

The Amazing Son in Law / Super Hero Charlie Wade - Charlie Wade Chapter 7314

Tawana's concert in Tokyo had already left Charlie Wade in awe, but what he hadn't anticipated was that the energy and enthusiasm of the audience at her first concert in Aurous Hill would far surpass that of the Tokyo performance!

Outside the venue, tens of thousands of fans were almost hysterical, screaming, shouting, and even crying.

Charlie Wade and Claire stood at the end of the T-shaped stage, observing the entire performance venue from the back. The fans' excitement had reached an unbelievable level. Every attendee held fluorescent sticks and wore fluorescent bracelets, creating a vibrant sea of light. Interestingly, these lights seemed to be synchronized and controlled by the on-site lighting engineer. When the colors shifted, they changed uniformly, creating an awe-inspiring spectacle as tens of thousands of people moved in perfect harmony.

Tawana's performance was truly astonishing!

From the moment she stepped onto the stage, she radiated boundless energy. She sang and danced passionately, running across the entire T-stage with her dancers for hundreds of meters, yet her singing remained steady and unaffected by the physical exertion.

Charlie Wade could tell that she was singing live, without any lip-syncing or audio enhancements.

This showcased Tawana's exceptional musical ability and physical endurance, qualities that reminded Charlie Wade of the legendary Michael Jackson.

Michael Jackson's choreography was even more demanding and intense, yet he consistently delivered flawless vocal performances—a rarity among domestic idol singers.

In contrast, many domestic idols prioritize profit over artistry. They rely on lip-syncing or partial live performances and lack the physical training or professional skills necessary for high-energy performances. When forced to sing live while dancing, their performances often end in disaster. Some can't even manage their breathing, let alone maintain stable vocals.

Charlie Wade, who had never been one to idealize foreign talent or believe that things were inherently better abroad, was struck for the first time by the stark difference in the professional standards and qualities of singers from the East and the West.

He had attended several concerts by Stefanie Sun, who was already regarded as one of the most professional idol singers in China. Yet, from a fair and objective perspective, Charlie Wade couldn't help but feel that Stefanie Sun's abilities fell short compared to Tawana's.

What made Tawana even more impressive was her near-total creative ownership of her music—she had written both the lyrics and melodies for most of the songs she performed.

What Charlie Wade didn't realize was that Tawana, singing and dancing with her back to him on stage, was pouring her heart into this performance with extraordinary effort. Her goal was to leave Aurous Hill with the most spectacular and memorable stage performance of her career.

To Tawana, dedicating this performance to Aurous Hill meant dedicating it to Charlie Wade.

What she longed for most was that, after tonight's show, the international media and fans would agree that her performance had surpassed all her previous ones.

She felt that if the world recognized this, the emotions she wished to express to Charlie Wade would be unmistakable.

Though circumstances had kept her from sharing some of her deepest thoughts with Charlie Wade, she had resolved to convey her feelings through this performance instead.

Meanwhile, backstage, Trevor was watching Tawana's performance intently.

Having accompanied her to most of her solo concerts since they became a couple, Trevor had never seen Tawana perform with such intensity and passion.

This didn't mean she had been less committed in her past concerts, but this particular performance was undeniably on another level, exceeding even her usual high standards.

Her agent, standing beside Trevor, couldn't contain her excitement. She exclaimed, "Tawana got into the zone so quickly tonight, and this..."

Her energy tonight seemed unprecedented. "I have a feeling this concert will be her best and most flawless performance ever!" the agent exclaimed.

To the agent, Tawanna's performance today marked a significant breakthrough, a rare achievement for a singer who had already been at the pinnacle of her career for years.

It was akin to breaking a world record, like Bolt's 9.58 seconds in the 100-meter race—a feat even Bolt himself couldn't surpass. In the agent's eyes, Tawanna had shattered her own "9.58" the moment she stepped on stage tonight.

Trevor, meanwhile, was overwhelmed by mixed emotions.

The agent might not have understood why Tawanna was performing at such an extraordinary level, but Trevor did.

He knew that Tawanna's unmatched effort and her ability to exceed her usual standard were entirely driven by Charlie Wade, who stood on the other side of the stage, accompanying his wife.

Watching Claire next to Charlie Wade, Trevor felt a twinge of relief.

For him, one thing served as a clear indicator of whether his relationship with Tawanna might undergo a significant shift: the marriage between Charlie Wade and Claire.

As long as Charlie Wade remained married, even if Tawanna harbored feelings for him, she would likely keep those emotions buried and wouldn't end things with Trevor.

So, until Charlie Wade divorced, Trevor felt secure.

And based on Charlie Wade's attitude toward his wife, Trevor was certain Charlie Wade would never initiate a divorce.

By this point, Tawanna had finished singing her opening song.

The audience, sensing her unique excitement and energy, was already electrified, and her first song left them thrilled.

After finishing her first song, Tawanna strode to the front of the stage, stood at its edge, and shouted loudly, "Hello, China! Hello, Aurous Hill!"

The audience erupted into thunderous applause and cheers.

Tawanna waited patiently for several seconds, and once the applause began to die down, she continued, "It is such an honor to stand here and perform for you. Although this is my first time in this city, in the brief time I've been here, I have completely fallen in love with this place and its people. I know many of you have traveled from other cities or even other countries to be here. Like me, some of you are visiting for the first time. I hope you can love and appreciate the beauty of this city as much as I do. Thank you!"

Because the audience was selected through a global lottery system, most attendees were from China, but only a small portion were locals from Aurous Hill. Hearing their idol speak so highly of their hometown filled the Aurous Hill audience with indescribable pride and excitement. Even Claire couldn't hide her enthusiasm.

Turning to Charlie Wade, she hugged his arm tightly and exclaimed, "Husband, Tawanna thinks so highly of Aurous Hill! You can tell she really loves it here!"

Charlie Wade gave a slightly awkward smile.

He couldn't shake the feeling that Tawana's words carried a deeper meaning.

Still, he hoped her praise wasn't directed at him.
