

ARCEUS' PIRATE JOURNEY

Chapter 16: Let's take Kaido for wool

Chapter 16 Let's take Kaido's wool

Quinn looked at the newspaper and said.

The newspapers wrote about the leaking of the pipeline caused by the meteorite, and the eventual explosion, but it did not occupy much space.

"Looks like you two don't have to have a headache for now."

Quinn took a brief look and handed the newspaper to Shaina. At this time, Shaina and Jhin were both ordinary people. There were only two people on this boat, so naturally, there was no need to worry about their identities being exposed.

"Drug production laboratory? These people really dare to say it"

Looking at the description in the newspaper, Shaina felt annoyed.

A research institute on the red soil continent was razed to the ground. Naturally, this kind of thing cannot be concealed, but the essence of that research institute has become an important place for researching drugs under their description.

He didn't mention a word about the Lunalia tribe, but he reiterated the characteristics of the Lunalia tribe on the front page, and said that if he provided information, he could get a high reward after the news was confirmed.

"Actually, there is indeed a drug research institute, which has the world's top analytical institutions and equipment." Quinn was only half-speaking, and she was defeated in the eyes of Shaina who was about to kill.

But what he said is also true, and this institute has developed very efficient drugs, because their test products are all human, and they are direct drug experiments on people of all races.

As for human rights? Are people from non-allied countries counted as human beings, and slaves counted as human beings? Those people are just a consumable there.

The Lunaria are special and have extremely high resistance, but they are very similar to humans, and they are simply perfect experimental subjects who can better observe drug reactions.

The newspaper emphasized the importance of the institute and stated that it would be rebuilt in a short time.

"Let them fix it, the big deal is to destroy it again."

Arceus's tone did not fluctuate, and he did not care about the impact of the destruction there.

Momonga's human nature became more and more indifferent after being transformed into an undead, and his behavior became more and more close to the undead. Arceus was similar to him, but completely different.

He is the master himself, but is influenced by Arceus in the way some things are done, such as an extreme aversion to deception.

In his heyday, Arceus did not talk about pinching a few Pokémon, but the God of Creation who could directly create a world, let alone destroy a research institute. If someone really touched his bottom line, he would destroy the country. Can also do it.

Search for the slate, find your strength, and then overturn the throne. This is what you will do in the future.

The root of a big tree is already rotten, and it is useless to cut off any number of dead branches and rotten leaves. Only the root can solve the problem.

Or, a new tree.

"Master Holy Beast, you don't need to take action, I will use the power you give to burn them all to scum."

Then Shaina continued to read the newspaper to see what had happened during this time, she and Jhin had been out of touch with the world for a while.

It is worth mentioning that the world government not only did not mention the Lunaria, even Kaido's space is somewhat different from the fact, it just said that he escaped from prison again, and described the fact that he is a capable one .

Looking at the information in the newspaper, Arceus even regretted that there was no chance to make money.

"Kaido's identity as a capable person has been exposed, I originally wanted him to pick some wool."

"Wool?"

"Yeah, now none of you are wanted, only Kaido has a bounty. You pretend to be a bounty hunter to send Kaido to the naval base and let him escape by himself after taking the bounty. What a great opportunity, speaking of the navy. Is the bounty settled immediately?"

"If the base has enough funds, it will be settled immediately. If it is not enough, it will be sent over after a while. With the reward offered by the boss of Kaido, the Nanhai branch may not be able to get the money."

Most pirates have a bounty, and the profession of bounty hunter came into being. The corruption situation in the branch is indeed more serious than that in the headquarters, but for this part of the money, they generally do not move it. The higher the bounty, the less likely it will be. It will be like this.

Even the navy who is messing around wants their jurisdiction to be more stable and peaceful, and being able to send the pirates to the naval base means that they are stronger than this pirate. In order to point Bailey to force a stronger pirate, that is Stupid stuff.

But it's okay to run into such idiots once in a while.

"1273 million Bailey. It's a pity. If you can do this twice, the funds will be enough."

After listening to Arceus' plan, Quinn was moved. 1.273 billion is Kaido's bounty now. Now Bailey's purchasing power is much higher than after 30 years. Even if he succeeds once, he Don't worry about research funding.

As one of the veterans of the Beast Pirates, Kui thus made a considerable contribution.

Everything about this pirate group is now thanks to Quinn's great dedication. He prepared the boat, made the route, and even spent the money.

You can't expect three people to escape from the research institute, and one who has just hatched from an egg to be rich. Kaido was a little moral when he was young. At first, he ate from the kingdom, and after being wanted, he ate from the navy. Give yourself to the navy and escape when you're full.

That's why Arceus had the idea of taking Kaido's wool. He was used to it. He used to go to the prison ship to eat a buffet, and this time he shouldn't even refuse to eat and take it.

But the premise is that Kaido's ability is not exposed, otherwise a large number of sea towers will lock him, Kaido will have to become a Muggle, and the guarding navy will have to waste human resources to rescue him.

Although according to the description in memory, Kaido was arrested dozens of times and lived well, but who knows how he did it, it was really funny, his No. 1 worker was gone.

"By the way, Quinn, how much money do you have on you?"

"There are still a few million, but it doesn't matter, just grab one of the boats. Isn't Kaido going to recruit men, they will have boats in their hands."

"No, it's just that I need to buy something during resupply. Kaido! Stop sleeping! Wake up!"

Arceus was gossiping with Quinn while reading the news in the newspaper, but stopped in the middle of the conversation because he saw some special news in the newspaper.

[John Pirates appeared in the South China Sea, and the 277th branch of the Navy was attacked. ]

None of the pirates in the world would blatantly attack a naval base, nor would they have the ability to do so, and it was also clearly written in the newspaper that the John Pirates came from the great route.

He now needs Kaido to confirm if this John is the John they are looking for.

(end of this chapter)