Chapter 591

“Don’t act so proud, Jasper. Do you think you can step all over me?”

Enraged, Zayden gave up on maintaining pleasantries and sneered at Jasper.

“We’ve clashed many times already, so I think I know you well. You would’ve just dealt with me already if that’s what you had in mind, but instead, you secretly came to look for me in my house. Haha, cut the crap. You’re afraid, aren’t you? You’re afraid of the person supporting me!”

Zayden stared at Jasper and chortled.

“Hmm, not bad. Looks like you’ve learned something after being taught a few harsh lessons,” Jasper turned to Zayden and said.

“Indeed, obstacles are the best way to make a person mature. Look at you now, you’re way more mature than you used to be.”

Zayden’s expression turned more wretched by the minute, and he spoke to Jasper resentfully, “Stop mocking me, Jasper! Do you even know what kind of life I’ve been living in Harbor City for the past half a year? Even dogs have better lives than me!

“Those Harbor City freaks don’t respect me at all. They hit me whenever they’re in a bad mood. I’ve been living a life that’s more lowly than pests!

Jasper crossed his arms and chuckled. "See? So you did find help, after all. It seems like Kennedy doesn't really trust you, considering how openly he asks you to get rid of me while he secretly asks someone else for help.

"Call it help or whatever else, but none of them truly trust your ability, do they?"

"..."

Zayden glared at Jasper. This time, he did not even dare to refute him.

Jasper was just too terrifying, much more terrifying than the people he had met in Harbor City too.

With just a few words here and there, Jasper had managed to guess most of the truth from the small details and loopholes in his words.

"I didn't say anything at all. As to whether I have accomplices or not, well you can think whatever you want. Are you done? If you are, then get the f*ck out of my house. You're not welcome here!"

"But Terence is your brother!"

Honey spoke as tears streamed down her face. "And... And Jasper too. Why does he have to send Terence to prison? Sure, Terence has made a mistake, but he's still his cousin. A little punishment would've been enough. You said he won't hold Terence accountable, so why is this happening now?"

Darrel sighed deeply and spoke, "I didn't want to believe Jasper when he told me that Terence would definitely betray him, so I made a promise to Jasper. If Terence betrayed him, it means that there's no saving him anymore and this is our only option left.

"If he didn't betray Jasper, then Jasper would let him go.

"Terence may only be an accomplice, but he could point Jasper to the culprit who's behind everything. This means a lot to Jasper because those people plotting against him are actually plotting for his death!

"This is already the most benevolent option Jasper can make."

With his eyebrows knitted tightly, Darrel's father hit his thigh and clenched his jaw tight. "He'll have to deal with the consequences of his own mistake. This is the most we can do for him. Enough already, we can only hope that Jasper will remember how we're cooperating with him this time and help Darrel with his business."

"Yes, Jasper!" Julian replied courteously and pulled out his phone to dial a number. "Captain Vaughn, you can bring your team up now."

With that, Julian hung up the phone.

Faced with this scene, both of Zayden's and Sirius' expressions changed.

Especially Sirius, whose unease had reached new heights.

“What’s happening? What weird trick do you have up your sleeve this time?”

As franticness and unease overwhelmed him, Zayden glared at Jasper and growled.

“Standing at different angles gives you a different scenery. Would you be interested in coming over here to see what my view looks like?” Jasper asked.

Zayden clenched his jaw and scoffed. “I do indeed want to see just what kind of bullsh*t you’re spouting this time. Don’t try to play me, there’s no way I’d—”

Jasper remained silent as he watched Zayden furiously persuade Terence.

Jasper’s relationship with Terence was horrible and there was no point in trying to persuade him.

Not when Jasper had already found the person who would do it for him.

The moment Zayden finished speaking, the door was slammed open and a large group of uniformed officers entered the house.

Leading them was a middle-aged man with an angular jaw and stern features.

“Control the scene!”

Under Captain Vaughn's orders, Zayden, Terence, and Sirius were each surrounded by four to five officers.

Zayden immediately started to struggle vigorously. "What are you doing?! I'm an upstanding citizen, what right do you have to arrest me?"

"But none of that is important now. As for these rules you speak of, I'd like to know whose rules you're following here? Are they yours? Or are they his?"

