

Arceus 28

Chapter 28 Elbaf's Spear and the New Slate

The light gradually enlarged, the entire deep sea was illuminated by this golden light, and a new sun seemed to appear on the bottom of the sea.

As the field of vision gradually became clearer, the figure of this giant beast was fully revealed. A super-large sea king of the monkfish type, it was not the sun that glowed, but the lure on the top of the monkfish's head.

Another name for monkfish is lantern fish, which is why they have this nickname because of the lantern-like hunting tool on their head.

In the deep sea, they can use the small lanterns on their heads to attract phototactic creatures, they are the fishermen in the depths of the sea.

It's just that the size of this monkfish is too big, and some islands are not as big as its body.

Neptune may be of any species, even if it has the head of a giraffe or a rhinoceros, it is normal for a monkfish type of Neptune.

And the reason why it floated up was because of a pain in the body.

The straight line between the two points is the shortest. The way Arceus drives the slate is to let the slate fly directly to him. He doesn't know where the slate is. There may be something stuck in the process of flying.

For example, now the slate is stuck on the stomach wall of this sea king, and it is still forcibly flying upward. Although the slate of more than three meters is not even a toothpick for this sea king, but the thorns on the stomach wall Pain still makes it irritable.

Floating up will ease this pain, so it also begins to swim upstream under the pull of the slate.

The IQ of the sea kings is indeed much higher than that of ordinary sea beasts. It can be said that they are smart, but this is only from the point of view of sea beasts.

"Kaido, that thing is coming out, get ready."

"Ah, I saw it, I just have a move to deal with the big guy."

Even if Arceus didn't say anything, the tumbling sea surface and the light in the deep sea had already entered Kaido's field of vision.

The huge sea kings emerged from the sea, and the light from the lure on the top of the head even covered the brilliance of the moon. Even in the night, you could see its red skin, and at this position, Arceus controlled his own slate. Power is also stronger.

The slate broke out from the body of the giant monkfish under the guidance of Arceus. Although the size of the wound was similar to the eye of a needle for this giant sea king, it could heal quickly with the self-healing speed of the sea king.

But the slate drilled out of the body also caused it to feel severe pain. After the slate was summoned, a more dazzling light erupted. This light removed the dirt on his body, and then flew to Arceus and merged with him. in the body.

And the traces left by the slate in the night sky were also captured by this giant sea king. Its wisdom told it that its pain was inseparable from the two little points in front of it.

A terrifying roar came from the monkfish. It just looked like a monkfish. The structure of the body was already very different from the monkfish. They belonged to marine monsters, not fish.

The huge mouth opened, and the size of its sharp fangs was comparable to the size of the patrol boat they had taken before. Judging by the extent of the mouth opening, it was trying to swallow the island they were on.

"Is this guy a little too big?" Kaido also had to sigh at the size of this thing, and then spread his feet and raised his mace towards the monkfish.

"Just try this move, the giant's move."

The muscles in his arms bulged, he slammed the mace down heavily, and then a shock wave with a huge range was swept out of his hands.

"Elbaf's gun, the mighty country!"

Elbaf, the kingdom where the giants live, they are naturally huge and powerful even if they don't exercise much, and almost every giant is a natural warrior.

The spear of Elbaf is a move of the giants. Outsiders usually don't know the skills of the giants. Kaido is not familiar with the giants, but he is very familiar with the aunt.

Aunt not only gave him the phantom species of fish and fruit, but also taught Kaido this rather powerful skill.

And the giants also have combined attack skills. The hegemony released by the blue ghost Tori and the red ghost Brocky can directly penetrate an island eater, which is a giant sea king like this monkfish.

Kaido can also team up with Big Mom to release Bahai. As a prerequisite for a joint attack, the power of a single player is the foundation, so Kaido masters the moves of this giant family.

Auntie has given Kaido a lot of help in terms of moves and abilities. With Auntie's character, these two may have an affair.

But at this time, Kaido has not yet reached his peak, and he is the mighty country he unleashed. It is inevitable that his power is somewhat insufficient, and he could not directly destroy this sea king like the combined attack of the giants.

just opened a big hole in this monkfish, but in terms of the vitality of the sea king, this thing is still alive.

And it also understands that these little things are very dangerous, and even have the ability to kill themselves.

The huge body began to sink. This monkfish wanted to escape this dangerous environment, but the huge body caused it to sink very slowly, and it took a long time to dive back into the water.

In this neutral position, it was attacked by Arceus's destruction of death light again, and there was another penetrating wound on its huge body. Pieces of the island, and blood gushing out of the holes in the body.

So it seems that it did not eat the slate, but when it was eating an island, it happened to swallow the slate that fell on the island.

The light above his head is still bright, but this huge monkfish has sunk into the deep sea.

The slate is completely integrated into the body, and the lost power returns again.

Kaido sensed a change from Arceus. When he just absorbed the slate, a dark and ferocious aura came from him. Although it has dissipated now, Kaido is sure that his perception is fine.

"That breath just now."

"A part of my power, although not what I want most right now, but it's not bad."

What he wants most is super power. In reality, the super power system has a wide range of applications. Whether it is to change the form or the power of thought, the practicality is very high, but the slate in this monkfish is an evil slate of evil face, so Only Kaido could sense the vicious aura.

The strength returned to 3/18, each additional slate meant that he had mastered another series of skills, and the practicability of the skills of the evil series was also not low, but it was not as convenient as the super series in life.

With the slate in hand, Kaido and Arceus returned to the original island, but at this time, there was a lizard running on the sea.
