

The Amazing son in law Chapter 7381

When the two returned to the Sun family mansion, Angie was in the kitchen preparing lunch with the servants, while Orrin Sun was by the pond, engrossed in feeding the koi.

He had invested a great deal of effort into this koi pond. Despite Eastcliff's frigid temperatures, which often dropped several degrees below zero, he had installed a full-scale circulating heating system to maintain the water temperature at a steady 25 degrees Celsius.

Noticing Charlie Wade arriving with his daughter, Orrin smiled and said, "Stefanie, your mother asked you to help her in the kitchen when you got back. Go quickly and let Charlie stay here with me for a while."

Stefanie Sun was surprised—her mother had never asked her to help with household chores. Why now?

However, she was sharp and quickly realized her mother likely had something important to tell her. Smiling, she said, "Dad, Brother Charlie Wade, you two go ahead and chat. I'll head inside to help."

Charlie Wade didn't think much of it and simply nodded. "Go ahead. Let me know if you need any help."

Stefanie chuckled and replied, "In our family, there's a rule—men aren't allowed in the kitchen."

With that, she turned and walked inside.

Orrin Sun, now alone with Charlie Wade, considered having a heart-to-heart conversation with him. However, he remembered his wife's earlier instructions—she had cautioned him against diving into serious matters too quickly. She wanted him to wait for her signal to ensure everything was said at the right time.

So instead, he smiled and said, "Charlie, I've noticed Changying Automobile making some bold moves lately. You're determined to secure this project, aren't you?"

Charlie Wade nodded solemnly. "Uncle Sun, this project carries my father's name. It's more than just business—it represents the reputation of both the Ye family and the An family. We have to give it our all."

"Excellent!" Orrin praised. "We Chinese have often been too reserved, hesitant to name businesses or brands after ourselves for fear of seeming ostentatious. But I see things differently. Why not seize the chance to be remembered forever? You must make this a success!"

Charlie Wade said respectfully, “Uncle Sun, don’t worry. We’ll do our best.”

While father and son continued their conversation, Stefanie Sun had already made her way to the kitchen.

Her mother, Angie, was busy instructing the servants on ingredient preparation. When she saw Stefanie enter, she quickly pulled her aside to the empty dining room and asked urgently, “Stefanie, have you talked to Charlie yet? Your father just called your Grandpa Wade, and he has already told him everything that needed to be said. If you keep pretending to be unaware, I swear I’ll bring it up at the dinner table myself!”

Stefanie quickly responded, “Mom, please don’t say anything directly to Brother Charlie Wade. He’s shy and not good at rejecting people. If you put him on the spot, he won’t know how to respond, and it will just make him uncomfortable.”

Angie sighed in frustration. “Silly girl, you’re always thinking about his feelings. Listen, I’m grateful to him and admire him, but that doesn’t mean I don’t have my own opinion on this. Do you know how much our family has done for him? You’ve waited for him all these years, and after knowing each other for so long, he still hasn’t given you an answer. How is that fair?”

Stefanie replied, “Oh, Mom, I know the situation is complicated, but I’ve already made things clear to Brother Charlie Wade. He told me he’s still uncertain about whether he can defeat his enemies. He’s afraid that if something happens to him, he won’t be able to protect us. That’s why he said he would prepare enough Rejuvenation Pills for the three of us so I could live with you and Dad. But I told him that while I could live with my parents, if you both were gone, then I wouldn’t want to live either.”

Angie sighed deeply. She knew her daughter too well—Stefanie wasn’t just saying this to be dramatic.

If Charlie Wade were to be killed by his enemies, the only thing keeping her daughter going would be herself and her husband.

And if they were gone too, Stefanie might not have the strength to carry on.

So she asked, “What did Charlie say?”

Stefanie replied, “He just tried to talk me out of it, but I ignored him. I told him that if he and my parents were gone, I wouldn’t be able to live alone—unless he gave me a son.”

Angie’s eyes lit up, and she gave Stefanie a thumbs-up. “That’s my girl! Be direct with him! That’s exactly what you should do. Our mistake was caring too much about his feelings. He's been hesitant about this for too long. If we keep tiptoeing around him and giving him more time, he'll just keep dragging it out without ever making a real decision!"

