Chapter 481

This was a quality in Jasper that Dawson was most impressed with.

It was because Jasper was different from everyone else.

The aura of a scholarly businessman he carried could not be cultivated. It could only come naturally.

Right now, however, Jasper resembled a lion that had been completely infuriated. He no longer paid attention to being elegant and easy-going. What was left in him was bloodthirsty fury and resentment for his enemy.

“Hahaha!” Ben looked at Jasper with great delight.

“You know what, Jasper? I’ve been longing to see this expression of yours even in my dreams. This look on your face gives me so much pleasure!

“It feels good to see you so furious like you’re about to rip me apart!

“It sure is worth it to have done so many tedious things. Hahaha!”

As Ben said those words, he sneered maliciously. “But you don’t seem to get it, do you? Right now, I, Ben Hull, have the final say!”

The video call ended.

Jasper stood up suddenly, looked at Julian without a single expression on his face, and said, "Do you remember the address?"

Julian nodded and said, "Yes I do."

"Bring more men with you."

Dawson said suddenly.

Julian shook his head and said, "No, too many people can startle the enemy away. I have the confidence to subdue them all immediately."

When Jasper saw Julian's fiery gaze and how he stared at him as if seeking his permission, Jasper spent a few seconds mulling it over.

He believed and understood that Julian was trying to make up for his mistake, but this involved Wendy's safety.

Jasper had let his guard down once, so he must not attempt this a second time while putting Wendy's life at stake.

Wendy watched for an opportunity as Ben and Hans laughed triumphantly. When the woman guarding her was in a daze, she charged toward the window abruptly.

Ben and Hans had yet to react when the woman called Fiona, who was in charge of watching over Wendy, noticed that something was wrong.

She was about to chase after her when Wendy ran with all her might and at lightning speed before arriving at the window in the blink of an eye.

"Don't come near me or I will jump off!"

Wendy shouted at Fiona.

As she spoke, Wendy threatened to jump off the building. Fiona halted in her steps immediately and said to Wendy, "Don't jump! I won't come near you!"

At this moment, Ben and Hans finally realized what was going on.

Everything happened so fast and no one expected that Wendy, who had initially lost all power to resist, would suddenly have such an outburst of energy.

When Ben saw Wendy standing by the window and a turn of her body could send her falling off the building, his eyes twitched. He asked coldly, "Must you do this, Wendy?"

Hans' hand froze mid-air.

He could tell that Wendy was serious.

If he touched her, she would actually bite her tongue off and kill herself immediately.

Hans found himself in an awkward position.

He coveted Wendy's beauty, but he did not want to sleep with a corpse.

Also, if Wendy died here, it would pose a huge problem.

"Uncle Hans."

Ben did not want Wendy to die here, hence he patted Hans on the shoulder to help him out of the awkward situation.

"Let's not irritate her too much. We have all the time in the world anyway. Watch how I'll deal with her."

Hans was able to get out of the awkward position he was stuck in with Ben's help. After pulling his hand back, he sneered and said, "How spicy! I've never played with a woman as spicy as you!"

Ben smiled and pulled out a small plastic bag from his pocket, which he took out a pill from. He said, "I've already made preparations earlier. I bought this thing at a huge price.

"When a woman takes this pill, she will remain conscious, but she'll lose strength in her limbs. Her entire body will be so soft it's like she doesn't have bones.

"When that happens, you will have no choice but to watch how we toy with you. Also, it'll increase the sensitivity of your nerve receptors manyfold. That's like taking ecstasy!"

The door was blasted into pieces, and the figure smashed its way in fiercely.

Coincidentally, the figure crashed into the back of Hans, who was already impatient from waiting.

Hans was completely caught off guard. He felt as though he was hit by a truck from behind and rolled to the ground from the strong force.

After rolling on the floor like a bottle for quite some time, he finally let out a tragic scream.

This turn of events was too abrupt!

The place was seething with tension.

Ben turned around subconsciously and saw Hans lying on the ground screaming. On the other hand, Aaron's limbs were twisted like ropes, and blood was spilling out of his mouth!

Aaron was the one who smashed the door in just now!

A surge of unease rose in Ben's heart. He turned around and saw Julian charging in from outside the door like a demon.

Julian was a darker

Despite that, he sounded extremely gentle. "Who did this?"
Wendy did not answer, but instead, she raised her arms and wrapped them around Jasper's neck tightly.
Wendy had always been pampered since childhood and never suffered any hardships in life. At this moment, she finally shed all pretenses and cried out bitterly.
This woman might look soft and weak, but she could be strong and tough too—much tougher than any girl her age.
She would try and solve everything herself no matter what happened instead of going to Dawson and Jasper first thing itself.
This was her first time being kidnapped, and even though she was nearly ruined by Ben and Hans, both losing a sense of propriety.

