

The Amazing Son In Law (Charlie Wade)

Chapter 3556)

Seeing that Helena refused the doctor's proposal for examination without hesitation, Cynthia Wade couldn't help feeling a little suspicious when she saw that there was a bit of tension and anxiety in her expression.

Generally speaking, only the poor, or those with poor financial conditions, are more afraid of seeing a doctor.

Because they knew from an early age that as long as they went to see a doctor, it must be when they were sick.

It is precisely because they have seen a doctor from an early age to either get injections or take medicine, it will leave them with a psychological shadow of the doctor, so that they will feel a little nervous when they talk about the doctor.

Many people from this family have a great fear of doctors even when they are adults. In their daily lives, they follow the basic principle of not going to the hospital as much as possible.

But Helena is not a poor man, she is a descendant of the Nordic royal family with a history of hundreds of years.

Normally, whether it is the royal family or the members of these wealthy families, they must have developed the habit of dealing with doctors frequently since they were young.

Take Wade's family as an example. Not only does it have its own team of health doctors, it even has its own comprehensive private hospital.

Except for Charlie, who left the Wade Family since childhood, other Wade Family members have at least two or three very in-depth comprehensive physical examinations a year.

Especially for those underage offspring, basically every one or two months, there will be a health doctor to do a physical examination and growth and development assessment.

If you feel uncomfortable, you don't need to go to the hospital by yourself, but the whole team of doctors visit the door for service, absolutely considerate and considerate.

Therefore, children who grow up in this environment will not only be afraid of doctors, but are highly dependent on doctors. They have some headaches and brain fever, and they want to call a private doctor over to take care of them 24 hours a day.

Because of this, Cynthia Wade was a little skeptical.

She always felt that Helena's fear of the doctor's performance must have something hidden.

So, she deliberately smiled and said: "Helena, you don't have to be so nervous. The doctor will help you to do some routine examinations. If you don't have injections or medicines, what's to be afraid of? The most is to draw a few tubes of blood back. Do a laboratory test to see if there are any abnormalities in the biochemical indicators. Just relax, and nothing will happen!"

With that, she didn't wait for Helena to express her attitude, and immediately turned around and told Stephen Thompson on the side: "Stephen Thompson, you should let the doctors come up quickly. Let's move faster and it won't affect Helena's rest. "

Stephen Thompson said without hesitation: "Good eldest lady, I will invite them all to come up now."

Helena became nervous, and quickly said: "Ms. Wade, I really don't have any serious problems. As long as I have more rest and rest, I don't have to bother you so much!"

Cynthia Wade said with a smile: "Hurt! You will be the one who is going to pass the door right away.

From now on, you will be my nephew and daughter-in-law. What kind of politeness can you have with my aunt? Besides, I have come here, those experts. It's all here too, so don't think about it so much, relax and let them check it out for you, it won't take long."

With that said, Cynthia Wade said very intimately: "Helena, don't have any psychological pressure. All of us here today are female experts. When you check in a while, Stephen Thompson and I will avoid it."

The more Cynthia Wade showed meticulousness, the more nervous Helena felt.

She knew the consequences of this very clearly in her heart.

"With the strength and status of the Wade Family, if they knew that I was terminally ill and could live for a few more years at most, then they would never agree to this marriage..."

"To put it bluntly, as long as I ask the expert Cynthia Wade brought to do a physical examination today, then I will definitely be retired by the Wade Family..."

The Amazing Son In Law Chapter 3556