

The Amazing Son In Law/Super Hero Charlie Wade - Charlie Wade Chapter 7292

While charlie Wade and his wife were dining with Tawana and Trevor, Don Albert was rarely seen without his phone, swiping incessantly.

Tonight, major social media platforms were flooded with news of Tana's visit to Aurous Hill, and Don Albert was surprised to notice that Heaven Springs was frequently mentioned. He kept coming across the name of his own restaurant.

This brought to mind what charlie Wade had said earlier. With the restaurant's growing reputation, opening a branch seemed like a natural next step.

Outside, a large group of reporters waited patiently, hoping Tawana would grant them an interview after dinner.

Even if an interview wasn't possible, they were eager to capture exclusive photos or videos to publish.

Some reporters even expressed to the waitstaff their desire to interview the owner of Heaven Springs.

When this request was relayed to Don Albert, he became visibly nervous.

Once, Don Albert had been the underground king of the city. Back then, he was proud, feeling as though he had reached the pinnacle of his life.

However, since meeting charlie Wade, he had come to see himself differently. He realized his humble beginnings and current modest circumstances paled in comparison to charlie Wade, a young master from a prestigious family.

The underground emperor identity he once took pride in now felt like the root of his deepest insecurities.

Despite this, charlie Wade never looked down on him. Instead, he consistently supported him, and now, to help him establish a new career, charlie Wade had even invited a celebrity of Tawana's stature to dine at his restaurant.

This gesture deepened Don Albert's gratitude toward charlie Wade while also intensifying his sense of inadequacy.

He wasn't worried that charlie Wade would look down on him; his real fear was that if he became famous, someone might uncover his past.

If that happened, not only could Heaven Springs's reputation suffer greatly, but even charlie Wade, his prominent friend, might be dragged into the fallout.

For this reason, he didn't dare to accept media interviews and could only instruct the waiter to decline their requests.

At the same time, he resolved to ask charlie Wade at an appropriate moment whether his past might pose challenges to the future of Heaven Springs.

If it did, he would rather not complicate matters. Simply being able to follow charlie Wade and assist him was already more than enough for him.

Over an hour later, charlie Wade, his wife, and Tawana finished their meal.

Tawana carefully wiped her mouth and exclaimed, "The food at this restaurant is excellent! Thank you, Mr. Wade, for your warm hospitality."

charlie Wade smiled and replied, "You'll be staying in Aurous Hill for a few more days. If you have the time, feel free to come back. The owner here is a close friend of mine, and he'll take great care of you on my behalf."

Tawana nodded enthusiastically and said with a smile, "I know how good your relationship with the owner is! That's why I took photos of every dish before eating. I'll post them on my social media later, along with the restaurant's name, to help promote it."

charlie Wade chuckled and said, "That's fantastic. Normally, if I wanted to buy one of your endorsements, I'd need to ask you for it directly. I'm guessing it would cost at least several million U.S. dollars, right?"

Tawana looked slightly embarrassed and explained, "That's true. Since I personally visit the locations I promote, it's a bit more involved. Usually, I need to schedule with my agent for photoshoots and videos, and my current rate is over 20 million U.S. dollars per post."

She added quickly, "But rest assured, Mr. Wade, the promotion I'm doing here is completely free of charge."

charlie Wade nodded with a smile. "Then, on behalf of the owner, I sincerely thank you."

As charlie Wade spoke, he couldn't help but sigh inwardly. Although Tawana was a top international star, she remained remarkably grounded and considerate.

At this moment, Tawana added, “There must be quite a few media reporters outside now. When I step out, I’ll briefly accept their interviews and answer some questions about this place.”

charlie Wade glanced at the time and smiled. “You’ve had a long day—renting a car, rushing here straight from the plane. You must need a good rest. Once we’re done here, you should head back to the hotel early.”

Tawana, however, hesitated and said, “It’s fine, Mr. Wade. We’re not that tired, and we don’t have any work scheduled for today. We can rest well later, so there’s no need to rush back to the hotel.”

charlie Wade thought to himself, You may not be in a hurry, but I need to leave after you. Staying too long might disrupt my wife’s rest.

Trevor, sitting nearby, chimed in, “Baby, you just mentioned accepting interviews with the media. When we get to the hotel, the reporters will likely follow us there, causing more delays. It could take a while to handle them.”

Tawana paused, realizing Trevor had a point. Not wanting to appear overly persistent in front of him, she nodded and said, “In that case, let’s head to the hotel now. Mr. Wade, Mrs. wade, we’ll meet again next time.”

charlie Wade smiled and said, “You should go back to the hotel. We won’t accompany you outside since there are so many reporters waiting. If they find out we dined together, they’ll certainly chase and report on us. We’ll wait until you and the reporters have left before heading out ourselves.”