When she saw Jasper, however, she could not hold herself back anymore.
She was just a girl in her 20s after all and would experience fear and terror just like everyone else.

Wendy trembled like a frightened little rabbit in Jasper's arms, and her extremely aggrieved cries made his heart quiver.

The flesh of Ben's palm was ground vigorously by the heel of the leather shoe.

This degree of pain was one that hardly anyone could stand.

Ben's palm was lacerated and bloody at once.

Fresh crimson blood pooled around his palm on the floor, followed by the sound of cracking bones under the crushing and grinding of Jasper's leather shoe.

Ben subconsciously put up a fierce resistance, his other hand hitting and scratching Jasper's trouser leg frantically. He was trying to get Jasper to loosen his foot.

Despite that, Jasper's eyes grew even more sinister and colder as he stared at Ben with a blank expression. It was as if he was staring at a corpse. "Not this hand? Is it the other one?"

Julian tossed aside Fiona, who had now lost her ability to resist, and walked over. He raised his leg and kicked Ben's shoulder blades.

Ben let out a blood-curdling scream, his other hand going limp as well. Jasper raised his leg to step on that palm too.

Ben's face was filled with horror.

"No, I wasn't the one who slapped her!"

Ben spoke faster than ever before. He said frantically, "It was Fiona! That woman did it!

"Wendy tried to jump off the building earlier so Fiona slapped her. I didn't do it!"

Jasper looked at Ben without an expression on his face. He waited for him to finish before saying calmly, "Julian."

Julian understood what he wanted at once.

Like Aaron, Fiona was simply a thug. A person like that was not worth having Jasper take action himself.

After the initial panic, Hans was no longer afraid.

He had experienced similar things before.

Hans had plenty of experience getting caught on the spot when he tried to use dirty tricks to mess with other people's wives or daughters.

So what?

He was a Hull.

He was Ian's younger brother.

The Hulls were an integral component of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce.

He had experienced many things and settled all of them with money and authority.

As time passed, Hans understood how things worked.

It was no big deal for him to mess with women, not when he had attained equal status such as the Hulls...

The punishment he would receive was nothing more than compensation and compromises.

When the other party had received benefits, they would know better than to fight the Hulls to the end.

Just like how Jasper would talk and laugh with the Turners and pretend to be polite with Kennedy, someone he had a constant dispute with, even though they both wished to trample each other to death.

This was the adult's world, where interests were paramount. The higher one's opponent's level was, the less likely it was for them to tear each other apart.

If his family was no longer around, why would he still need to f*cking compromise?

Today, Jasper wanted the whole world to know...

That if anyone offended him, he would flip the table straight away and bring everyone down with him!

"Are you deaf, Julian?!"

Jasper's roar brought Julian back from his reverie.

Julian growled and rushed up to Hans.

Hans was filled with horror. At this very moment, he finally realized that Jasper was serious and not just trying to intimidate him.

He was serious about doing it.

“Don’t, Jasper! No!”

At the entrance of Warsaw Community, two cars slowly pulled over on the side of the road.

Sitting in the second car, Ian glanced calmly at a few cars that were parked not far away.

These cars had uniform sequential number plates, and each car was heavily guarded by several well-trained and serious-looking men.

Norman, who was sitting next to Ian, frowned slightly. He said solemnly, “Now that’s a tiger’s lair!

“What is Jasper trying to do? Why did he ask you to come to such a strange place?”

Ian said with a sullen expression, "I don't know, but I have a feeling that something really bad is about to happen."

Norman sneered and said, "What? You think he's going to kill us? He won't do that unless he wants to kill himself."

Ian said flatly, "I don't think he will. No matter how fierce competitions get in business, there's always a rule. Even if we are openly trying to give him trouble, we will eventually find ways to solve it using business solutions. The same goes for him if he wants to give us trouble."

Norman said with a frown, "But from the look of this place as well as the men in the cars, I don't think he's going to play by the rules. I think I should lead the bodyguards in front and go up with you."

Ian shook his head and said, "No, that will only cause us to sink lower. Since he wants me to arrive within half an hour, I'll go up and see what kind of tricks he's trying to pull."

"Okay then. I'll wait for you here. Give me a call if something happens and I'll lead our men upstairs. I don't think Jasper is that bold," Norman said.

Ian was just about to get out of the car when he thought of something and dialed a number after taking out his phone.

However, the cold and consistent voice of the operator made Ian frown.
