

Chapter 39 A New Future

Theseus

I stare at my Mate who is still fast asleep and I still can't believe she asked me to mark her last night, I had expected her to ask for more time. Don't get me wrong, I am not complaining. Linus is laying curled up in the back of my head and the both of us feel more content then we have ever been in our lives.

Someone is pushing against the block I had put up and I lower it to hear Apollo in my head, "Alpha, Alastor linked Melia with the request to come to their suite for breakfast." He says and I tell him I will be out in a minute. I deliberately didn't use the word we as I want to see the looks on their faces.

I gently nudge her arm to wake her up and her face turns a nice shade of red when she feels my rock-hard cock press against her leg, "Sorry, my Alpha. We don't have time for that, we have to get going as your Mom wants us to join them for breakfast." I say.

A disappointed look appears on her face and I kiss her deep before I tell her to keep that thought for tonight. We get distracted a few times as we get ready for the day and she giggles as I adjust myself before we walk out of the bedroom, "You are getting punished tonight, my Alpha." I growl in her head.

"Shit." She says before she tells me she forgot we can mind-link now and I promise her I won't do it during one of her matches. We hear the others talking about the fact I used the word I in my mind-link with Apollo and Amarah has a huge smile on her face.

When I had told her she had looked at me stunned, but when I explained to her I wanted to see their expressions she had giggled. She pointed out that Alastor had linked Melia, because he knew better than to disturb her and that the girls would know she wasn't in her room.

Looks like Amarah was right about them knowing she was here, but Ajax is not convinced, "Theseus would have said we if Amarah had been with him, she could be down there training for all we know." He says and Amarah scares the shit out of him by asking, "Are you volunteering, Beta?"

Apollo and Midas start laughing, because they know she can kick his ass with two hands tied behind her back. "Just kidding, Beta. Even though I might need you as a sparring partner tonight or tomorrow." She says and Ajax just nods his head, to stunned to speak.

"Anyone willing to tell me what you were discussing?" Amarah asks and even I want to answer her. That Mate of mine can make every male or female answer her without the use of her Alpha aura and now I understand why Atlas had no problem with giving her the Alpha position.

I have been running my Pack longer than she has been running her Pack, but I think she can still teach me a trick or two and I can't wait until she is faced with my parents. I think we might need to protect them from Amarah and not the other way around.

We quickly make our way over to Amarah's suite and the moment we get out of the elevator she gets pulled into a hug by her Mother. She releases Amarah to pull me into a hug, "Goodmorning, Son." She says and without hesitation I respond, "Goodmorning, Mom."

Mykel walks out of the dining room followed by Delia and he has a smile on his face, "Congratulations to all of you on finding your fated Mate. I understand we can expect another guest, Alpha Theseus." He says and I look at Anthea to see that she informed Mykel.

"Theseus, Mykel will keep this quiet. There is one thing we need to discuss thou, where will Joseph be sleeping? There are no empty rooms left in your suite and with the two of you newly marked I doubt you want a five year old in your room." Anthea says.

"Mom, we will discuss this with Joseph. I want him to know that he has a say in certain things and I think this is one of them, his world will be turned upside down as it is." Amarah says, Anthea just smiles at her and I get this feeling she already expected this kind of answer from her Daughter.

Atlas tells us to get into the dining room to get some breakfast and I place my hand on Amarah's lower back as we follow Atlas. I see Delia look at me from time to time and I know there is something she wants to ask me, but knowing her upbringing I doubt she will do it on her own.

"Delia, I meant it when I told you last time, you can ask me anything. If I can't answer your question I will tell you, but I can guarantee you there are not many question I refuse to answer." I say as I look at her and she tells me she will try to remember that.

"Theseus, how will your parents react to Amarah being your second chance Mate?" Delia asks and I actually start laughing. "Sorry, Linus told me he wanted Mom and Dad out of the Pack-house, because he knows they will try to belittle her every change they get and I know they will make unpleasant remarks to and about her.

However, just before we came here Amarah asked a question and even though I had not been in the room I wanted to answer her. I no longer think I need to protect her from my parents, I think someone might need to protect them from her." I answer her.

Everyone is rolling in the aisles as Amarah just stares at me and the twinkle in her eyes tells me I better behave myself the rest of the day or I will be the one being punished, making Linus purr at the idea. "Oh hush, you like the idea as much as I do." He growls in my head.

I know I have to focus on something else before I toss my Mate over my shoulder and bring her back to our room in my suite. "Ione, Amarah told me the two of you have been talking about building a new Pack-house. Can you tell me a bit more about it, other than the fact that it will become huge."

Ione explains to the others why it would become huge, but I know I like having our Betas, Gammas and Deltas with us on the same floor and it looks like the others like that idea as well. "There is also another reason why it would become so huge.

Amarah wants a private office where we can work without getting disturb and she wants enough workspace in there for all of us, so you can imagine that it will become a very large floor." Ione says and I like the idea of one large office. It will make it easier for any of us if we need to be close to our Mate or Pups.

I ask her to describe the living arrangements for each family, "If we take the current design into consideration we would make five Quarters on the top floor, just like the three there are on the top floor of our current Pack-house. Those are for the Alpha, Beta and Gamma, the Quarters for the Deltas are on the floor below ours.

Our so-called front doors open into a hallway that leads to an overflow, the stairs are located on one side of the Pac-house and I believe it would be smart if there are stairs on both sides. It will make it easier and faster to get down the stairs." Ione explains.

I let her explanation run through my mind as I finish my breakfast and I think they have thought about it carefully, but I think I might have a few ideas of my own. "Amarah, what if the Quarters only have a small living room in case you want to spend time with just your own family?

A large living room and kitchen for everyone to use and of course a private office with the Quarters behind it, it will still be a large top floor. However, it will also mean larger floors below them and you can use them for the Omegas to live on, maybe mix them with unmated males and females that don't want to stay with their parents for whatever reason.

On the ground floor you can have a main dining room where everyone can have breakfast, lunch or dinner if they want to, a main living room anyone can use and in which you can entertain your guests. An office or two and a large meeting room for official meetings." I say.

I see Ione working on a tablet and by the time I have finished my coffee she turns the tablet towards me and Amarah, the top floor and the ground floor are done with a full lay-out. She took everything I said into consideration and it actually looks amazing.

The tablet passes around the table and even her Father seems pleased with the plans he sees in front of him. Amarah asks me where I thought we should build the new Pack-house and when I tell her what I have in mind she smiles at me, "That would be the perfect place to build it, I think everyone will like that spot." She says.

We talk about taking down both old Pack-houses once the building is done and to use those spots to build a few extra cottages for families. Just as we are discussing the situation with the Omegas in my Pack I hear the ding from the elevator doors and the three males we thought were her Beta, Gamma and Delta walk in.

All three of them stare at everyone seated at the table and they all start smiling when they realize what is going on, "Alpha, congratulations. It was about damn time you found your second chance Mate." One of them says and he turns his attention towards me.

"Alpha Theseus, my name is Nestor and I am Alpha Amarah's Head Warrior. I mean no disrespect, but if you ever hurt her I will make sure no one ever finds your body." He says and his Wolf is right there with him. Linus pushes forward to answer him, "I think my men will help you if that day ever arrives."
