

At The Top 17

Life at the Top by Cold Night

Chapter 17

Hugh requested a checkbook immediately after speaking. He wrote out a check for 15 million dollars and signed it. He then slammed it onto the table.

"If you win, take everything. All this money will be yours! However, you need the skills to win first," he said.

"Wow... Mr. Lewis actually agreed to it..."

Everyone burst out into an uproar instantly. This bet was reaching up to 100 million dollars!

In 2000, even someone with just a million dollars would be put up onto a pedestal and be known as a millionaire, let alone 100 million dollars!

Even to the high-status people present right now, a bet worth 100 million dollars was shocking!

Furthermore, the person joining the bet was Hugh Lewis. This made everything even more interesting.

Looks of excitement appeared on everyone's faces. They all could not wait for the round to begin.

Right then, the afternoon trading session began.

The stocks were continuously fluctuating. The market changed every second. There was no way to guess what would happen in the next second.

Jasper and Hugh stood in front of their respective computers and focused on their screens.

Jasper was going through his memory in search of something. Not long after, he picked a company's stocks.

Horizon Shares.

interface of Horizon Shares and looked at the downward stock first fell to the limit and rose all the way up to the limit. After that, nothing much changed. This was why Jasper did not choose it as timing to use this of Horizon Shares had almost fallen to its

I bet that it'll of bosses within the financial industry. Naturally, they were all familiar with stocks and knew a stagnant for three months. The dealer isn't renewing the market or suppressing it on purpose. This can only mean that the company isn't doing well and nobody wants to call dibs on it. If the market rises, it'll continue falling. You're telling me that a stock like limit. I guess he's to give up his date and his assets. Sigh, Mr. Lewis is right.

The company is doing extremely well and its stocks are stable as well. One can tell that it'll rise at first sight. Meanwhile, look at the junk Jasper Laine chose.

everyone. Maybe this kid can really estimate well. What if finished speaking, Horizon

Everyone erupted into laughter.

can he possibly estimate things well? This kid here picked a stock that has fallen to possible for this trashy stock to rebound and come up with a counterattack? I've been trading stocks for so many the slightest by the laughter encompassing them and the red

Jasper admired her all life. However, Wendy was doing all this based on her trust in him. How

"Don't be worried!"