After saying that, she quickly asked, "By the way, how did Charlie respond when you told him that?"

Stefanie Sun hesitated for a moment before replying, "Brother Charlie said he would think about it carefully. So, I believe I've made my feelings clear this time, and he won't keep avoiding the issue forever. He will definitely give us an answer."

She then hugged her mother's arm and pleaded playfully, "Mom, I've already talked to him about it, so please don't bring it up at the dinner table. Give Brother Charlie a little more time, okay?"

Angie let out a soft sigh, gently stroking the back of Stefanie's hand as she spoke sincerely. "Stefanie, what I truly want now is for you to have a child as soon as possible. And it's not just about continuing Charlie's bloodline or the Ye family's legacy—it's about giving you a lifelong companion. Charlie himself isn't certain he can defeat Wu Feiyan. If something were to happen to him, your father and I won't be here forever to take care of you. But a child—your child—will always be there for you, to love and support you in your old age."

She then looked at Stefanie and asked, "Can you try harder to make this happen with Charlie? And if not, why not take a step back and tell him that marriage isn't the priority? A wedding is just a formality—the true bond is in sharing a child together."

Stefanie wasn't embarrassed by her mother's words. Instead, she responded firmly, "Mom, since we're being open about this, I won't hide anything from you. I also want to have Brother Charlie Wade's child as soon as possible, but I don't want him to feel pressured into it."

As she spoke, a faint blush crept onto her face. In a softer, more hesitant voice, she admitted, "I want... I want Brother Charlie Wade to agree to this because he loves me. I hope he chooses to have a child with me out of love, not just because of pressure or family expectations."

Angie sighed, concern evident in her expression. "Stefanie, Charlie is so much like his father—not just in looks but in temperament too. I worry he might handle relationships the same way his father did. To be honest, I'm afraid he'll keep pushing you away."

Stefanie gave a small, bittersweet smile. "If Brother Charlie Wade still refuses me in the end, then I have no choice but to accept it. All I can do is pray for him, hoping that he stays safe and lives a happy life."

Hearing this, Angie felt a deep pang of sorrow. The thought of her daughter spending her life alone made her eyes well up with tears.

Holding Stefanie's hand tightly, she choked back her emotions and sighed, "If only your Aunt An were still alive... She adored you so much—she would have made sure this was settled for you."

The Amazing son in law Chapter 7383

Stefanie sun's memory of Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom ) had grown faint over the years.

After all, she had been too young when charlie Wade was taken away from Eastcliff.

She couldn't help but murmur, "Mom, I can't clearly remember what Aunt looked like. Did she like me when I was a child?"

Angie smiled and said, "Your Aunt adored you. She was at the hospital with your mother on the day you were born and was the second person to hold you in her arms."

"Really?" Stefanie sun asked in surprise. "Then who proposed the engagement between Brother charlie Wade and me? You never told me about it before."

Angie sighed. "It was your Aunt who suggested it. At that time, the Wade family was the most powerful in the country. Your father and I were always looked after by your Uncle Ye and Aunt. To be honest, we always felt that the Wade family was far beyond our reach. We were honored that they treated us as their own. How could we have ever dared to hope for such a marriage?"

Stefanie sun asked in astonishment, "Then why did Aunt bring up the idea of marriage?"

Angie smiled. "Because she liked you and believed you were the perfect match to be her daughter-in-law."

Stefanie sun felt delighted.

To her, charlie Wade had many female confidantes, but she was the only one recognized by his mother. That made her different from the others.

What she regretted, however, was that charlie Wade's mother had passed away too soon. As her mother said, if she were still alive, she would have supported her and never allowed her to be sidelined like this.

Yet, as mother and daughter lamented, they had no idea that Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom ) was still alive. Until recently, she had been living in the Lama Temple nearby.

Even now, though she resided in Putuo Mountain, she was only a little over a thousand kilometers away from Eastcliff.

At this moment, Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom ) was preparing seal incense in the Zen temple of Putuo Mountain.