“Understood.” Tawana stood, shook hands with charlie Wade and Claire, and said, “Thank you both for your warm hospitality. We’ll take our leave now.”

charlie Wade called Don Albert over, and he, along with Claire, escorted Tawana and Trevor to the door. Turning to Don Albert, he said, “Don Albert, please see our guests out.”

“Of course, Master Wade,” Don Albert replied, nodding as he accompanied the two downstairs.

The moment Tawana and Trevor stepped outside, the waiting reporters immediately perked up, their cameras flashing as they captured photos of the two along with Don Albert by their side.

Don Albert escorted the two guests to the door, where the media reporters immediately surged forward. Fortunately, Tawana’s staff formed a barrier, preventing the reporters from crowding her directly.

The reporters eagerly asked questions about Heaven Springs, curious to know why Tawana chose to dine there immediately after getting off the plane and what she thought of the experience.

Tawana praised the service, cuisine, and ambiance of Heaven Springs in front of the cameras, even declaring it, in her personal opinion, as the best Chinese restaurant she had ever experienced.

Heaven Springs quickly shot to the top of the domestic news hot search rankings.

Don Albert was both elated and anxious about his restaurant's newfound fame. While thrilled to see it at the top of the trending list, he feared this exposure might prompt someone to dig up his unsavory past.

Curiously, after scrolling through the comments and posts under the trending topics for a long time, he found no mention of his previous life or questionable history.

Feeling uneasy, he decided to call his old associate, Isaac Cameron, to get some clarity.

The moment the call connected, Isaac Cameron teased, "Don Albert, your Heaven Springs is making headlines across the country tonight. How do you even have time to call me?"

Don Albert, sounding flustered, replied, "Oh, Mr. Isaac, please don't tease me right now. I'm extremely nervous!"

Isaac Cameron chuckled, "What are you so nervous about?"

Don Albert sighed awkwardly and admitted, "It's my past—my old identity and background. If anyone digs deep enough, it won't hold up under scrutiny. I can accept the consequences for myself since this is the path I chose back then, but I'm worried it might cause trouble for Master Wade or disappoint him."

Isaac Cameron reassured him with a laugh, "Relax. Before I left Aurous Hill, the young master made sure to 'clean up' your record when he entrusted you to take over my role. As long as you don't return to your old ways, no one will ever expose your past!"

Hearing Isaac Cameron's words, Don Albert was momentarily stunned.

He instinctively asked, "Boss... Are you saying that Master Wade has already resolved these issues for me?"

Isaac Cameron smiled and replied, “Don Albert, use your brain. Once I leave Aurous Hill, you’ll be taking over my position. My role as the Wade family’s representative in Aurous Hill and the entire province is no small matter—it reflects the prestige of the Wade family. Since the young master entrusted you with such an important role, he would naturally ensure your problems are handled. Otherwise, if something went wrong, wouldn’t it damage the Wade family’s reputation?”

Don Albert was taken aback and blurted out, “Oh... this... this is unbelievable... Boss Isaac, you don’t understand how worried I was all night! I feared that if my past was brought up at Heaven Springs, it would embarrass Master Wade. Hearing this from you is such a relief.”

He paused, clearly moved, and added, “I never expected Master Wade to be so kind to someone as rough around the edges as me. I’d follow him to the ends of the earth without hesitation!”

Isaac Cameron chuckled and said, “If you’re looking to show your gratitude, tell the young master—not me.”

Don Albert immediately responded with conviction, “This isn’t flattery; it’s my genuine loyalty and belief!”

“Alright,” Isaac Cameron joked, “but right now, your priority isn’t showing loyalty. It’s figuring out how to grow Heaven Springs into something bigger and stronger. This influx of business isn’t just a stroke of luck—it’s a golden opportunity gifted by the young master. Use it wisely to build a publicly listed catering company. Not only will you secure a prosperous future for yourself, but your descendants will also enjoy endless wealth and honor.”

Isaac Cameron continued, “Don Albert, do you know why the wealthiest families have maintained their standing for generations since the war ended?”

Don Albert, trying to sound insightful, replied, “It’s because they have money. When you have enough money, you don’t fear anything.”

“No,” Isaac Cameron corrected, “money alone isn’t enough. You need substantial industries, deep-rooted influence, and the ability to generate consistent wealth. Look at internet celebrities—their money comes and goes quickly, and they fail to build meaningful connections or a strong foundation. But those who establish real economic enterprises and take them public gain lasting influence. They accumulate not only wealth but also the resilience and resources to ensure their family’s future success, no matter what happens. This is your golden moment—seize it!”

Don Albert’s heart trembled, and he quickly said, “I understand, Mr. Isaac. Thank you for your guidance!”

Isaac Cameron smiled and replied, “It’s nothing. The young master must have already planned everything for you.”
