

Arabella 1693

Chapter 1693

She initially offered 40 million dollars.

"Doesn't Sean's life worth 35 million to you?" Steward had never expected this gutsy young woman to haggle so fiercely. In all his time, besides Sean, he'd never met anyone with such nerve.

"Once I've recovered, not even wings could you help you fly away," Sean carried a warning, a smile played on his lips the entire time.

"Good luck catching me first." Upon saying this, Arabella asked in a casual manner, "Can we proceed with the surgery now?"

The audacity of this girl seemed to catch everyone off guard; every bodyguard in the room was a mix of shock and awe.

Who in the world was she?

To be so daring in front of Sean.

Steward glanced at Sean and, seeing no sign of disapproval, warned Arabella in a low voice, "If you do any tricks, it won't be just you at risk—everyone you care about also won't make it out alive."

"Don't worry, Steward. I said I'd save him, I will see it through to the very end."

"How sure are you?"

"One hundred percent."

rate for their surgeries,

a few doctors here who'll join you in

I would certainly need a world-class surgeons as woman

several esteemed

"Sean."

of Arabella, and her

"Dr. Bell, you're here?"

title not only surprised Sean but Bell? Can it be really you? Sean brought you in to perform the surgery. That means, we're set simply stated, "I need two assistants being part of your team?" Dr. Anne volunteered eagerly, her admiration for Arabella evident. "And this is Doreen, she's also a

Get the patient to the

"Doreen, I'll take Dr. Bell to get ready, and you take Sean to the OR." Anne immediately switched to fangirl mode and quickly led Arabella to change into surgery attire.

The revelation that the gutsy young woman was Dr. Bell left everyone in a state of shock.

Horace then boasted, "Now you see who our boss is, right? I told you before, so many big shots have been trying to get our boss to operate, but she's too busy to bother. The fact that she could conveniently save "your" Sean, that is Sean's good fortune."

Steward was about to lose his temper.

"Hey, don't forget, your Sean's life will soon be in our boss's hands. Be nice to me! I skipped breakfast to bring our boss over for Sean's surgery."

Steward didn't expect Horace to be so cheeky, but considering the upcoming surgery, he had no choice but to instruct his men to fetch Horace some breakfast.

Horace, with a smug and triumphant smile, added, "Operating is hard work, make sure to buy our boss something extra."

Steward endured again and signaled his men to follow through.

Meanwhile, the man on the sickbed, upon hearing the young woman was Dr. Bell, recalled how the usually aloof and reserved Anne instantly turned into an adoring fan in her presence.

Heh, this young woman, not only skilled in combat and driving, but she's also Dr. Bell.