

ARMIPOTENT Chapter 855

"Childish!" Another voice came from another side. Herman and The Blue Vest's Guild Leader looked toward the voice. Another big group came to the entrance; they were the Amazon Guild. "Can you be a little mature? Does it matter who will enter it first?" The man in the middle questioned The Blue Vest's vice guild leader, Donald Callahan.

"Tch," Donald Callahan clicked his tongue, "Look who's coming, the traitor!"

"Traitor?" The new Amazon Guild's leader, Ninho, met with Donald Callahan's eyes. He walked toward Donald Callahan, "Can you be responsible for what you said just now? Do you think we will quit the alliance if not, you greedy bastards try to control the Amazon Guild just because we lost the previous leader?"

Donald Callahan took two steps back as Ninho was quite scary from his perspective. The man was over two meters tall with short hair, but his sharp eyes were enough to intimidate Donald Callahan.

"Just ignore that coward, Boss. That guy is bold and courageous just because he has the numbers, but I bet if it's The Emperor, he will cower behind his guild leader or maybe wet himself," The woman with long black wavy hair spoke. She was the new Amazon Vice Guild Leader, Alexandra. People might think she got the position because she had the look and figure, but in fact, she was an Epic Rank.

Yes, Alexandra was a famous supermodel from Brazil. Alexandra Padilha Serra was her full name, and she was renowned for being one of the top ten hottest models in the world. People might think she seduced the current leader to get into the current position, but in fact, she was the second strongest after Ninho in the Amazon Guild. On top of that, she was the mascot for the Amazon Guild thanks to her, the Amazon Guild managed to gather a lot of new recruits in their region.

"Shut the f*ck up, B*tch!" Donald Callahan pointed his index finger at Alexandra and swore. Alexandra showed no reaction to the swear, but the Amazon Guild's members had the opposite direction. They drew out their weapon and were ready to fight the Blue Vest Guild for swearing at their Vice Guild Leader. However, fighting between the factions inside the city was just impossible.

[You are in the safe zone! Fighting is not allowed in the city, and the violators will be expelled from the city and banned from entering the city for a month!]

The system notification rang in every Amazon Guild members' ears. Alexandra raised her right hand and motioned to her subordinate to lower their weapon, "Chill out, guys. We can't do anything to them here because the System protects them, but we can do anything to them inside the tower."

"Do you hear it, Boss? We can't fight inside the city, so these people can't stop us from entering the tower. Just ignore them," Alexandra walked ahead of her guild leader. When she passed Scot Moran, the Blue Vest's Guild Leader, she smiled, "You shall consider changing your vice guild leader because he may lead The Blue Vest Guild to its ruin."

The Amazon Guild walked by between the First Order Guild and The Blue Vest Guild; no one stopped them from entering the tower after a little friction.

"Let's ignore these clowns, Sir," Frans spoke to Herman Bonivido. Herman nodded and led his people to the tower. Since the System prohibited the players from fighting with each other in the city, they could not stop the others from entering the tower. However, Herman realized something that imprinted on many people, including himself, The Emperor.

That was the Tang Empire Leader's nickname, the code name used to address the strongest individual on Earth. When Alexandra brought that name, the cocky Blue Vest Guild members were silenced immediately. People would laugh when the man addressed himself as an Emperor before the Earth Tournament, but no one would dare to joke around about it now. No one dared to take the consequence of offending The Emperor.

Herman Bonivido shook his head and tapped his cheek two times, 'No, let's focus on the tower expedition. Let's think about the Tang Empire later.'

The First Order Guild was the third guild to enter the dimensional tower after the Tang Empire and the Amazon Guild. Yes, while the Uprising Guild came earlier than the other factions, they had not entered the tower yet.

*** **

The Tang Empire's main force settled in Miragul's settlement. After having a further conversation with the surviving Miragul, the reason there was nothing in this area was because of them. No beast and monsters dared to enter this area because this was Miragul's territory, and the beasts that tried to occupy this area had been killed by Miragul. As for the settlement, it was used to trap the human traveler, so that was why the house was empty.

