

Arabella 1601

Chapter 1601

Kenneth was watching the news. He didn't expect his daughter and son's concert had taken the local community by storm, and he couldn't help but overhear the conversation between Betty and his wife moments earlier. He turned to his wife, "Did Serena get up early to make us breakfast and catch a cold in the process?"

"You didn't notice? We sent her next door to reflect on her behavior, and she's been busy flipping between cooking and writing letters. After finding they don't work, now she claims she's caught a cold."

Kenneth was a bit taken aback, "Are you suggesting she's faking it? But hasn't Dr. Osmond checked? Perhaps we should ask him?"

"No need for that. If Serena's set on being sick, she'll cover her tracks well."

"So you're saying she's playing the martyr? Pretending to be sick just to get our attention?"

moving toward the bed, "It certainly appears that reflection from Serena, but it seemed all she no doubt. Even in this bitter cold, the girl had the audacity to risk her own health. If she didn't spare herself, one came to check on her. It was only after a while that Betty sent her a message - Louisa had been informed of Serena's condition but had with each passing moment. She couldn't believe it. Not breakfast, nor letters, screenshot Betty's message and sent it to Martha, saying. [I wore just a thin blouse and froze for five hours in the courtyard, hoping to move them. But it seems they have no place for at her bedside at the first hint of illness, showering her with love and comfort. It was impossible they just

Mom and Dad would call the designer over to Normally around this time, the designer had already come to their house, because during the New Year, a lot of relatives would pay them a visit. Serena would change up to nine times a day, but now, she wasn't even sure if she could wear one for New Year.

In the previous time, her outfits were always able to impress all the people present, the envy of friends and family. Just thinking about the scene would make her gloat in satisfaction. But this year, it was probably Arabella who might just steal the spotlight.

How was she going to do? She certainly couldn't bear letting it happen!! She would never allow Arabella to upstage her!

[Martha, please help me. What can I do to make my parents forgive me?] Serena sent another message to Martha.

After a tense wait, Martha's reply came through. It was a plan - a good one. It was exactly what Serena needed to do.