Jasper pointed at Sirius and then at Zayden as he spoke.

He then redirected his finger to point at his own nose. "I only follow my own rules. Meaning whoever dares to try and screw me over will have to be prepared to be screwed over by me."

Sirius' expression was dark when he spoke, "Stop it, Jasper. Don't you think you're going too far? You wouldn't dare throw Zayden in prison."

"Bullsh*t. Why wouldn't I dare?" Jasper asked.

"Since he dared to get someone to light my construction site on fire, making me lose 100 million and severely injuring my workers, what's stopping me from sending him to where he belongs?"

The space between Sirius' eyebrows began to twitch as he scoffed. "Business conflicts should be dealt with through business means. Aren't you afraid that doing so will prompt the people supporting Zayden to attack you?"

Jasper looked at Zayden calmly, and his tone was indifferent.

"Our resentment is an issue between you and me only. Come at me if you want to make a fuss, but the people heavily injured in the hospital are innocent.

"The fact that you dragged innocent people into this because of your hatred for me is the reason why you're going to lose everything."

Zayden glared at Jasper and seethed, yelling, "Bullsh*t! Those people are nothing but trash! I don't even give a f*ck about them at all, they're nothing to me!"

Jasper replied calmly, "I know that you won't understand. But that's alright, you'll have ten or maybe even 20 years in prison to slowly think about it."

He smiled as he continued, "I don't mind giving you time, but what about the people in Harbor City? I wonder if they'd be able to forgive you for causing them such a huge loss? Who knows if they have the patience to wait for your release? Maybe they'll teach you a lesson while you're still in there."

"I heard the Hanks family has been doing business in the electronics industry. It seems that business is great and you're earning quite a lot?" Jasper asked calmly.

Sirius' expression darkened. "What are you implying here?"

"Nothing much. It's just that the biggest electronics trade in the south is mostly in the hands of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce Waterhoof City branch, no? I'm sure that you're working with someone from there, aren't you, Mr. Hanks?" Jasper asked with a wide grin.

Sirius scoffed and spoke, "Are you telling me you're going to steal my business now? I'm not looking down on you, Jasper, but aren't you overestimating yourself here? This is a business cooperation that makes a couple of billions every year. Who are you to steal it from me?

"I can generously tell you that yes, my boss is the largest electronics company in Waterhoof City and they're indeed from the Haddock Chamber of Commerce. But so what? Do you think they'll agree to work with you instead?"

Jasper smiled. "My apologies, I must've forgotten to tell you. I'll be going to Waterhoof City in a few days when the New Year's holiday is officially over. I have a new identity now, the vice president of Haddock Chamber of Commerce's Waterhoof City branch. I'm sure you're well aware of what this position entails, right, Mr. Hanks?"

Sirius' expression changed drastically. He looked very uncomfortable as he stared at Jasper. "Bullsh*t. You've never been a member of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce, so what makes you think you could be the vice president of its Waterhoof City branch, huh?"

By the time he arrived downstairs, Captain Vaughn's team had already left with Terence and Zayden with them.

Darrel and his parents were still waiting grimly for Jasper.

Jasper walked over and turned to Honey and her husband. "Uncle, Aunty, would you prefer we go back to my place and talk there?"

Jasper's uncle waved him off despondently. "It's alright. We just have a few things to say and then we'll go home."

Jasper replied seriously, "Please do, then. I'm listening."

Jasper's uncle looked at him and said, "In all honesty, we can't nor do we intend to blame you for what happened today.

"A guest just arrived and he's talking to my dad in the study. I brought coffee in just now and Dad hinted at me to ask you to come back soon," Wendy explained.

"Alright. I'll be back as soon as I can. Do you know who it is?" Jasper asked.

Wendy replied, "I don't. He looks pretty young, I'd say he's in his 30s? He's wearing a tunic and seems a little weird, but Dad is being really polite to him."

Jasper gave it some thought and realized that he did not know such a person either. All he could do was promise to be back soon.

Hanging up the phone, Jasper turned to Julian. "Step on it, Jul."

"Got it, Jasper."

15 minutes later, the car came to a stop before Dawson's villa. Jasper alighted the car and saw Wendy waiting for him at the door.

Jasper glanced at the unfamiliar car parked in the spot next to his.
