

Arabella 1647

Chapter 1647

Although the female bodyguards retreated respectfully, Arabella caught a glimpse of them whispering into their earpieces as the door closed, probably signaling for additional security to guard the perimeter and ensure the princess's safety at all times.

"Queen Abby, I adore your design philosophy. You're incredibly talented; each piece you create is stunning."

Princess Leah smiled with an elegance that was both poised and dignified. Her beauty was famously breathtaking. Though she seldom appeared in the media, her striking looks were the subject of much admiration. Her features seemed as though they had been meticulously crafted by the hand of God. And it wasn't just her face that turned heads; her fashion sense had many commoners scrambling to emulate her style.

"I'm honored that you appreciate my work, Your Highness."

"Would you be interested in making QY the exclusive brand for the royal household? From now on, it would only cater to members of the royal family."

Arabella understood the proposition. They wanted QY to serve the royals exclusively because of their unique status and the nobility it entailed.

Although QY's designs were unique and avoided the embarrassment of dress-clashes, if the brand were used by the daughters of mere millionaires or local tycoons, it would seem frivolous and improper for the royals to don the same.

brand as a fresh identity, smile widened in delight. She hadn't expected

I've invited you today is not only to discuss a long-term collaboration but also to commission you to design a wardrobe capable of gracing a her request, Arabella stood up, protocols; aside from handshakes, any Leah's shoulders or any remember all that?" Princess Leah was surprised that Arabella didn't jot down any figures," after taking the measurements, Arabella inquired about the princess's preferences and kindred they felt, especially when Arabella sketched out a couple of was completely won over by Arabella's design genius after seeing the colored renditions of colors and styles was unexpectedly delightful. Arabella then discussed was even more stunning than before, the ensemble exuding

She even included sketches of the princess, illustrating her in various styles - playful, proper, mysterious, and dignified.

"I never thought you'd be so good at drawing people too," the princess felt an incredible connection with Arabella, especially drawn to her serene presence.

"Is there anything you would like to change or add, Your Highness?"

"Not at all, it's simply perfect." The princess beamed as she browsed the designs on the tablet, "Let's proceed with your creations."

It was astonishing that Arabella could draft so many beautiful designs in such a short span.

"Let me also design a few pairs of shoes for you," Arabella suggested, proceeding to sketch footwear to complement each style.

Throughout the session, the princess's face glowed with satisfaction and joy, "You're truly talented. Apart from apparel, do you also design other items? Maybe home furnishings, curtains, and such?"