"Based on what Miragul told us, the Drakengard lives in that direction, around a week of traveling to reach its region, but we can't trust them completely. So we will stay in this place for a few days and investigate the first floor, especially the southern region where the rumored Drakengard lives," Zhang Mengyao held a brief meeting with the others. "I know we should be able to trust them after the oath ceremony, but we don't know what they haven't told us yet."

"I will go to the south, General Zhang Mengyao," Lu An was the first one to speak after Zhang Mengyao. "With my speed, I can cut seven days of traveling to four or maybe three days."

Zhang Mengyao looked at Lu An for a moment. She did not want to send him to the dangerous place alone; no, in fact, she wanted to decline the idea of Lu An going alone to the Drakengard's den since they did not know how strong the King of the first floor was. She knew Lu An well; he would fight the boss alone without asking for reinforcement if he managed to find Drakengard first.

"I will allow you to go there, but not alone. At least, bring another three to five people with you," Zhang Mengyao stated the condition. She could tell that Lu An did not like the notion of bringing other people with him, but she insisted since she did not want anything to happen to him. This young man was too reckless, just like Tang Shaoyang.

"I think I know someone who can go with Sir Lu An," Moonsong was also concerned with Lu An's well-being, but he could not leave his post to accompany Lu An since he was the head of The Luminous Legion. "Revalor alone should be enough, and he can follow Sir Lu An's speed as well. And then, Revalor's scouting ability is the best of the best, so he can easily find this Drakengard."

"Good. You must bring Revalor if you want to go to the south; this is an order," Zhang Mengyao did not want rejection from Lu An. This was not just a normal exploration like on Earth. They knew nothing of this place, so she would use his authority to force Lu An to listen to her.

"Alright. I will bring one Miragul, Yeon Hee, and Revalor with me. I need that demon to be our guide," Lu An nodded his head as he left them to get prepared. The meeting continued without Lu An, dividing the task into what they should do for the investigation.

*** **

Lu An, Yeon Hee, Revalor, and Yeon Hee left the settlement right away as they did not have much to prepare. However, there was additional personnel within the group, Helia, the Chief of the Light Bombyx Mori Tribe. She was one of the best healers within the Healer Division, so Kang Xue insisted that Lu An bring her with them. The elemental beast had a high speed, too, so she did not have an issue following Lu An. No matter how strong Lu An and Revalor were, Kang Xue wanted them to bring the best healer just in case something happened during the journey.

"I don't like this," Lu An muttered in a low voice. He did not like bringing too many people because that would make him constantly worried about them. Because of that, he would not be able to move freely as he always had this thought on him.

"Then you should leave me behind instead," Yeon Hee replied. She was confused why Lu An insisted on bringing her with him.

Lu An pointed his eyes with his two fingers and directed the finger to her eyes afterward, telling her that he was watching her. Yeon Hee immediately realized why he had brought her with him. She was still under his watch; that was why he brought her. That left her speechless because she was in the same situation as them, and the only chance for her to get out of the tower was with the Tang Empire. She would not do something stupid because of that.

Lu An shrugged as they continued the trip to the south. In the first three hours of the fast run to the south, they encountered nothing. The forest seemed to be dreaded by the other creatures. Then the group came out of the forest and arrived in the open area, in the green field, with a refreshing breeze hitting their faces.

Lu An felt like he had arrived at the edge of the football field, albeit this place was much, much bigger than the football field.

"This giant field is Minke Tribe's territory. They are ferocious beastmen that regard all living things as prey," Miragul explained to Lu An once they stepped into the grass field.

"We should avoid them because our mission is to investigate Drakengard. Let the others take care of this Minke Tribe," Lu An made the decision for the group.

While they expected to encounter the beastmen from the Minke Tribe, they encountered another interesting group instead. Lu An and his group stopped their journey temporarily because a big group of humans blocked their path.