After pounding the incense, she lit it with a stick of incense. As the green smoke curled upward, she leaned in slightly to take in its fragrance, closed her eyes, and embraced the rare tranquility in her heart.

Sister Sun approached and said respectfully, "Madam, the young master is having lunch at the sun residence this afternoon, and Cynthia Wade is personally handling the shopping. It seems the Wade family is also planning a family dinner tonight."

Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom ) opened her eyes, nodded slightly, and smiled. "Looks like they are joining forces to put pressure on charlie."

Sister Sun replied, "It will probably take some time for the shipment from Sihai to arrive in China by sea."

"No rush," Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom ) said calmly. "Even if it takes longer, it should still arrive within the first month of the new year."

Sister Sun then asked, "Madam, didn't you once say that the eldest daughter of the Ito family is actually the most suitable match for the young master?"

"Yes," Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom ) said with a gentle smile. "To be fair, in my view, no one is more suitable for charlie than Cai Naizi, especially since she has already attained enlightenment. She will be of great help to him in the future."

Sister Sun hesitated before asking, "Then what about Miss sun?"

Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom )'s smile softened as she let out a quiet sigh. "Stefanie... I once cradled her in my arms. Logically, I believe Cai Naizi is the best choice, but emotionally, no one can replace Stefanie in my heart."

She paused, then continued with another sigh. "It was indeed I who arranged charlie and Stefanie's engagement. From the moment she was born, I have loved her as my own child. Orrin sun and Angie also cherished young charlie at the time, so I proposed the engagement—hoping that when they grew up, they would marry."

The Amazing son in law Chapter 7384

"Some have told me that in this modern era of openness, parents should not arrange marriages for their children as in the old feudal traditions. But I insisted. I have always believed that some beautiful and important things require parents to make decisions and secure them in advance for their children."

At this moment, Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom ) couldn't help but sigh. "Back then, Bruce Wade and I had already had extensive dealings with the Poqing Society and uncovered many of their secrets. What I feared most wasn't that they would one day come after us, but that they would strategically place various 'scholars' around Charlie in the future."

At the mention of the word scholar, Sister Sun's expression suddenly froze.

She understood the formidable influence of these so-called scholars.

These individuals were groomed by the Poqing Society from childhood, trained to do everything in their power to capture a target's attention.

The Poqing Society spared no expense in cultivating scholars, carefully crafting individuals with distinct yet exceptional qualities, designed to infiltrate the lives of their targets. As a result, the target would encounter many seemingly perfect romantic prospects—without realizing that most of these encounters were orchestrated specifically for them.

After all, who could resist someone who had been meticulously designed to be their ideal match since childhood?

This was precisely Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom )'s concern for Charlie Wade.

What if the Poqing Society continued to position "scholars" around him? Even if he saw through some, he couldn't possibly unmask them all.

If, one day, he unknowingly married one of these scholars, it would be disastrous—not only for him but for the entire Wade family.

To prevent this, she had to ensure that Charlie Wade married someone who truly knew and understood him. Only then could the hidden threat of the "scholars" be completely eradicated.

Very few people were aware of the Poqing Society's inner workings, but Orrin Sun and Angie were among those who did.

As long as Charlie Wade married Stefanie Sun, no matter how many scholars the Poqing Society deployed, their efforts would be in vain.

Besides, ever since Stefanie Sun was born, Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom ) had been particularly fond of her. Even as a child, it was evident that she was not only beautiful but also intelligent and kind. She was, without a doubt, the perfect match for Charlie Wade.

However, the Sun family was unaware of Lydia (Ava) ( Charlie's mom )'s deep concerns about the "scholars."

According to her original plan, she intended to keep Charlie Wade by her side, guiding and nurturing him step by step while also fostering his bond with Stefanie Sun. Once they reached adulthood, they would marry.

But no one could have predicted that their conflict with the Poqing Society would escalate so rapidly due to the Jiuxuan Tianjing.

Sara sought to eliminate Bruce Wade and his family, but in the end, she was forced into action. Bruce Wade sacrificed himself to save his son, orchestrating a golden cicada escape for Lydia (Ava) (Charlie's mom), allowing her to flee.

