Chapter 882

Chapter 882

"After you wrap up your stuff in Dawnstar, you can come find me in Lidaria,;" Arabella said, pausing for a moment before adding, "Be a good boy."

Romeo fell silent. He initially wanted to refuse, but her last plea melted his resolve.

"I'll be just fine. Besides, aren't you sending someone to watch out for me?"

Romeo had no choice but to acquiesce, "Fine, you go ahead today, I'll come find you tomorrow."

Carl voiced his confusion, "Boss, how on earth are we supposed to finish all the work in Dawnstar today? Are you planning to have me work non-stop for 24 hours?! Is there no justice?! I'm not a machine!"

"You'd better keep your men well hidden."

Romeo couldn't help but give a little smile, "Will do."

She had proven to be quite adept at detecting his surveillance. She always managed to sniff out whoever he assigned to watch her.

Reflections Villa.

Serena was surprised to see Clark returning with Arabella. Had Clark gone out earlier just to meet up with Arabella?

With that thought in mind, a feeling of unease began to stir within her.

Clark headed to the dressing room to grab a few changes of clothes, then knocked on Louisa's door, mentioning that he and Bella were going on a trip abroad.

"You finally got your head on straight!" Louisa exclaimed cheerfully, "I'm leaving Bella in your hands, Clark. Make sure to take good care of her. Stay at the best hotels, take her wherever she wants to go, buy her whatever she wants to eat. And especially remember to take care of her health as it's getting cold, don't let her catch a cold."

Louisa, thinking that her son was taking Bella on a holiday, was both excited and incessant in her instructions.

All of them were thinking about how to take care of Bella.

"Alright, I've got it."

Clark didn't let on about the potential dangers of their trip, intentionally leading his mother to believe that they were merely going on a holiday.

He patiently waited for his mother to finish her instructions before leaving.

In the living room.

Seeing Clark with a suitcase, Serena couldn't help but ask, "Clark, where are you going?"

"Got some business to attend to abroad; Clark patted her head lightly, "Next time, I'll take you along."

Serena wanted to probe further into where he was going and whether it was really work-related.

But seeing Arabella descending the stairs and Clark moving towards her, she felt left out.

Noticing that Arabella didn't have any luggage with her, Clark couldn't help but curiously ask, "Aren't you bringing any luggage?"

"It's already on the plane' Arabella whispered.

Clark nodded and said, "Alright, let's get going then."

The plane was parked nearby at Reflections Villa. The siblings left together.

Serena was left confused. Clark said that he was going abroad, so why was he leaving with Arabella?

"Serena; Martha rushed over to Serena's side, whispering anxiously, "I overheard your mom on the phone with your dad. She said Clark is taking Ms. Bella to Iridia for a few days!"

"What did you say!"

"It's true!"

Serena's face turned pale. Her hands clenched into tight fists as she watched their retreating figures. She couldn't believe it. She had just requested Clark to take her to Iridia, but he told her that he was too busy.

And the next thing she knew, he was taking Arabella abroad?!

She had wanted to take pictures with Clark, she had so much plans in mind.

But Clark had left her behind and was only taking Arabella?!
