Accusations

Theseus

I am glad Amarah is sitting next to me and with her hand on my knee I am able to control Linus, but I know that if I give control to him he is going to kill at least one male in the dining room. I know Alpha Crios instructed him to make those false accusations.

While we were talking this morning I saw how Alastor treated Delia and looking at the two of them I wonder why I never saw the truth between Damian and Penelope. I even asked Ajax on the way down from our suit and he had wondered the same thing.

“Alpha Crios, can you explain to me what reason Alastor had to do what Delia’s Father accuses him off?” I ask and I know everyone will be listening to this conversation. I need everyone to hear the lame tale he is going to tell and with it he will dig his own grave.

“Alpha Theseus, you may not be aware of this but I tore up the alliance I had with White Crescent Pack. He knew she wanted revenge and by taking my Beta’s Daughter he wanted to make sure his Sister had leverage over me.” Alpha Crios answers.

I know there is nothing Amarah could gain if Alastor had forcefully marked Delia, there would have been something to gain if Alpha Crios had had a Daughter and he had forcefully marked her. But then again Alastor doesn’t want to be an Alpha, so no gain there either.

“Tell me, Alpha Crios. What kind of leverage would Alpha Amarah have over you if Alastor forcefully marked Delia?” I ask him and I know there is not an answer he can give that will make any sense to anyone. I keep looking at him as I wait for him to dig his grave even deeper.

Amarah is rubbing circles on my knee with her thumb and Linus is softly purring in my head, I am glad he has calmed down after he heard the accusations. I know it will be easier for Amarah to calm Linus down once we have marked each other and I can’t wait for that to happen.

“Delia is my Beta’s Daughter as I already mentioned and that means she now has access to sensitive information about my Pack. Financial information, strategic information and we both know that with that information any Pack can be brought down.” He says.

I burst out in laughter while Amarah hides her mouth behind her hand, Delia is staring at Atlas who is trying his best not to look to smug. “Alpha Crios, I remember that my Alpha and I once visited your Pack and there was something that always stuck with me.

None of the females were allowed anywhere near the High-ranking males, not even near their own Mate and if I remember correctly you told us that you would never allow one of them in a meeting concerning Pack business. According to your own words all females are good for is to warm your bed and bare you Pups.” Ajax growls.

Ajax is correct in recalling the only time I met with Alpha Crios, he had wanted to talk about an alliance between our Packs and he had shocked both of us when he had mentioned those words. Suddenly a piece of the puzzle falls into place as I remember when he asked me for that alliance.

“You wanted an alliance with me, because you tore up the alliance you had with White Crescent Pack. You needed another strong ally just in case you would find yourself up against someone that disagreed with you and the way you run your Pack.

You were able to belittle every female in your Pack, because no one would turn against you as long as you had White Crescent Pack as an ally and when you tore up the alliance you created trouble for yourself.” I say as I get out of my seat.

“Delia has no knowledge of your finances or strategies, she couldn’t have known because you made sure they never knew and yet you accuse Alastor of forcefully marking her for gaining that information. I can tell you that they are fated Mates and I also know how they met one and other.

You and her Father had planned for her to get forcefully marked by your oldest Son on her eighteenth birthday, but unfortunately for you she overheard the conversation between you and your Son. She ran as fast as she could and asked Alpha Amarah for asylum, which she was granted.

None of you knew where she was or with whom until she walked into the Arena. This is the only warning I am giving you and your men, stay away from Delia or you will answer to me.” That last sentence was growled at him by Linus.

Amarah

I know Theseus had trouble controlling Linus, but something tells me I have to allow him to push forward and when I hear him growl his warning at Alpha Crios I know I made the right decision. Alpha Crios pales as he looks at Linus, who has a furious look on his face and a glint of murder in his eyes.

Alpha Crios doesn’t acknowledge Linus’ warning as he turns on his heel to exit the dining room, after that most of the other Packs walk out of the room as well. Leaving just us and two of our allies behind and I notice that Ajax is linking someone.

“Amarah, can you introduce me to the other two Alphas?” Theseus asks. “I found three more alliances in my office, but my Father never mentioned them to me when I took over.” I make the introductions to Alpha Murphee of Silver River Pack and Alpha Jaydon of Silver Moon Pack.

“Alpha Murphee and Alpha Jaydon, can you give me a reason why my Father never mentioned we have an alliance?” Theseus asks and both of them look at him with confusion in their eyes. “I went through our paperwork a few days before coming here and I found an alliance missing we had according to my Father, but I also found three alliances I was unaware of.

I know what happened to the missing alliance, but I don’t understand why he kept our alliances hidden from me.” Theseus explains and it is Dad that answers him, “I think it is safe to say that your Father doesn’t like the fact I am close friends with their Fathers.

Their Fathers were with me the day I met Anthea and you know why he hates my guts.” Dad says and Murphee looks at bit dumbfounded at my Father. “Murphee, Theseus and his men know the truth. Mom told them because she doesn’t want secrets within the family, at least not anymore.” I state.

Brielle is the first one to figure out what my words mean exactly and she congratulates me, before she turns to Theseus, “You better treat her right or I will personally tear up the alliance and throw that Pack of yours into war. Am I making myself clear, Alpha Theseus.” She growls at him.

I see Linus pushing forward, but instead of turning on Brielle for disrespecting an Alpha he turns to Murphee, “Maybe you should let your Mate do the negotiations on alliances in the future. She can scare the shit out of most Alphas.” He says.

Brielle starts laughing as Murphee mumbles something along the lines of her scaring the shit out of him too and Alpha Jaydon asks Theseus if he is willing to sit down with them in a couple of weeks to discuss their alliances, “I am not going to break it, but with the two of you mated I think it is wise if you revisit every alliance.

There might be things you want or need to chance, like combining the alliances you both have with a Pack and I know that a lot of Alphas will be knocking on your door to broker an alliance when they hear the two of you are mated.” Jaydon says and I know he has a point.

Most of those Alphas will be calling Theseus instead of me and I know I will enjoy seeing their faces when they realize they will have to deal with me as well. I know Drew also has an alliance with Theseus, but Drew had told me last time we met that he had never heard anything from Theseus.

“Jaydon, thank you for pointing that out to me. I need to contact Alpha Drew about our alliance and I will meet with the three of you once Amarah and I have figured out how this is going to work. I am not talking about our alliances, but about us becoming one Pack.

There is so much we need to take care of and I have no idea where to start. Well, other than telling my Father to move out of the Pack-house if we decide we are going to live there.” He says and I sigh in relief as I realize he has already thought about that predicament.

Mykel walks back into the dining room with a surprised look on his face, “Where is everybody? I was about to serve dessert.” He asks and once Dad explains it, he has a smirk on his face. “Okay, do I need to call a Doctor or should I start digging graves?” Mykel asks Dad teasingly.

A few minutes later we are enjoying our dessert when Theseus looks at his phone, “Josh, you called?” He asks and Josh tells him Damon is pissed off about Damien and Penelope being forced out of the Pack. “Just keep an eye on him and my Mother.

Ademus already knows we will be staying here; I need to find out a few things I discovered before we left. I will let you know when we are heading home.” He says to Josh before disconnecting the call.