In the years that followed, Lydia (Ava) (Charlie's mom) dared not reveal herself—let alone reunite with Charlie Wade.

Recalling the past, she couldn't help but smile bitterly. What an ironic twist of fate. I feared most that Charlie would be deceived by a scholar, yet after everything, Bruce Wade's arrangement stripped him of the aura of a Wade family descendant—ironically shielding him completely from that very threat.

Thinking of her two siblings, whose lives had been ruined by scholars, Lydia (Ava) (Charlie's mom)'s expression turned cold. "Olin and Tablita both believed they were the luckiest people in the world. They thought they had found soulmates who truly understood them, loved them, and aligned with their deepest desires. But they never realized it was all Sara's doing—her scholars manipulating their fates. That vicious woman will pay the price for her sins sooner or later!"

The Amazing son in law Chapter 7385

The Sun family's dinner was exceptionally lavish.

It featured many rare ingredients that Orrin Sun himself wouldn't normally indulge in, and some that Charlie Wade had never even encountered before.

Throughout the meal, Angie regarded Charlie Wade with the affectionate gaze of a mother-in-law admiring her future son-in-law. She was so fond of him that she continuously urged him to eat and even encouraged Stefanie Sun to keep serving him more food.

Initially, Charlie Wade felt anxious, fearing that Stefanie Sun's parents might bring up the topics of marriage or children at the dinner table.

However, to his surprise, they never mentioned such matters, which allowed him to relax significantly.

Yet, just as he began to feel at ease, a wave of guilt crept over him.

The couple's silence on the subject only made him more aware of their patience and understanding, which touched him deeply.

charlie Wade was someone who valued gratitude and reciprocity. He felt that if they had pressured him directly, it would have been a different form of care—a sign of their genuine concern for him.

So, after lunch, while everyone was still chatting at the table, charlie Wade took out two Rejuvenation Pills and handed them to Orrin sun and Angie, saying respectfully, “Uncle sun, Aunt Angie, these are a small token of my appreciation for you both.”

The couple was completely caught off guard by charlie Wade's gesture.

They were well aware that a single Rejuvenation Pill was worth over 100 billion US dollars at auction, meaning the two pills together exceeded the total assets of the entire Sun family many times over.

Shocked, Orrin sun quickly declined, saying, “charlie, this is absolutely unacceptable! These pills are priceless and one of your most valuable sources of income. How could we possibly accept such an extraordinary gift from you?”

Angie immediately chimed in, “That's right, charlie! Your Uncle sun and I are in perfect health. We have no illnesses or ailments whatsoever. Giving us these pills would be an absolute waste!”

charlie Wade smiled and said, “Uncle sun, Aunt Angie, the Rejuvenation Pill is named as such because, in addition to curing diseases and saving lives, it has another incredible effect—it can restore youth.”

He paused briefly before continuing, “You are both in excellent health. While the pill can no longer serve as a cure for ailments, it can rejuvenate your physical condition, making you look and feel ten to twenty years younger.”

With that, he glanced at Stefanie sun, then at Angie, and said with a smile, “Aunt Angie, after taking the Rejuvenation Pill, you and Stefanie will look more like sisters.”

The moment charlie Wade said this, Angie felt a surge of desire in her heart.

No woman dislikes beauty, and no woman wants to grow old.

Women of Angie's age spend enormous amounts of money and time each year on anti-aging treatments.

Concerns about body shape, dull skin, deepening wrinkles, and even sagging breasts are all fundamentally tied to the aging process.

From their twenties, women begin to experience subtle signs of aging, and by their thirties, forties, and fifties, the deterioration accelerates.

Angie alone spends at least hundreds of millions of dollars annually on anti-aging treatments, yet the results are never as promising as expected. Time continues to pass, and people grow older by the day. In many cases, merely maintaining one's current appearance is considered a success—reversing time is virtually impossible.

Even medical aesthetic procedures that artificially create a youthful appearance offer only temporary results, often leading to long-term side effects that are difficult to undo.
