

The Amazing son in law Chapter 7444

After booking the plane tickets and hotel, charlie Wade shared the news with his wife and in-laws.

Since the family had never taken a vacation together before, everyone was excited about this short getaway.

When Elaine found out that charlie Wade had booked a trip to Baima Island, the first thing she did was post about it on WeChat Moments to show off. She even looked up details about the island and the room prices on the booking site and shared those, too.

She enjoys showing off regularly, so she naturally wanted to make the most of this opportunity by hyping it up in advance.

charlie Wade wouldn't be staying in Aurous Hill for long, as Tawana's concert in Shanghai was scheduled to begin in three days.

After spending two days resting at home, he set off again for Shanghai.

Shanghai is close to Aurous Hill—just 300 kilometers away—but there are no direct flights, so charlie Wade decided to drive there himself.

Coincidentally, his father-in-law's first BMW 530 had been sitting unused, so he packed some clothes and got ready to take the car.

When Claire walked him to the car, she reminded him to drive safely. charlie Wade nodded and drove off from Tomson Yipin.

As soon as he got on the highway, he received a call from Lin Waner (Alani).

In the past two days since returning, charlie Wade hadn't gone out or met anyone, including Lin Waner (Alani).

When he answered, Lin Waner (Alani) asked, "Has the young master returned to Aurous Hill?"

charlie Wade replied, "I came back two days ago—and now I'm leaving again."

Lin Waner (Alani) chuckled. "I figured. You're heading to Shanghai, aren't you? Isn't Tawana holding a concert there soon?"

"Yes," charlie Wade said. "I'm officially her Feng Shui Director, so I have to be there for formalities."

Lin Waner (Alani) said, "I watched a video of her performance. Your swordsmanship was so fluid and graceful—it was truly impressive!"

charlie Wade was surprised. "How did you know it was me?"

Lin Wan'er (Alani) smiled and said, "I'm not stupid. I remember your silhouette clearly. Even with a mask, I'd recognize you instantly."

Charlie Wade suddenly felt a chill down his spine.

If Lin Wan'er could recognize him, then Claire would certainly be able to recognize him as well.

Seeing that Charlie Wade didn't respond, Lin Wan'er smiled and said, "Sir, please don't misunderstand me. I wasn't trying to tease you. I only dared to bring it up now because of how far things have come. Actually, I called for a different reason."

Charlie Wade sighed and replied, "Miss Lin, please go ahead and tell me what you need to say."

Lin Wan'er said, "Sir, didn't you want to arrange for Miss Song to return safely to China? I had Old Sun look into it, and it just so happens that a government humanitarian rescue team will be returning to China in a few days. A military transport plane will be sent to Syria to bring them back. In situations like this, official personnel stationed there usually return on the same flight. So I asked Old Sun to prepare a military identity for Miss Song, allowing her to return on that plane."

When Charlie Wade left Morocco, all of the Moroccan death warriors, cavalry guards, and their families—including Ruyu, who was then an assistant with the Anti-Qing Society—were sent by ship to Syria.

However, Charlie Wade had never intended for Ruyu to remain in Syria. Like Yun Ruge, she carried the strange poison left behind by Sara. His plan was to transfer Ruyu safely to China and then arrange for her to meet Yun Ruge.

Now that a reliable channel had been found, Charlie Wade asked, "Miss Lin, when does the flight take off, and where will it land in China?"

Lin Wan'er smiled and replied, "The plane departs the day after tomorrow and will land at Chongyuan Military Airport in Shanghai that night. Young Master, since you're headed to Shanghai anyway, you can pick her up on the way."
