

ARCEUS' PIRATE JOURNEY

Chapter 19: peeps in the sky

Chapter 19 Peepers in the Sky

Although the phone worm has hung up, the phone worm's expression has not completely recovered. From the phone worm's just closed eyes, it can be seen that its expression is exactly the same as that of John on the chair.

In the costume, there is a mask-like patterned prop on the shell of this phone bug. This is a personalized accessory that the owner equips the phone bug to show the difference of the phone bug.

The phone bug is generally similar in appearance to its owner, and its expression when talking is imitating the person on the other end of the phone.

The phone bug on the desktop is somewhat different from Captain John's attire at this time, but it is somewhat similar.

Picked up a bottle of wine from the table next to him, removed the cork, and drank it directly from the mouth of the bottle, with an expression of enjoyment on his face.

"The base commander's collection, these navy days are really nourishing."

said and walked to the window, looking through the window at the school grounds that originally belonged to the navy, but there are no longer trained navies here, replaced by a group of messy pirates.

Fighting, brawling, gambling, doing all kinds of things without rules, dividing their gangs into different pirate groups, and it seems that a large-scale fight will break out at any time.

"Captain John, another pirate group has come to join us. Now we have more than 70 ships and more than 6,000 pirates. John's large fleet has almost assembled! Those who have offered a reward of over 10 million are all There are seven people, when are we going to find that legendary treasure?"

John's expression didn't change, whether it was more than 70 ships, more than 6,000 pirates, or the pirates who offered a reward of more than 10 million, none of them could arouse his interest.

The firepower of the pirate ship has a natural gap compared with the naval warships. Many of the more than 70 ships are small boats that can only take dozens of people. Compared with the warships originally in this base, they are cloud mud. difference.

Now their main firepower also relies on the two captured warships and the arms stored in Khakila Island.

That was the supply that the navy had not distributed some time ago, and it all fell into the hands of this group of pirates.

"Don't worry, this is the biggest treasure in the world, enough for everyone to share, and more people can have a faster grasp."

"But Captain John, there are more and more people, and the supplies in the base are only enough for us for three days."

"Then go grab it, do you want me to teach you about this kind of thing?"

"Has already robbed all of Khakira Island, which is not a commercial island, there is not much material on it, and we have more and more people."

The 277th branch of the navy stationed only a thousand people, but a large warship in the headquarters has more troops, but after all, this is the four seas, and a branch with a thousand people is already too much.

This place originally stored enough supplies for this branch for two months, but with the influx of pirates and the extravagance of pirates, these foodstuffs are being consumed at an extremely fast rate.

And the changes here cut off all the merchant ships, and I haven't seen fresh vegetables and fruits for a long time, which is one of the reasons why those pirates often break out into fights to vent their emotions.

"Captain John, you'd better go and appease everyone. I can't see that your newcomers have no clue."

These pirates who have gathered temporarily have no cohesion at all. They came here entirely for John's fierce name, and after they came here, they waited blindly, which made many people's patience lost.

Every time this time, John needs to go out and appease them.

"It's really troublesome, in this way, you go and tell them first, we will leave in seven days, those who don't want to wait can leave, and I'll go out right away."

At this time, on the school grounds that originally belonged to the Navy, a fight was taking place, and no one knew the cause. The people around were coaxing, wanting to see them fight to the death.

"Captain, do we have to wait? That Captain John has been waiting here for too long, what is he waiting for? Waiting for the navy to come around?"

Not everyone is a fool. The capture of the naval base will inevitably lead to the siege of the navy. They thought that John would take the opportunity to recruit some troops, and then pour into the great waterway, but he has been delayed here.

"It's been delayed for so long, it's a pity to leave now, and he's also a pirate, so it's impossible to make any deal with the navy. You all saw that day, he chopped off the colonel's head, and there is no possibility of reconciliation at all. ."

And in a corner where no one was around, an inconspicuous pirate picked up the phone and made a call.

"John still didn't act, he seemed to be waiting for something, and he still couldn't be sure whether the treasure in his mouth was Locks' treasure."

After saying this, he didn't wait for the response from the other side, he put away the phone bug and left here. He is a spy from CP7, because the activity range is closest to here, he was sent directly by the chief of CP.

After the Rocks Pirates were annihilated, the World Government did not find the treasure of Rocks, and that huge wealth was also moved by the World Government, so it would naturally send people to pay attention to the situation here.

If John moves in advance, he is responsible for passing information to the above, and if John tries to leave alone, he also has to send information so that the government can make new countermeasures.

At this time, John also left his room and started to draw cakes for the pirates below with the navy's loudspeaker. His words seemed to resonate very much. Whenever he said a sentence, the group of pirates would appear for a while. cheer.

The scorching sun made the temperature on the school grounds not low, but the excitement of these pirates was not affected by the scorching sun.

Treasure is very attractive to them, which is also the purpose of most pirates going to sea.

Then a gust of wind blew, and the clouds that blew cast a shadow on the school grounds, which made many pirates feel a lot more comfortable, but they didn't notice that the cloud was lower.

And the shape of the clouds was not right. Arceus and his party also arrived at Khakila Island at this time, and at this time they were observing the situation below on Kaido's flame cloud.

also saw John standing in the center giving a speech.

"This guy's voice and tone are the same as John's, but he doesn't say what John's guy would say at all. He's really a strange guy."

In the sky, Kaido was also listening to John's speech and made his own evaluation.

Although they were still high in the sky, the sound at this distance could not be transmitted, but the audio-visual enhanced by seeing and seeing allows him to hear what John said, and John's words fell into his ears without a word.

Compared with Armed Domineering, the abilities of seeing and hearing are more diverse. According to different users, their seeing and hearing colors also have different abilities, and some special people have their innate unique seeing and hearing colors.

(end of this chapter)