

Billionaire's Ex-Wife And His Hidden Babies

171

Caroline could confirm that she was the same lady from the night because the face was not clear to her because of the tree branches in between.

"There is no one there, sweetheart." Sophia lied to her and walked toward the car.

"There is," Caroline argued, still pointing toward Daisy.

Sophia ignored her, placing her on the seat beside the driver's seat. And then grabbed the driver's seat.

Once they settled, Sophia drove the car toward Mc'D. After a few minutes, Sophia looked at her daughter with a smile, who winked at her.

"Is she following us?" Sophia asked when she felt no one in the car.

"Yes!! She is uncle's in white shirt body." Caroline replied and then looked at the car moving beside them. Sophia smiled, hearing it. She placed Black Tourmaline on the dashboard of the car.

'You can't enter in the car, not until I want to do the same.' Sophia smiled at her small victory. The moment, Brandon walked into the library to tell her about Abby's arrival, at the same time, she had asked to get all the Crystals used for protection against the spirits from her old house. Because she hadn't used all these for years, so she was positive that her stuff would be in her house, and Oliver confirmed the same.

*

*Flashback

"Kiss my foot."

"Mon Amour.."

"Did you get what I have asked you to get?" Sophia asked, changing the subject in a serious tone.

"Yes!!" Brandon replied. "But each crystal is limited in numbers."

"Then you have to get more, and I can buy you time for that," Sophia said and explained to him the plan.

"You really want to do this?" Brandon muttered. "I mean, I can..."

"I doubt that spirit wants to harm you in any way. If she is the same, the whole one, then she will harm to me or our... our kids. So let me execute the plan."

"Oh, okay!! And include Caroline in the plan as well." Brandon suggested. "I know I shouldn't be saying this. But Dad has told me that our Princess can see spirits because she is brought into life after death and doesn't worry about her safety because Helena is with her all the time. I mean, she survived approx five years without anyone near her, food, or water. So, her presence will make others think that you're a helpless woman. But deep down, you will not be... because a mother is the greatest warrior."

"To be honest, now I'm feeling scared."

"Don't be; talk to Caro. She mightn't be able to speak the full sentence, but she is understanding and smart."

*Flashback End

*

"You're feeling scared, Princess?" Sophia asked her daughter, caressing the side of her cheek.

"No." Caroline shook her head. "You with me." She replied, kissing Sophia's hand with which she had touched her cheek.

"I promise. I won't let anything happen to you this time."

"Mom"

"Hmm"

"She.. killed me ripping in two parts?" Caroline asked, recalling how she died. Sophia's eyes widened at her daughter's words.

'She remembered her death?' She wondered. Well, hearing her question, it definitely looked like she did.

"Maybe. I'm not sure, until now." Sophia answered her daughter. Caroline didn't say anything, just looked at the man in the white shirt. Her memories were not still blurry, but she remembered the pain that she had felt while dying. Then she looked at Helena, who was sitting in the back seat of the car. Since she wasn't negative energy or evil spirits, she could stay near black tourmaline without any problem.

"WHO. ARE. YOU?" Daisy asked the very first thing she found Caroline alone in the Mcdonald's after Sophia left for the washroom. "And what are you? You had died, hadn't you? How can you see me? Is it because you came into life after death? Huh," She asked thousands of questions at Caroline while Caro sat silently, holding her hot pants tightly in fear.

"TELL. ME." Daisy tried to hold Caroline but was thrown away the moment she touched her. 'What is she? Whoever has been given a new life must be some powerful person. That's why she has these powers, and the creature who saved her life must be around her.'

Daisy concluded, recalling her training, and she also knew that she had to kill this girl OR this girl would end up finishing her story or once and for all for sure.

She saw Sophia returning back, so she silently left from there to make some arrangements.

"Did she try to approach you?" Sophia asked because the spirit didn't come after her.

"Yes. She asking questions." Caroline relaxed and started eating her burger, recalling how Calvin had taught her to eat it with both her hand.

"I was scared; I no speak."

"Are you still feeling scared?"

"No." Caroline shook her head. "You are here now."

"You're my strong, baby," Sophia said, pinching her cheek.

"Mom, what planning?"

"We are going to send her to her world forcefully. I mean, your dad and me." Sophia answered and was feeling worried for Abby, who was in the hospital. Brandon informed that they found Abby unconscious in the room and had multiple injuries on her body.

One thing was sure the spirit had tortured her a lot.

"Princess, I need your help. You have seen that lady, right?" Sophia asked, on which Caroline nodded her head, munching her food. "You can recognize her then?"

#TBC